ARTILLERY AND PLANES BOMBARDING GREEK REBELS

After Long Delay, Loyal Troops Are Ordered to Advance "No Matter What the Weather Is"—Air Attack on Crete.

CRUISER AVEROFF REPORTED AGAIN HIT

Insurgents' Fleet Said to Be Seeking Safety South of Samos—Italian Destroyer Arrives at Port of Athens.

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 9.—Unofficial and unconfirmable reports reaching here tonight said the Greek Government's fleet had been forced to capitulate to the rebels.

These reports said large amounts of money were confiscated by the rebels and that they are preparing a combined air, land and sea attack against Saloniki.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 9.—A Vienna dispatch to the Sunday Express says the Island of Crete, where the rebel forces of former Premier Venizelos are in control, proclaimed itself an independent republic tonight.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

ATHENS, March 9.—Government planes and artillery bombarded the rebels in Macedonia today beginning a battle which was expected to be one of the most important in the eight-day-old revolt.

Airplanes dropped bombs upon enemy centers in Seres, Drama and Kavalla, center of the tobacco growing industry.

Seaplanes also flew to the rebel-controlled island of Crete and bombed Canea, home of former Premier Venizelos, 70-year-old leader of the insurrection.

A hint of foreign intervention was given at Athens when the newspaper Hestia said there was likelihood an unspecified Power would act in the interests of Balkan peace.

A general attack is planned tomorrow upon rebels in the Struma River valley of Macedonia. Artillery fire upon Macedonia rebel positions continued all night.

Cruiser Again Bombed.

Government bombing planes, returning from Crete, reported they had found and bombed the rebel cruiser Averoff, causing fresh damage. The five rebel ships were said to be seeking safety south of the island of Samos. An attempt also was made to bomb an oil tanker entering the harbor of Erakleion (Candia), Crete, but the bombs missed their mark.

In operations on the mainland one plane was reported to have dropped 40 bombs at Drama and Kavalla, in Macedonia. Fire was directed mainly at barracks. The planes also dropped copies of Government proclamations in Thrace.

Premier Panayoti Tsalderis, asserting his belief that the push "probably will meet no resistance," declared the troops headed by Gen. George Kondylis would take the offensive "no matter what the weather is."

After being checkmated by rain and snow throughout the week, Gen. Kondylis, who gave up his war portfolio to take active charge of Macedonian operations, left Saloniki with his general staff for the front to superintend th eoffensive.

Italian Destroyer Arrives.

The Italian destroyer Trento arrived at Piraeus, Port of Athens, to join French and British warships already there. Strains of regimental bands filled the streets of Athens on the dispatch of additional troops to the Macedonian front.

(Reports published abroad that Athens had been bombarded by the rebel fleet and that the Tsaldaris government had resigned were unfounded.)

The extent of the paralysis of Greek commercial and economic life caused by the civil war is indicated by the fact that 18 ships, totaling 100,000 tons, are marking time in Piraeus harbor awaiting permission to sail.

All building activities have been halted. President Alexander Zaimis has decreed an emergency moratorium of 15 days on all acceptances falling due. Streets are closely pa-

More Than $1,000,000 A Month Being Spent For Relief in St. Louis

95 Pct. of the Cost of Aiding Unemployed Is Borne by Government Agencies in City and County.

Expenditures for unemployment relief in St. Louis, which reached a monthly total of $1,000,000 last August, have fallen below that point in only one month (September) since then, and reached a peak of $1,188,529 in January. A preliminary estimate for February, a short month, puts the total at $1,143,804.

Relief expenditures last year, in the city and county, totaled $13,410,000, nearly half of the $27,600,000 that has been spent for relief since the beginning of 1931 when the effects of the depression first became apparent in the growing relief roll.

Ninety-five per cent of the cost is now being borne by government agencies, the St. Louis Relief Administration in the city, and the County Relief Committee in the county. Expenditures of the St. Louis Relief Administration in 1934 totaled $10,003,124, and the County Relief Committee spent $2,726,700. Voluntary agencies of United Relief, Inc., operating in the city and county, spent $680,222.

The Federal Government continues to supply most of the money expended by the public relief agencies, St. Louis Relief Administration receiving 69 per cent of its funds from that source last year. The city furnished 18 per cent, and the State 12 per cent. One per cent represented a balance of private funds which the Administration received when it took over the operations of the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment.

Reorganization of Agency.

Reorganization of the public relief agency of St. Louis as the St. Louis Relief Administration has now been completed, and the private agencies, such as the Provident Association, St. Vincent de Paul Society, and Jewish Family Service Bureau, now function solely on funds contributed to them directly or through United Relief, Inc.

The Relief Administration has taken over the Provident Association's building at 2221 Locust street for its headquarters, and maintains 17 branch offices throughout the city. The administration has about 1050 employes, of whom about 150 are part-time workers doing incidental tasks, such as the men employed at the cafeteria of the Bureau of Homeless Men at Sixteenth and Pine streets.

Peter Kasius remains as Relief Administrator, although he recently was appointed field representative of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration for Missouri. Someone else likely will be named soon to take over direction of the St. Louis organization.

Preparation for Works Program.

Employes of the administration are now engaged in classifying the work skills of the 46,134 relief cases carried on their rolls, including 10,300 unattached persons, and 35,834 families. This is being done in preparation for a works program which may be undertaken with funds made available by the $4,000,000,000 relief bill now before Congress.

Kasius said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he thought St. Louis might be allotted as much as $30,000,000 from that fund, which would make possible the employment of 20,000 or 25,000 workers. If such a substantial amount should be available, he said, the city would to well to earmark at least $1,000,000 of it for low cost housing.

Federal funds to carry on relief work are assured for this month, Kasius said, but the action of the Legislature will determine what may be available beginning in April. The Legislature has been asked by Federal Relief Administrator Hopkin to provide $12,000,000 a year for relief in Missouri.

Kasius was confident the Legislature would take steps to insure continued Federal relief funds for Missouri. Even if Federal funds should be cut off from the State, he said, the FERA probably would continue to aid St. Louis, assuming that the city votes favorably on the proposed $3,600,000 bond issue for relief funds in the election April 2.

Of the $4,600,000 relief bond issue voted by the city in 1932 only $225,730 remains unappropriated. There is, in addition, an appropriated but unexpended revolving fund of $100,000 for emergencies, and a $100,000 appropriation for work relief which has not been spent. The city has been contributing $151,458 out of bond issue funds each month for relief.

The Present Program.

The present work relief program, conducted by the FERA, is giving employment to about 2800 persons in St. Louis and about 2000 in the county. They are working on varied tasks such as street and road repair, landscaping in parks and about the grounds of public buildings, conservation of books at the Public Library, and in such techni-

80,000 BUILDING 85-MILE DIKE BY HAND IN CHINA

Peasants Drafted to Carry Soil in Baskets for Barrier Along Fu River.

By the Associated Press.

LINCHUAN, Kiangsi, China, March 9.—A spectacle similar possibly to that which accompanied building of the Great Wall of China is being witnessed here as 80,000 conscripted peasants push the construction of a dike along the Fu River.

The laborers swarm up, down and over the embankment as they deposit their basket loads of earth.

The new dike will be 85 miles long and is expected to protect thousands of square miles of farming lands against floods when the river overflows.

Every family in the area was ordered by the Government to lend at least one member of its group for 20 days of labor on the dike. In a few cases, where men were not available, women were substituted. No wages are paid.

TWO PERUVIAN SUBMARINES CALL FOR AID IN STORM AT SEA

U. S. Coast Guard Boats Sent to Aid of Three Other Vessels.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 9.—Two Peruvian submarines on the way to New London, Conn., for repairs were experiencing difficulties with a storm tonight, divisional coast guard headquarters reported.

Coast guard headquarters at Norfolk, Va., received a message tonight from the American steamer Montoso saying it had intercepted a radio message from the submarines requesting a tow to Charleston. The position given by the submarines was 320 miles off Savannah.

Three coast guard cutters were sent to the rescue, the Modoc from Wilmington, N. C.; the Yamacraw from Savannah, Ga., and the Boutwell from Charleston, S. C.

EMPLOYES REFUSE TO LEAVE PLANT; TROOPS CALLED OUT

Union Packing House Workers Demand Rescinding of Layoff at Sioux Falls, S. D.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 9.—Four units of the National Guard were ordered out tonight when union employes at the John Morrell Packing Co. refused to leave company property in an effort to enforce demands against a contemplated layoff of 108 employes.

Gov. Tom Berry instructed Adjutant-General Cliff Coffey of Rapid City to call out the troops after receiving reports that thousands of dollars worth of meat had spoiled or was in danger of spoiling.

The union employes, about 700 of whom remained in or about the plant tonight behind locked gates, had prevented a train crew from moving 18 cars of meat earlier in the day.

VERDICT AGAINST ALUMINUM CO. IN ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Damages of $2,868,900 Award to Baush Machine Tool Co. in U. S. Court at Hartford.

MONOPOLISTIC ACTS CHARGED TO CONCERN

Third Effort by Plaintiff to Collect for Losses Alleged as Due to Practices by Defendant.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 9.—The Baush Machine Tool Co. of Springfield, Mass., was awarded damages of $2,868,900 tonight in the United States District Court in its restraint of trade suit against the Aluminum Co. of America.

A jury returned a verdict for damages of $956,300. Since the suit was based on the Sherman anti-trust act, Judge Harland B. Howe trebled the amount awarded, a course automatic under the act. The Baush company had asked for $3,000,000 damages. The Aluminum company filed a notice of appeal.

The Court denied a motion for a new trial and a motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that it was against the evidence and the amount of damages was excessive. Judge Howe said: "No, I think the verdict is in accordance with the evidence and the amount is not excessive. It is too small, if any trouble could be found with it. Motion denied." Addressing the 12 men who reported the verdict, he said: Gentlemen, I think your verdict speaks the truth and has the ring of righteousness."

First Suit in 1928.

This was the third attempt of the Baush company to collect from the Aluminum company under the Sherman anti-trust law. The original suit, brought in 1928, after being put over several times, was dropped.

A suit brought July 24, 1931, covered six years from July 24, 1925, during which the Baush company claimed it had sustained losses as a result of alleged monopolistic practices by the defendant. This case was tried before a jury in the United States District Court at New Haven in 1933. The verdict was in favor of the Aluminum company. The plaintiff carried the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals, where a retrial was ordered.

Baush Company Contentions.

Although the Baush claim for damages was for the period between July 24, 1925, and July 24, 1931, the trial which ended yesterday reviewed the history of the Aluminum Company of America from its inception nearly 50 years ago until the present time. Judge Howe allowed as evidence the history of the company from its establishment as a small business based on the Hall discovery of the electrolytic process, and also all of the acts of the company during that period, whether in this country or abroad.

The Baush company sought to prove that the Aluminum Co. is a monopoly which has eliminated all efforts at competition in the production of virgin aluminum in this county, and has arrangements with foreign producers to keep the domestic price of virgin metal at an exorbitant figure.

It contended that, because of an artificial price, the Aluminum Co. has been able to earn an abnormal profit on its virgin metal sales, and that, because of this profit, it has been able to sell its sheet and other fabricated forms at such a low price as to injure competitors who own rolling mills and must pay the market price for raw metal.

Aluminum Co. Defense.

The Aluminum Co. sought to show that the growth of the company has not been monopolistic but due to early initiative and enterprise in building an industry based on the Hall inventions. Constant research and expansions have continued since that time, the defense maintained, and have been made possible through adequate capital largely acquired by the policy of plowing back profits. It submitted evidence to show that, although it is the only domestic producer of virgin aluminum, it does not control prices of raw metal which can be procured in the open market from foreign importers, from the rapidly growing scrap and remelt market or from domestic sources.

The defense contended that the prices it has charged for fabricated articles have not been for the purpose of killing off competitors but to expand its output and increase

LAZIA MURDERED WITH GUN USED IN STATION KILLINGS

M. A. Gill, Ballistics Expert, So Testifies at Reppert Perjury Trial in Kansas City.

DETECTIVE CHIEF ZEALOUS, HE SAYS

Other Witnesses Testify to Police Search for Killers—Defendant Himself to Take Stand.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—Testimony that a machine gun used in the murder of a Federal agent, three police officers and a Federal prisoner at the Union Station here June 17, 1933, was the weapon used in the murder of John Lazia, Pendergast lieutenant, here last July 10, was given in Federal Court today by Merle A. Gill, ballistics expert.

Gill was testifying as a defense witness in the trial for perjury of Eugene C. Reppert, director of police at the time of the murders at the Union Station committed in an apparent attempt to free Frank Nash, outlaw, who was being taken to Leavenworth penitentiary. Gill produced charts and photographs to illustrate his tests.

It was testified Federal agents found the bullets used in the Lazia murder.

Theories on Lazia's Murder.

Numerous theories have been advanced as to why Lazia was killed—none of them proved. It has been suggested he was assassinated because he "knew too much." Another theory is he was killed by those jealous of his mounting power here. A further suggestion is that the mysterious disappearance here of Jack Gregory, a St. Louis gangster, who "muscled in on the cleaning and dyeing racket," was attributed to Lazia's men.

The Government, through grand jurors, has shown that testimony before the grand jury last November was that Lazia arranged a meeting of the Union Station killers, then provided an escort for two of them out of town, at the same time participating in the police investigation

"Hands Off" Order Denied.

Such a condition, the Government contends, motivated the alleged "hands off' order which former Detective Sergeant Ben Thurman testified Reppert gave him as he was uncovering local clews to the murders. Reppert's denial before the grand jury that he gave such an order resulted in his indictment.

Defense witnesses, including Chief of Detectives Thomas J. Higgins, under similar indictment, have steadfastly denied hearing such an order given. Records of police activities have been introduced to support the defense claim that the Kansas City Police Department far from "laying off" did its utmost to solve the crime and continued to do so for months afterwards.

Gill disclosed also that a .45 caliber automatic pistol found on the body of "Pretty Boy" Floyd, killed by officers in Ohio, was used in the Union Station murders. Floyd had been identified as one of the gunmen. Gill said that two machine guns, an automatic pistol and a revolver were used in the Uion Station killings.

Police Guns Missing.

Early testimony, including that of Chief of Detectives Higgins, has brought out that the two Kansas City policemen who were killed drove to the station that morning in a car which normally carried machine guns as part of its standard equipment—but the weapons had been removed. Higgins said he couldn't tell why the machine guns were not in the car. No satisfactory explanation has ever been given. It has been testified also that Federal agents the night before specifically requested that local police armed with machine guns be sent to assist in the transfer of a dangerous prisoner. Both Officers Grooms and Hermanson were expert machine gun men, but went to their death without these weapons.

Gill supported defense contention regarding the zeal of the local department quoting Detective Chief Higgins as saying: "I would give my right arm to know who did it and I wouldn't give a damn who it was."

Other witnesses during the day included private detectives, and members of the police department, all of whom asserted Reppert and Higgins diligently urged their men

ARMY AND NAVY MACHINE GUNS SWEEP MIDTOWN SECTION OF CITY

Searchlights From Two Forts Pick Out Snipers on Roof Tops but No Mass Attack on Strongholds Is Attempted.

PRESIDENT DECLARES "STATE OF SIEGE"

Had Evoked Military Rule to Suppress Revolutionary General Strike—Four Bombs Exploded Near Palace.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, March 9.—Army and navy machine gunners opened fire in midtown Havana tonight, and a general call to arms was sounded at Cabana fortress, as the wildest disorder since the revolution of November, 1933, swept the capital, torn for days by a nation-wide revolutionary general strike. The shooting died down after an hour.

Centers of the heaviest firing were the famous Prado promenade and the equally well known Malecon drive.

Bullets spattered against the walls of the old stone homes along the waterfront. Most of the firing in that zone was from Cabana fortress and naval headquarters at La Punta fortress.

Police cars, automobiles loaded with soldiers and Red Cross cars, their sirens shrieking, added to the tumult.

Firing from all directions swept the Malecon section from the National Hotel to the bay entrance. The noise of ribles and machine-guns was almost deafening.

Bombs Half Block From Palace.

Four bombs exploded in front of the American-owned Parkview Hotel, half a block from the Presidential palace.

Police said they had reports two men were killed in the shooting that continued to sweep the center of Havana. At least six persons were wounded, including two women, and more than 100 were jailed.

Although searchlights played down from the walls of two fortresses, no group movement against the strongholds could be seen.

Shots from rooftops nearby indicated snipers were at work.

Except for the soldiers and sailors in the two fortresses and a few persons caught by the sudden firing, there was no sign of life for blocks around the danger zone. Street lights were extinguished by soldiers and sailors in order to give the searchlights a better chance to pick out snipers. A few blocks away, in the area darkened by the earlier breaking of power lines, excitement ran high. Much of the downtown section was plunged in darkness before the firing became general. Officials said main power lines had been cut.

In the main shopping area, still with lights, traffic was jammed as police and soldiers searched automobiles. Motorists, anxious to get to their homes, cursed and pleaded for an opening.

State of Siege Declared.

At 11:10 p. m. the Government declared a state of siege in Havana province. It was said similar steps would be taken in other provinces. The proclamation gave the military Governor of Havana power to arrest persons without filing a charge and hold them at any place for any length of time without trial.

Except for scattered shots in several sections and frequent explosions of bombs the city was quieter.

Unconfirmed reports said the shooting started when three separate groups tried simultaneously to seize three police stations in the darkened area. It was believed sentries at one station detected the plot and opened fire.

Police and soldiers made dozens of arrests. Among those promptly

U. S. IS CHIEF 'HEIR' OF HOLMES ESTATE

To Receive $250,000, Which Is About Half of Holdings; Other Special Gifts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Former Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court left almost half of his estate of $550,000 to the United States. This was made known today when his will was filed for probate in District of Columbia Supreme Court. He died Wednesday of bronchial pneumonia. The will names his nephew, Edward J. Holmes, of Boston, nearest living relative, as his principal legatee. To him, he left $100,000 and certain personal effects.

The residue, after certain bequests, shall revert to the United States. This was estimated to amount to $250,000.

At the treasury, it was said the gift would go into the general fund or into a special trust fund, depending on whether Justice Holmes left it for a specific purpose.

Treasury officials added that there was ample precedent for its use in the general fund under "miscellaneous receipts," there having been many of such bequests in the past, although none so large as that of Mr. Holmes. The largest previous such gift to the Government was $105,000 left by a man in 1899.

The nephew will receive all of former Justice Holmes' editions of the works of his two grandfathers, his famous father, and of himself. The nephew also has the privilege of selecting 100 books from Justice Holmes' library and certain portraits. The Justice's work desk too goes to him. The desk was once the property of Justice Holmes' grandfather, Judge Jonathan Jackson.

The bulk of the library goes to the Library of Congress. Harvard University gets $25,000, preferably for the use of the law school, but with disposition left to discretion of the authorities.

To survivors of Mary Clark, a cousin, $50,000 was bequeathed; to her sister Elizabeth, $10,000; to Dorothy Q. Vaughan, $25,000; Wentworth Upham, $10,000.

A gift of $25,000 was made to the Boston Museum of Arts; to the Massachusetts Historical Society, certain portraits, and to Annie Gough, $10,000. Further bequests include servants.

John G. Palfrey, Boston lawyer, is named executor ,and to him is left $5000 to be given to persons he believes the former Justice would have desired to be remembered, but who were inadvertently overlooked.

GEN. GOERING WILL WED 'STATE ACTRESS'

Fraulein Emmy Sonneman to Become Bride of Hitler's Confidante April 10.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, March 9.—Gen. Wilhelm Hermann Goering, Chancellor Hitler's closest confidante and aid, will marry the woman he recently designated as Nazi Germany's "State actress," Fraulein Emmy Sonnemann.

The wedding was set today for April 11. Goering is 42 years old, Fraulein Sonnemann is in her 30s.

They have been much in each other's company for the past several months. Goering has been the actress' escort to all state balls and celebrations. She was frequently his guest at his Obersalzberg home, in the Bavarian Mountains, not far from Hitler's country retreat. They often visited the Chancellor together. But more frequently they were together enjoying the winter sports at Berchtesgaden.

Though they were thus often together in public, no photograph of them was published in Germany until the past few days. The public had no intimation of the romance until today's announcement.

The actress has been married once. She and Goering first met on April 20, 1933, when she appeared at the Berlin State Theater in the first national celebration of Hitler's birthday.

She is a native of Hamburg. She made her stage debut there when she was 17. Later she played in the Munich People's Theater, at Vienna, Stuttgart, Wiesbaden and Weimar. Her best role is said to be Gretchen in "Faust." She has recently been acting in movies.

HUGE ICEBERGS REPORTED IN NORTH ATLANTIC OCEAN

International Patrol Starts Month Sooner Than Last Year; Coast Guard Cutter Leaves Boston.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, March 9.—News from the fog-enshrouded North Atlantic that huge icebergs are creeping southward unusually early this year sent the coast guard cutter Mendota steaming northward today to start the international ice patrol.

Her departure from Boston harbor was a month earlier than the start of the patrol last year. Messakes from ships off Newfoundland told of heavy field ice and bergs. The patrol was started after the sinking of the Titanic, April 14, 1912. The maritime nations of the world combined to defray the cost of the patrol.

EXTENSION OF NRA IN MUCH REVISED FORM INDICATED

Some Doubt Expressed but Senate Leaders Expect Passage With Activities Greatly Curtailed.

FEAR OF 30-HOUR WEEK PLAYS PART

Richberg on Stand Again Tomorrow Before Committee Conducting Hearing on Bill and Inquiry.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The Senate Finance Committee's investigation of the National Recovery Administration proceeded far enough this week to indicate the division within the committee over the question of how the activities of the NRA shall be curtailed and to raise doubts in some minds as to whether the present Recovery Act, which expires June 16, will be extended in even a revised form for another two years as demanded by President Roosevelt.

The committee, which handled the original NIRA, is engaged in the double task of investigating the Recovery Administration and of rewriting the present law. Hearings were started Thursday, with Donald R. Richberg, executive director of the National Emergency Council and former general counsel of the NRA, on the stand. The hearing scheduled for today was postponed until Monday, when Richberg will resume his testimony and again be subjected to cross-examination by the committee members.

Commerce Chamber Comment.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in its weekly review of national legislation, made the following comment today on the committee's hearings:

"While sentiment on Capitol Hill has not yet crystalized regarding the future of NRA, there is increasing evidence that the present elaborate machinery of the agency will be drastically curtailed and that many of the codes will be dropped. There is much sentiment in Congress for abandoning the NRA altogether. Much will depend on Supreme Court rulings. The Chamber believes that the NRA should apply only to business engaged in interstate commerce and to that in which there appears to be a fair chance of enforcement of code regulations."

Attitude of Senators.

The committee hearings left no doubt that the members, with perhaps one or two exceptions, were not satisfied with the present NRA set-up. Several members for differing reasons were openly hostile. Senator Costigan (Dem.), Colorado, came to Richberg's defense on two or three occasions, but, taking the hearings as a whole, the former general counsel of the NRA was given a frigid reception and put on the defensive.

Influential Senators like Chairman Harrison of Mississippi and Senator Couzens, the independent Republican from Michigan, believe there will be NRA legislation of some sort. Couzens has pointed out privately that Congress is afraid not to extend the law for two reasons: First, the sentiment in Congress and in labor circles for a compulsory 30-hour work week in industry, and, second, the demand of Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, for a labor disputes bill which would greatly increase the Government's activities in labor troubles.

Force of Black Bill.

The bill of Senator Black (Dem.), Alabama, for a mandatory 30-hour week, has received a four-to-one favorable report from a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee and is now pending before the whole Judiciary Committee. The Senate Labor Committee has promised that it will decide on Monday what course it will follow respecting the Wagner labor disputes bill.

It will be recalled that the Black 30-hour week bill passed the Senate in 1933 and by many it was considered a factor in speeding up action on the administration's NIRA. At that time as now, operators of industry were bitterly opposed to the 30-hour week legislation and, while they wanted exemption from the anti-trust laws, they were prepared to fight the labor provisions in the NIRA. The threat of the Black law, in some instances, persuaded the operators to compromise and eccept the labor provisions of NIRA rather than face the possibility of a compulsory 30-hour week.

If the NIRA is extended, and the signs now are that it will be in a much revised form, the Roosevelt administration can thank Senator Black and the American Federation of Labor for doing their share in frightening business with a rigid work week. The situation is not as acute as it was in the spring of 1933 but the Black act still has threatening power.

The form the revised act will take is still uncertain. Black, although not a member of the Finance Committee, has attended the hearings, and yesterday quizzed Richberg, apparently in behalf of his own bill. Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, co-author of the resolution for the investigation of NRA, likewise is not a committee member. He has attended the hearings, and yesterday he announced that he intended to introduce a bill to transfer the enforcement of codes from the NRA to the Federal Trade Commission.

Richberg bluntly observed that such a plan would not work; that the Federal Commission was a semi-judicial body, and was not prepared to handle questions requiring mediation and conciliation. The Nye proposal, as he explained it, sets up no labor standards and contains no reference to the controversial labor clause, Section 7A.

Senator Hastings (Rep.), Delaware, has indicated by his questioning of Richberg that he is interested in hearing how many codes can be scrapped and how many industries can be forced into codes by the "commerce clause" of the Constitution. Richberg has admitted that there is a wide variation of interpretation as to what constitutes "interstate commerce," the only business activity regarding which Congress can constitutionally legislate. Richberg has said privately that Judge Nields in the Weirton Steel Co. case relied on Supreme Court decisions "more than 40 years old which have since been reversed." He explained that the precedent for his liberal interpretation of the "commerce clause" was set in the famous "Stockyards" decisions of the Supreme Court, decided in 1922.

Constitutionality of NIRA.

As yet the Supreme Court has not ruled on the constitutionality of the NIRA. The Spielman case, which has been reviewed in the Post-Dispatch, will be argued Monday. The decision, of course, will not be announced for several weeks, and then may be based on a technical point. Until the Supreme Court does rule specifically whether the important sections of the NIRA are constitutional or not, there will still be uncertainty. Richberg's interpretation of the commerce clause—upon which the constitutionality of the NIRA rests—is not the interpretation of many Finance Committee members or of many other Senators and Representatives.

troled, and curfew for pedestrians at 10:45 p. m. is strictly enforced.

Premier Tsaldaris today received many messages from Greek sympathizers in New York and Chicago. The Bulgarian Minister assured the Premier of his and his country's sympathy with the Government in its efforts to re-establish order.

Premier Tsaldaris' belief that the Macedonian rebels would collapse under pressure was based, he said, on today's intensive artillery and aerial preparation.

In the midst of reports of an imminent rebel advance upon Saloniki, planes roared out twice to bombard the rebel stronghold of Siderokastron, 10 miles south of Kulata on the Greco-Bulgarian frontier. It was reported rebel artillery answered the first challenge, though without any known effect.

(A dispatch from Kulata said the Macedonian insurgents were mobilizing all men between 18 and 30, thus rapidly re-enforcing their numbers.)

(Reports from Sofia, ascribed to sources along the frontier, said the rebels apparently were gaining ground, adding that six submarines and 20 cargo ships joined them.)

A son of ex-Premier Venizelos, it was rumored in Athens, was commanding the Macedonian insurrectionists.

The newspaper Proia said Venizelos, threatened bodily harm to two officials he holds on Crete unless the safety of his former bodyguard, in prison here, is assured.

The newspaper said the Governor of Crete and a cabinet member are prisoners of Venizelos.

The paper announced the arrest in Athens of Deputy Pistolakis and his brother-in-law, an American-born Greek named Stephanos, on charges of complicity in the plot by conveying marine officers to Salamis Arsenal, where the revolt broke out.

FIGHTING IN HAVANA FOLLOWS EVOKING OF MILITARY RULE

picked up were Salvador Massip, former Ambassador to Mexico, and Herminio Portel Vila, Cuban delegate to the last Pan-American conference at Montevideo. Both are members of the Partido Revolucionario Cubano (Autenticos).

Policemen with paste buckets and brushes started posting "State of Siege" notices throughout the city.

Shortly before, President Carlos Mendieta had warned that "Although I have never wanted to use my authority as chief I am ready to demonstrate it if necessary.

An emergency session of the Cabinet and Council of State early today suspended the Constitution and substituted an "eight-point program of government."

Jose Pedrana, appointed military Governor of Havana Province, center of the strikes, acted immediately to put an end to "street corner politics" by prohibiting the "public assembly" of more than two persons.

Goes Machado One Better.

The order was directed against the Cubans usually found talking politics in cafes and bars and at street corners, and it was more drastic than the famous "public assembly" law issued in the closing months of President Gerardo Machado's administration, overthrown by revolution in 1933. Machado's law limited groups to three.

Later in the day military supervisors were named for all other provinces. They were designated military Governors.

A few employes of the Interior Department, meanwhile, joined the strike movement, which has affected all but two Government departments and threatens to spread through street car workers to Cuba's two biggest labor unions.

Employes of the British-owned United Railroads announced plans to strike at midnight, tying up the main lines between the capital and Cuba's second city, Santiago, at the other end of the island. Otherwise the strike situation was unchanged, with nearly 400,000 teachers and students still out of classrooms.

Four Hurt by Bombs.

Ten bombs were exploded in Havana, three in busses, wounding four passengers, and three at water mains. Fire bombs were thrown into street cars operated by strikebreakers. A policeman was wounded in one of several shooting affrays.

Among 50 persons arrested and charged with inciting an unlawful strike was Dr. Joaquin del Rio Balmaseda, Secretary of Justice under former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

Evidence of the Government's intention to fight the spreading strike with every weapon at its command was the statement of Col. Fulgencio Batista, Army Commander-in-Chief, that "the armed forces will back the Government" in that purpose.

Declaring all striking Government workers would be barred from further employ regardless of the outcome of the strike, Batista said:

"We men who have made a revolution maintain it, and can not, in any wise, lay aside our responsibilities . . .. Those who are fooled or stupid may well consider their course."

LONG SAYS HE'LL TALK TILL SENATE ACTS ON FARLEY

Seeks Vote on Overriding Committee That Returned Majority Report Against Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Huey Long closed one of the most tempestuous weeks of his turbulent career today with a promise that he would talk next week until the Senate was forced to vote on his proposed investigation of Postmaster-General Farley.

While there were rumors that Farley would leave the cabine after attacks on his official conduct subsided, Administration leaders said they felt the Senate Postoffice Committee would be overwhelmingly sustained in its opposition to an inquiry.

"I haven't the slightest doubt about the outcome," said Chairman McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, of the committee. "Long doesn't have to talk to force a vote. I would agree to a vote immediately."

Rumor Denied Recently.

Reports that Farley might quit were denied last week by Democratic leaders after consulting with the White House.

A Senator who had planned to speak against Farley holding public and political offices simultaneously, said today, however, he had been informed if he held off a while it would not be necessary to make a speech. The Senator declined to permit use of his name. The man who informed the Senator that Farley would resign, was described as "one who knows or ought to know what he's talking about."

Farley was in New York today. According to dispatches, he declined to discuss the reports. He is National Democratic Chairman as well as a Cabinet member.

Republicans generally are expected to side with the four Republicans and one Progressive (La Follette of Wisconsin) members of the postoffice committee, who held that Long had not made a prima facie case but nevertheless an investigation should be made in view of the grave charges and the suspicion aroused in the public mind.

Expects Support in Senate.

McKellar and others thought a majority could easily be found in favor of dropping the matter for good and all. But Long said there would be "a lot of discussion of it" nevertheless in the next few days.

NEW YORK, IN DRIVE AGAINST CRIME, HAS 6TH GANG KILLING

"Dutch Schultz," City's Public Enemy No. 1, Ordered Out of Albany District.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Shot twice through the head, the body of Joseph Teischbein, 26 years old, was found slumped in an automobile parked between Long Island City and Astoria, apparently a gang victim.

It was the latest of six recent killings during a campaign against vice, lottery and bail bond racketeering by police.

Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer, New York's public enemy No. 1, was ordered out of the Albany district when he appeared at the Troy prosecutor's office across the Hudson from Albany, to discuss the killing there last week of one of his reputed aids.

Schultz, who is awaiting trial in Albany on income tax charges, came out of the office scowling.

Essen, who was riding with Collins, took him to St. Louis County Hospital. Collins resides at 3111 Union boulevard and is employed at the Land Title Insurance Co., Clayton.

NO CONSCIOUSNESS OF GUILT, ASSERTS INSULL ON STAND

He Admits Approving Use of Company's Money to Bolster Stock Account of His Brother, Martin.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Samuel Insull Sr., on trial charged with embezzling $66,000, testified in his own behalf today.

He admitted that as chairman of the Middle West Utilities Co. he had approved the withdrawal of the money from the company's treasury to bolster the stock market account of his brother Martin.

"Did you have any consciousness of guilt?" inquired Defense Counsel Floyd Thompson. "None whatever and I have none today," Insull replied.

It was this assertion of honorable intention, with the interests of the stockholders and the welfare of his foundering companies in his mind, that Insull advanced last fall, when he was acquitted of Federal mail fraud charges.

Insull recalled his conference with his brother Martin in December, 1931.

"Martin told me he was in danger of having his brokerage account sold out," he said. "I told him that if the account were sold out it would cause a general run on Insull securities and wreck the refinancing plans for the companies."

The witness related how he had sanctioned the drawing of checks for $30,000 and $36,000 and how they were sent to the brokers.

"I did it for the benefit of the stockholders," he declared. "I would do it again in the same circumstances."

He said Martin, president of Middle West, had not asked for aid and added: "I never saw a penny of the money."

He described his rise from poverty to affluence and he collapsed of his $3,000,000,000 organization.

"The companies were plunged into receivership," he said. His voice trembled as he recounted how he had disposed of "the only home I ever owned," and placed all his assets in a trust fund for the protection of note holders and creditors.

"It left me penniless," he testified. "I disposed of my insurance. My wife signed over her dower rights. That left her practically penniless, too."

Court adjourned at the conclusion of the direct examination. Cross-examination will begin Monday. Both sides expect the case to go to the jury Monday night.

to solve the mystery of the killings.

One witness, Cecil Wells, a filling station attendant, introduced to show that Reppert personally went to his station with pictures of criminals for him to identify as resembling some men he said stopped for gasoline early on the morning of the killings, told of three strange cars occupied by men who would not let him unscrew the radiator cap.

Wells imitated the sound of the cars and said he saw "some items" wrapped up in them—apparently referring to machine guns. After his customers departed, he said, he told his employer about it and warned him: "Keep your mouth shut. Inside of 48 hours there will be something doing in Kansas City."

The trial, which began last Monday, and has been attended daily by capacity crowds including politicians and some underworld figures, may be concluded Tuesday. Defense counsel have announced their intention of putting Reppert on the stand.

31 OF 100 CARRIED ON ICE INTO CASPIAN SEA MISSING

Airplane Drops Food to Russian Fishermen and Aids Them in Reaching Shore.

GURIEV, U. S. S. R., March 9.—Thirty-one out of 100 fishermen carried itno the Caspian Sea on a field of ice were missing tonight after an airplane aided their companions to reach shore safely. The cie field, a mile and a quarter square, broke away from land and floated out to sea, pushed by a strong wind.

An airplane from Astrakhan found nine men clinging to a small piece of ice which had broken away from the main field 37 miles from shore. The pilot dropped food to them and indicated they way to reach land. Later he found 60 others on the larger ice sheet. To them also he droped provisions.

Finally the field drifted back to shore, but no trace has yet been found of the remaining 31 men.

BOY HELPED CONVICTS ESCAPE FOR 'PONIES AND GOLD IN CAVE'

But He Sat Homesick, He Tells Jefferson City Warden, and Came Back.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 9.—John Elbern Long, 16 years old, who dropped out of sight two weeks ago with two escaped convicts from the State penitentiary, returned home tonight and told Warden J. M. Sanders his story.

The convicts were Fred Tracey, alias W. M. Woods, St. Louis, and John Shead, alias Woods, Bates County, both serving life terms for murder. The men, both trusties, walked away from the section of the prison outside the walls and crawled under a wire fence.

The youth, a telegraph messenger boy, said: "They said they had gold in a cave in California. They told me they would get it and buy a ranch. They were going to buy Shetland ponies and let me ride them. I didn't want to go at first but I finally agreed to buy them clothes to escape in."

The boy said he bought each convict a $1 pair of pants, a 50-cent cap, and a 39-cent shirt. "I then decided not to go with them," he told the Warden, "but they said if I didn't go willingly, they'd kidnap me."

The three went to a Kansas City suburb, but the boy got homesick, and came back. His father, Logan Long, took him to Highway Patrol headquarters.

34.2 PCT. RISE IN FOOD PRICES IN TWO YEARS

Figures Are Issued by Commerce Department — Gain Is Not All to Farmer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9. — The rise in retail food prices since February, 1933, was estimated officially today at 34.2 per cent.

This was a country-wide figure calculated by experts of the Department of Commerce. It was made clear that the increase was smaller in some sections and larger in others. Figures for the different regions were not available.

The following table shows the percentage that food prices increased from three different dates up to Feb. 15 this year:

	Since Dec. 1934.	Since Feb. 1934.	Since Feb. 1933.
All foods	6.7	12.7	34.2
Cereals	*	5.3	34.7
Meats	16.7	31.3	41.5
Dairy products	7.8	14.3	29.9
Eggs	3.2	37.6	80.0
Fruits, vegetables	6.6	x18.2	24.4
Miscellaneous	3	14.1	19

*No change. xDecline.

The increase in food prices has been steady over the past two years, the table revealed, but now apparently is continuing at a somewhat slower rate. Officials have predicted further gains.

While high food prices find little favor in populous centers, they are sought by the administration to give farmers higher earnings for their produce. A principal complaint of agricultural interests in recent years has been against the relatively low prices of farm products.

The increase in prices, however, has not all gone to the farmer. The distributer's charges have risen also as a result of paying higher wages and for other reasons. Some farmers failed to benefit much last year because their crops virtually were wiped out by the drouth.

VERDICT AGAINST ALUMINUM CO. IN ANTI-TRUST SUIT

the uses of aluminum in competition with other metals.

Judge Howe's instructions to the jury included four major points.

First, did the defendant monopolize interstate trade in virgin aluminum by conspiring with foreign importers to fix prices?

Second, after the Aluminum Co. of America had transferred its foreign properties to the Aluminum, Ltd., of Canada in 1928, did the American company then monopolize trade by conspiring with Aluminum, Ltd., to fix prices here?

Third, did the defendant by itself or its subsidiaries monopolize interstate trade in virgin aluminum?

Finally, did the Aluminum Co., a competitor in the fabricating field and also a producer of virgin aluminum, control both the price for raw material and the finished product so as to operate a "squeeze" against the plaintiff so it could not make a profit?

2 PCT. SALES TAX TO COST ST. LOUIS TWICE ITS RETURN

If State Proposal Passes, City Would Pay $6,930,000, Get $3,360,000 Back, It Is Estimated.

TOTAL REVENUE IS PUT AT $20,000,000

Senate Measure, With Best Chance of Enactment, to Be Held in Committee Until House Votes.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 9.—On the basis of State sales tax collections last year and the share to be allotted to St. Louis from the proposed 2 per cent sales tax bill, the city stands to pay about $6,930,000 and to receive back approximately $3,360,000 if the 2 per cent law is enacted.

The Senate Sales Tax Bill, which is generally conceded a better chance for passage than the bill now undergoing perfection in the House, will be held in the Ways and Means Committee until the House bill is passed and reaches the committee. The Senate bill, with some minor changes, probably will be substituted for the House bill.

In both bills the proceeds of the tax go to the same purposes, the public schools, relief, old age pensions and support of charity patients in the State hospitals, the larger part of which is now paid by the counties.

Estimated at $20,000,000.

There have been many estimates of the amount which will be produced by the tax, $20,000,000 being roughly estimated for the Senate bill. In the eleven and one-half months of last year during which the one-half of one per cent tax was in effect, the total collections were $4,257,190.03. On this basis, a 2 per cent tax, plus the $1 license fee for each merchant proposed in the Senate bill, would produce $17,813,688. However, the receipts would be expected to run considerably above that figure owing to the fact that collections were small during the first few months the present tax was in effect, and because of better enforcement provisions in the proposed law.

Last year, $1,187,230.21 was collected in St. Louis on the sales tax, not taking into consideration tax paid by dealers who paid at one central point for a number of branches or stores throughout the State and not taking into consideration taxes paid by public utilities. In the State Auditor's records these two classes of payments are kept separate and are not credited to the city or county in which they are made. It may be assumed, however, that in St. Louis they would be at least as large proportionately as other sales tax collection.

The amount collected in St. Louis, which has 22.6 per cent of the population of the State, was 38.5 per cent of the total collections in the State.

Basis of Distribution.

If the total collections under the 2 per cent tax should be $18,000,000 a year, a very conservative estimate, St. Louis would pay about 38.5 per cent, or approximately $6,930,000. Back from the State it would get school funds, relief funds, old age pension payments and, presumably but as yet not certain, a State contribution toward the support of the patients in the City Sanitarium.

On the percentage basis fixed in the Senate bill the $18,000,000 would be apportioned $7,200,000 to the State public school fund, $6,300,000 for relief, $1,800,00 for old age pensions and $2,700,000 for relief of the counties in supporting patients in State eleemosynary institutions.

Of the $7,200,000 for schools St. Louis, on the basis of distribution of the State school fund in 1933, would receive $432,000. On the basis on which it has been sharing with the remainder of the state in relief funds, it would get $2,520,000 of the $6,300,000 which will go to that purpose, and, estimated on a population basis, it would get $406,800 of the $2,700,000 which will go to old age pensions.

Question of Hospital Funds.

There is no means of estimating the amount of eleemosynary funds it would receive, if, in fact, it receives any.

St. Louis maintains its own hospital for the insane, in which there are about 3500 patients. It has only 350 patients in the State hospitals. Under a law effective two years ago St. Louis has been entitled to receive from the state $8 per month for each patient in its sanitarium, and the amount due has accumulated to more than $500,000, but because of a shortage of state revenue only $50,000 has been paid to the city.

Under another law a county is required to pay the state $18 per month for each county patient in a state hospital, but during the last few years many counties have defaulted in this payment, and there is pending a bill in the Legislature to reduce the amount to $6 a month, the state paying the difference.

It is to provide funds for this expense that the Senate sales tax bill sets aside 15 per cent of the total collections. As the bill now stands, however, there is no provision for any of this money to be paid to St. Louis, though it may be amended in the committee to permit St. Louis to share in it.

Largest Share From Food.

Records of the auditor's office reveal that of the $4,257,190 collected last year under the one-half of one per cent tax, foods contributed the larger share, $1,016,245.52, or 23.9 per cent of the total, being paid on sales of food.

The other divisions were:

Wearing apparel, exclusive of that sold in department, dry goods and general stores, $276,363.26, or 6.5 per cent, general merchandise, including sales of department stores and dry goods stores, $576,612.61, or 13.5 per cent, automotive, $33,999.73, or 10.1 per cent, furniture $131,120.13, or 3.1 per cent, lumber and building $171,890.97, or 4 per cent, agriculture $53,319.79 or 1.2 per cent, natural resources $16,333.32 or .4 per cent, miscellaneous, including drugs, hardware, jewelry, sporting goods and many others $814,805.36, or 19.1 per cent, admissions to amusements and sporting events $76,111.55 or 1.8 per cent, public utilities, electricity, telephone, telegraph, water, sewer and gas, $395,107.22 or 9.3 per cent, advertising and job printing $92,693.69 or 2.2 per cent, laundry and cleaning, $39,527.03 or .9 per cent, transportation $160,408.32 or 3.7 per cent, outdoor advertising $3894 or .1 per cent.

Pendergast for 2 Per Cent Sales Tax, He Tells Legislators.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—T. J. Pendergast, boss of the Democratic organization here, told members of the State Legislature with whom he conferred today he was in favor of the pending measure for a 2 per cent State sales tax.

Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, Democratic floor leader of the House; V. E. Phillips, Representative from Kansas City; Representative John B. Haskell and William H. Lafferty, Democratic caucus chairman, attended the conference with Pendergast.

Pendergast reiterated his belief that voters here desired enactment of a permanent registration law for voters, those at the conference said.

Pendergast said he was not attempting to suggest any course of action to the Assembly, but said he believed taxes on real property should be readjusted, the public schools aided, and provision made for financing relief.

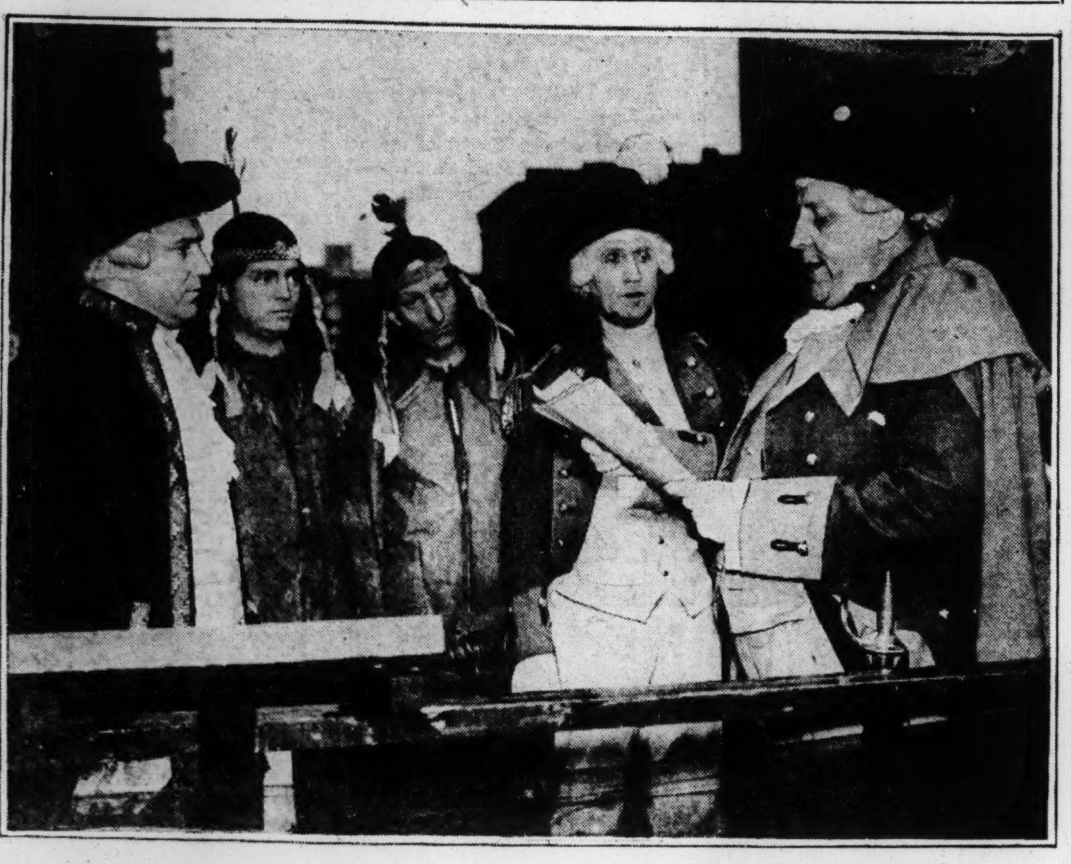
Celebration of 131st Anniversary of Louisiana Purchase



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

THIS scene, at First and Walnut streets, yesterday, reproduced the "three-flag day" ceremony of March 9 and 10, 1804, at the same spot, when the vast Louisiana Territory was transferred from Spain to France and then to the United States. From the left: GALE F. JOHNSTON, as Charles Gratiot, a French resident; BURRUS SCHUMACHER, an Indian; HOWARD FRICK, another Indian; LOUIS LA BEAUME, as Col. Charles Dehault Delassus, Spanish Lieutenant-Governor, and MAYOR DICKMANN, as Capt. Amos Stoddard, U. S. A.

"Day of the Three Flags" Re-enacted on River Front

Mayor and Others in Costume Take Part in Tableau on 131st Anniversary of Louisiana Purchase.

One of the most significant events in the peacetime history of the United States was re-enacted at First and Walnut streets before about 200 persons yesterday noon, at the same place it occurred originally 131 years ago, as the anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase and the "day of the three flags" was observed.

March 9, 1804, Spain turned over to France the Province of Upper Louisiana. France was to have given it immediately to the United States, according to the deal Thomas Jefferson made with Napoleon, but the French residents of the town persuaded Capt. Amos Stoddard of the United States Artillery to delay a day so that they might celebrate under the flag of their old homeland.

The scene was reproduced, with St. Louisans impersonating the principal characters, in order to call attention to the movement to establish a Federal memorial on the river front to the Louisiana Purchase, and the development of the West, which spread out from St. Louis. The Jefferson-National Expansion Memorial Association was in charge.

Mayor as Capt. Stoddard.

Mayor Dickmann, clad in black colonial hat, white wig, blue cape and coat, buff vest and trousers and black boots, took the part of Capt. Stoddard, making an imposing figure. Equally striking was the characterization of Col. Charles Dehault Delassus, Spanish Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Louisiana, by Louis La Beaume, architect. He wore a black hat, white wig, gold epaulets, red-faced blue coat, white vest and trousers and black boots. The French were represented by Gale F. Johnston, appearing in black velvet and gold as Charles Gratiot, an early resident.

There were three Indians, in brown garb—Tom Gilmartin, who was addressed as Chief Takinonsa; Burrus Schumacher and Howard Frick. On the outdoor platform with the costumed characters were Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, who came here for the Chamber of Commerce dinner Friday, and Marc Seguin, French Consul.

Yesterday the scene was the sidewalk in front of a red brick warehouse, at the southeast corner of First and Walnut, with the muddy river and the busy elevated railroad in the background.

St. Louis of 131 Years Ago.

One hundred thirty-one years ago, at the same corner, the participants stood before the Spanish Government House at Rue Royale (First street) and Rue de la Tour (Tower or Walnut street), in the village of San Luis de Ilinoa (St. Louis of the Illinois), which had only about 1000 inhabitants, not counting the Delaware, Abenaki and Saqui Indians of the neighborhood.

Nearby, in 1804, instead of the present-day decaying levee section, was the Place d'Armes, or Parade Ground, and to the west was the early Catholic church, later replaced in the same block by the Old Cathedral, now the parish church of St. Louis of France. A notice of the transfer of sovereignty was posted on the door of the church and a duplicate of it was there yesterday.

The program was opened by Luther Ely Smith, chairman of the memorial association, who introduced McCune Gill, historian. Gill related the history of the event. As the Old Cathedral bell tolled noon and a factory whistle sounded, "Capt. Stoddard," accompanied by the Sixth Infantry Band, playing "Yankee Doodle," marched up from the river bank. He was greeted on the platform by "Gov. Delassus" and "Gratiot." Then the characters read historical transcripts of the speeches that were exchanged on the original occasion.

Transfer of the Vast Area.

As the Spaniard turned the land of nearly half a continent west of the Mississippi over to the French commissioner, the red, white and yellow banner of Charles IV of Spain was hauled down. Then the blue and white flag of the French Republic, with gold fleurs-des-lis, was raised, as the band played the "Marseillaise." It was urged by "Gratiot" that the people would "be better citizens of America—tomorrow." The American Captain acquiesced. There was a pause, denoting the lapse of time, after which, as of March 10, 1804, the Stars and Stripes replaced the emblem of France. The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." That was an anachronism, for the national anthem was not written until eight years later. Sixth Infantrymen fired three volleys in salute.

In quoting the words of Capt. Stoddard as the transfer of the Louisiana Territory was concluded, Mayor Dickmann read: "It is a sure test of wisdom to honor and support the government under which you live, and to acquiesce in the decisions of the public will, when they may be constitutionally expressed. Confide, therefore, in the justice and integrity of our Federal President (Jefferson); he is the faithful guardian of the laws; he entertains the most beneficient views relative to the glory and happiness of this territory, and the merit derived from the acquisition of Louisiana, without any other, will perpetuate his fame to posterity."

ARRESTS ORDERED IN 11 SUPPRESSED U.S. INDICTMENTS

Warrants Issued and Bond Set at $5000 for Four Defendants in Only St. Louis Case.

Warrants for defendants named in 11 suppressed indictments, returned Friday by the Federal grand jury, were ordered issued yesterday by Federal District Judge Davis on request of Assistant United States Attorney Hapke.

At Hapke's suggestion the Court set bond at $1000 for defendants named in 10 of the cases in the southeastern division, and $5000 for the defendants in the remaining case, which Hapke told the Court was in St. Louis and which involved four persons.

Jury Investigated Liquor Firm.

The most important St. Louis case considered by the grand jury was an investigation of the wholesale liquor business of Brown-Owen, Inc., in the Mart building, and involved several persons.

Beverly Brown, Democratic politician, former saloonkeeper and once an active bondsman who went on the bail of numerous Cuckoo gangsters, is president of the company. "Gully" Owen, long-time associate of Brown in politics, the saloon business and the signing of bail bonds, is vice-president, and William Molasky, former newsboy and news agency proprietor, is secretary-treasurer.

Inquiry into the business of Brown-Owen, Inc., was begun by the Federal Alcohol Control Administration last December, after competing liquor dealers had complained that 1-cent and 2-cent State tax stamps were being affixed to pints and quarts sold by the company, instead of the 10-cent and 20-cent stamps required by law.

The investigation was made to determine if any violation of the code of fair competition of the Alcoholic Wholesale Beverage Industry was involved. The inquiry resulted in a report to Attorney-General McKittrick of Missouri that the Brown-Owen, Inc., owed the State of Missouri about $23,281 in liquor taxes for the months from April to December, 1934, inclusive.

Investigator's Report.

The investigator reported that the stamp printing meter used by the company had been set to produce tax stamps in the denomination of 1 cent for pint bottles and 2 cents for quarts. This was not due to faulty functioning of the machine, as at first reported. The meters such as used by the company are furnished by the State Liquor Control Department and are set by State inspectors so as to limit the amount of stamps that can be printed to the sum in taxes paid in advance by the wholesalers who use them.

As a result of the first inquiry, the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit in Kansas City made an additional investigation. It was followed by a report to United States Attorney Blanton, who laid it before the grand jury March 1. It was understood to include statements of investigators that they found discrepancies in the books of Brown-Owen, Inc., both as to reports of shipments into dry territory, and as to the company's record of purchases and sales of liquor.

The maximum penalty for shipping liquor into dry territory is six months in jail and a fine of $1000. The maximum for failure to keep an accurate record of purchases, sales, rectification and other processes of business is three years in prison and a fine of $5000.

Brown denied to a Post-Dispatch reporter that any large amount of taxes was owed the State, and Molasky said that any error in the amount of tax stamps that might have been found by the investigator was due to errors by new employes, which had been rectified as far as possible.

300 Wait at Courthouse for Relief Handouts —Officials Say No Food Will Be Issued Until Crowd Goes Home.

By the Associated Press.

McALESTER, Ok., March 9.—More than 300 unemployed men and women waited at the Pittsburgh County courthouse tonight for relief handouts which State officials said would not be forthcoming until they returned to their homes. All went foodless at dinner time.

"As soon as they realize," said John Eddleman, Oklahoma Relief Administrator, "that we are giving them all the aid we can they will go home and we can take care of them. Food will be given those actually hungry."

Eddleman said it was necessary for the demonstrators to return home so that relief workers might determine their needs.

At Oklahoma City, Gov. E. W. Marland called the situation "dangerous." He signed a bill today providing $1,500,000 for relief April 1.

W. A. Bolding, attorney for the State Emergency Relief Administration, was working with other relief officers in an attempt to obtain permission to provide food from the State penitentiary.

Joe Brown, county relief head, explained earlier to the group, which at one time totaled 3000, that relief funds for March had been delayed and that work will be provided for those on rolls next week.

A. L. Swinney of Krebs, acting chairman of the group, was arrested today after he denounced State Senator E. P. Hill, who had explained Gov. Marland's policies to the crowd. Swinney accused the Legislature of "buck passing" on the relief appropriations bill. Sheriff Sherrill made the arrest. No charges had been filed.

At a previous demonstration of unemployed here when several hundred spent the night in the Courthouse, Gov. Marland caused grocery orders to be issued to the group, at the State's expense.

McAlester is in the heart of the Oklahoma coal fields and most of the mines are closed down.

CONRAD G. BESCH REMARRIES IN FLORIDA

Bride Is Mrs. Gladys Sutton, Also a Resident of St. Louis.

Conrad G. Besch of the Park Plaza Hotel, former head of the Standard Building Materials Co., was married in Miami, Fla., Thursday, to Mrs. Gladys Sutton, a divorcee, of the Daniel Boone Apartments, 3733 Lindell boulevard, according to a message received from Besch yesterday by a friend. He and his bride will be back in St. Louis this week, the message says.

Besch was divorced by his first wife, Mrs. Mathilda Besch, in August, 1933, after 28 years of married life. He has been in the building material business here for many years, and is a large stockholder in the Missouri Portland Cement Co. Before his divorce he resided at 16 Kingsbury place.

Mrs Sutton, said by acquaintances to be in her early thirties, has lived in St. Louis about 10 years. Her parents live in Wichita, Kan., her father being a retired army officer. She is blond, with blue eyes. She has a sister living in New York, but no relatives in St. Louis, so far as could be learned.

AUTO PLUNGES 70 FEET OFF MANHATTAN BRIDGE

Crashes Through Guard Rail and Drops to Street; Two Badly Hurt.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 9.—An automobile crashed through a guard rail on the upper roadway of Manhattan Bridge late today, missed the heads of several pedestrians on a promenade immediately below and plunged 70 feet to Prospect street. Its two occupants were critically injured.

Harry Gross suffered internal injuries when thrown through the top of the car. He landed in the street 15 feet away. His Negro chauffeur, William Donohue, pinned behind the steering wheel, was extricated by a police emergency squad. His skull was fractured.

In its descent the car hit a trolley power line, breaking it from its supports for 150 feet. This caused a short circuit that showered the roadway with sparks and molten metal.

There were few pedestrians on Prospect street and none was endangered. James Petrie was walking under the bridge, however, and stopped hurriedly when he heard the crash above him. The rear of the Gross car ripped off the front bumper of Petrie's automobile. Gross' auto landed on its wheels and was virtually demolished.

BRITISH BARRISTERS ON HAUPTMANN TRIAL

Lawyers Shocked at Informality of Procedure But Say Verdict Was Warranted.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 9.—The Hauptmann trial has left lawyers in this country a trifle uncertain about American judicial procedure. Accustomed to the rigid formality of England's be-wigged courts, they were shocked at the informal procedure at Flemington.

"Both counsel would certainly have been disbarred by their Inns (bar associations) and half the evidence would have been ruled out if the trial had been held here," declared an eminent barrister. His identity was kept secret, as members of the British bar are not permitted to make such public statements. "I felt as if I had spent six weeks with Alice in Wonderland," wrote the representative of a London daily who attended the trial.

British readers were shocked by the advance statements by both defense and prosecuting counsel and by editorial writers freely expressing their opinion of Hauptmann's guilt or innocence. Nothing may be written or said about a British trial before it actually begins, and then only the actual testimony is privileged.

The applause of spectators and the shouts of the crowd outside the Flemington courthouse while the jury was debating the verdict grated on the nerves of one barrister.

"Such an atmosphere could never have been created over here," he said. "The first of the extremely improper comments made would have led to a commital for contempt of the court of England.

"On three counts at least the proceedings would have been quashed in this country. The final speech for the State would have been grossly improper in our courts. Both sides were allowed to break our rules of evidence. The Judge permitted a whole string of questions which over here would have been held to be irrelevant and which were asked only to throw witnesses off their guard.

"I must conclude on such evidence as I have seen that the evidence adduced at the trial would have been sufficient to prove Hauptmann guilty here, though according to our standards he did not have a fair trial."

MORE DEPOSITIONS IN SUIT AGAINST SHELTON ESTATE

Effort to Show Mrs. Lillian Cobb Shelton Wed Eastern Publisher After Divorcing St. Louisan.

More depositions containing testimony that Mrs. Lillian Cobb Shelton of New York became the wife of William Waldorf Astor Umbenhauer, a New York and Philadelphia publisher, after she divorced William Gentry Shelton of this city, were filed in Circuit Court yesterday. They were taken in New York by the estate in a suit by Mrs. Shelton claiming $481,575 under an alleged agreement of support executed by Shelton in 1914.

The amount of the claim was based on her life expectancy. She is 50 years old, and has an expectancy, according to mortality tables, of 20 years. The suit alleged that $20,000 a year would be a reasonable allowance for her support.

The estate has filed a demurrer to the petition on the ground no cause of action was set forth. It further contended in the depositions that Shelton was under no obligation to continue payments as Mrs. Shelton had become the wife of Umbenhauer in 1920. Her counsel denied she had married again, and asserted that the contract was in force, but Shelton had for a number of years failed to make payments to which she was entitled.

Died in Crossing Accident.

Shelton, who was president of the W. G. Shelton Co., manufacturers of electrical apparatus, was killed with his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Shelton in October, 1933, when their automobile was struck by a passenger train. He had been married three times, the plaintiff in the estate suit having been his second wife.

Among the deponents was Mrs. Jeanne Guasch, a New York dressmaker, who was questioned by R. W. Chubb, counsel for the estate. She testified she had known Mrs. Shelton 25 years, and that in 1920 Mrs. Shelton introduced Umbenhauer as her husband. The pair, according to the witness, lived together in various apartments in New York. Mrs. Guasch said she continued to make dresses for the plaintiff, who, however, paid the bills under the name of Shelton.

"In all these places, as far as you know, they were living as man and wife?" Chubb asked.

"Yes, in the beginning," answered the witness, "but I didn't believe they were because I had not seen the marriage ceremony. I always called her Mrs. Shelton."

Cross-examined by Daniel W. Blumeyer, a New York attorney, Mrs. Guasch admitted that in 1925 Mrs. Shelton revealed to her she was not married to Umbenhauer. "I asked her," the witness explained, "why she did not tell me that before, and she replied that for the sake of her aged mother she kept the matter a secret." Mrs. Guasch's husband, Antoine Guasch, a hairdresser and beauty operator, corroborated his wife's testimony.

Says He Saw Announcement.

Another deponent, Mrs. Helen S. Decker of Malba, L. I., testified she had seen an announcement of Mrs. Shelton's marriage to Umbenhauer, but she said after a search she had been unable to find the announcement card. Counsel for petitioner asked Mrs. Decker if she would be surprised to know Umbenhauer was married to another woman during all of this period, and had not been divorced. The witness answered that she knew nothing about the man. She said, however, "I met him as Mrs. Shelton's husband."

Depositions of a similar nature had been filed in the case last December. It developed in the testimony that Umbenhauer died last year in an accidental drowning. Mrs. Shelton's mother, it was shown, had occupied the same apartments with her daughter.

MAN GETS YEAR TO LIFE FOR EAST ST. LOUIS ROBBERY

James Palovich Pleads Guilty of Holding Up Tavern on State Street; Got $60.

James Palovich, 1834 North Fifty-ninth street, East St. Louis, was sentenced, on his plea of guilty, to serve from one year to life by City Judge Cook yesterday for robbing a tavern at 6306 State street, East St. Louis, of $60.

Palovich was arrested with Van Buren Dedmon and John Krul last December, charged with robbing eight houses. Dedmon and Krul are now under indictment for the murder of William C. Moss, an East St. Louis street car conductor whom they tried to hold up.

James Brooks, East St. Louis Negro, was sentenced to serve from one to 20 years for robbing an East St. Louis restaurant of $7 last September. Brooks is an ex-convict.

PULITZER JOURNALISM SCHOOL ALTERS POLICY

To Become First Exclusively Graduate Organization of Its Kind.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 9.—The Columbia School of Journalism, founded through an agreement between Columbia University and Joseph Pulitzer in 1903, and opened in 1912 after his death, will abandon its undergraduate status next fall and will become the first exclusively graduate school of journalism, according to an announcement today by the faculty, made by Dean Carl W. Ackerman.

Changing conditions in "the profession and industry of journalism" have forced the adoption of a new administrative and educational program, and hereafter the school will assume the academic rank accorded the schools of law and medicine and other professional faculties governed by graduate standards, the announcement says.

Admission Standard Raised.

Admission will be restricted primarily to holders of baccalaureate degrees, all of whom must pass an examination. Three years of college study have served as an entrance requirement in the past. The course will extend over one year instead of two, and 40 hours of work each week will be required. The degree of Master of Science will displace the Bachelor of Science degree.

There will be three fundamental courses of study co-ordinated to prepare the student for work in journalism in its relation to public affairs, Dean Ackerman says. The courses will be: Reporting and copy-editing, editorial writing, policies and research, and research in publishing policies.

In addition to these professional courses, all students will be required to elect, upon the advice of the dean, such non-professional graduate courses in the university as will contribute to their knowledge of public affairs in their relation to journalism. The graduate courses will include public law, history, government, economics, politics and sociology.

Conditions of Entrance.

Men and women between the 20 and 30 years of age who hold the baccalaureate degree in arts, letters, philosophy or science from a college or university and who are interested in journalism as a career or as a preparation for public service will be eligible for admission, according to the announcement, which suggested limiting the number of women to be allowed to register.

"Women of superior ability will be admitted to the school in numbers proportionate to the opportunities which shall develop for them in the future in professional work," it was said. "To fulfill both the spirit and the letter of the agreement with Mr. Pulitzer, the school will continue its policy of admitting a limited number of special students annually, but not as candidates for the degree. Such students will not be required to have any previous academic work."

$1,000,000 A MONTH BEING SPENT FOR ST. LOUIS RELIEF

cal work as making surveys statistical studies.

The Clothing Bureau of Citizens' Committee has been taken over by the works division, which now employs women to sew materials supplied by the Surplus Commodities Corporation. In addition, the Bureau has continued the work of gathering and reconditioning discarded clothing for free distribution among the needy. In the year ended March 1, 313,358 garments were so distributed. Since Jan. 15, when the works division took charge, new articles manufactured and distributed to those on relief included 9400 sheets, 6600 pillow cases, 8300 towels, 2100 children's dresses and 700 suits of children's underclothing.

Cases on Relief Rolls.

At one time or another last year the St. Louis Relief Administration had 65,175 cases on its lists, although the maximum in any one month was 41,839 in December. At the start of the year, when the Civil Works Administration program was in progress, there were 20,199 cases. Expenditures were at low ebb in February, because of the CWA, and totaled $398,836. The 1934 peak, $1,085,428 in December, was exceeded in January, 1935, with a total expenditure of $1,188,529.

The Community Council's estimate of unemployment in St. Louis and the county, based on Department of Labor percentages, reached a 1934 low of 111,317 in April, and rose to a high of 132,128 for November. The estimate for December, the last available, was 128,015 out of a population slightly in excess of a million.

OVERRULES NRA INDICTMENT

U. S. Judge in Texas Frees Alleged Violator of Oil Code.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 9.—Federal Judge T. M. Kennerly sustained a demurrer today to an indictment brought under provisions of the petroleum code of the NRA against E. D. Sorsby, operator of a service station at Hempstead, Tex.

The indictment, returned Dec. 4, 1934, was the first to be brought by the Government in this district for alleged violations of the NRA. Sorsby was charged with unlawfully working his employes in excess of the 48 hours per week provided for under the code. Judge Kennerly ruled that no offense had been charged against the laws of the United States.

H. C. M'ELDOWNEY, HIGHEST PAID BANKER IN U. S., DIES

Succumbs to Heart Disease in Atlantic City, N. J.; Salary in 1934 Was $180,000.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 9.—Henry Clay McEldowney, president of the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, died of a heart ailment at his hotel here today after several weeks of illness. He and his wife came here for a rest five weeks ago.

A son, Robert, and two daughters, Mrs. C. H. Matthews Jr. of Pittsburgh and Mrs. Alfred Tate Smith of Richmond, Va., were summoned yesterday and were at his bedside when death came at 6:15 a. m. The body will be taken to Pittsburgh.

McEldowney, as president of the $300,000,000 Union Trust, was listed last year by the Government as the highest salaried banker in the United States. The Government reported his salary at $180,000 for 1934. He was a close associate of Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury.

ALDERMEN'S GAS COMMITTEE ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

Leaves in Special Lounge Car; Expects to Confer with Ickes on Loan for Pipeline.

The seven members of the Gas Committee of the Board of Aldermen left St. Louis on a special lounge car yesterday morning for a trip to Washington, where they expect to confer with Secretary of the Interior Ickes and PWA officials about a Federal loan to Texas interests for construction of a natural gas pipeline to St. Louis.

The party, which was to return to St. Louis late this week, included Michael J. Scott of the Twenty-first Ward, chairman of the committee; John A. Genteman, First Ward; Otto Lietchen, Third; Louis A. Lange, Sixth; John R. Slay, Seventh; Joseph J. Hastey, Fifteenth, and Frank L. Wetzel, Sixteenth.

All are Democratic except Lange and Wetzel. The party had an appropriation of $1000 for expenses.

ILLEGAL PRACTICE OF LAW WARRANTS AGAINST MANDEL

Prosecutor Issues Charges Against Bill Collector Who Was Listed in Phone Book as Lawyer.

BAR ASSOCIATION BACK OF COMPLAINT

'Mistake,' Says He on Appearance Before Judge Dickmann to Give $500 Bond Returnable Friday.

Two warrants, charging unlawfully doing a law business, were issued yesterday against Samuel S. Mandel, bill collector whose activities in Bankruptcy Court brought formal complaint from the Bar Association.

Mandel appeared before Judge Dickmann at noon, accompanied by Tony Muick, professional bondsman, and obtained a $500 bond returnable next Friday in Judge Dickmann's Court of Criminal Correction.

Mandel, who formerly was listed in the telephone directory as an attorney, declined to discuss the charges against him other than to say the listing was a "mistake" on the part of the telephone company.

The offense with which he is charged is punishable by a fine of not more than $100. The statute provides that any person who pays the offender a fee may sue for treble the amount of the fee, with the additional proviso that in the event no such suit is filed within two years, the Attorney-General may sue for treble the amount on behalf of the State. Such suits, however, are civil proceedings, and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Herman Willer, who issued the warrants, said the immediate concern was the misdemeanor prosecution.

The Bar Association's complaint, made by the Committee on Unauthorized Practice of Law, charged that in four specific cases Mandel solicited claims of creditors of bankrupt companies, secured powers of attorney from each creditor, and charged a fee for filing the claim and collecting the dividend, both of which are routine procedures.

The complaint, prepared after investigation by two committee members, William W. Crowdus and Frederick A. Judell, charged that letters of solicitation "get to the creditors even before the latter are officially notified of the bankruptcy," and are "carefully worded to give the impression that Mandel & Patterson (the firm name of Mandel's collection agency) have been designated to represent the creditors, much the same as a protective committee. Nothing is said in the letter about any fee or charge for services."

"Every person we interviewed," Crowdus and Judell reported, "who had signed one of the above-mentioned proofs of debt and permitted Mandel & Patterson to file his bankruptcy claim, was of the impression that Mandel & Patterson had been appointed to represent the creditors. In each case the creditor was amazed to learn that he had given Mandel & Patterson a power of attorney."

AAA HEAD ACCUSES HISTORIAN ADAMS OF '100 PCT. UNTRUTH'

Davis Brands as Falsehood Statement About $1500 for Cotton Which Was Not Grown.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Chester C. Davis wrote James Truslow Adams today that the Farm Administration was not paying persons who had never grown cotton, potatoes or tobacco not to produce those commodities.

In an open letter to the historian, the Farm Administrator cited statements attributed to Adams in an interview published by a New York newspaper and added:

"When you pass out 100 per cent untruths such as the three cited it just makes me wonder whether you are to be taken seriously in any observations about the New Deal or about anything in the present or past."

The Administrator quoted Adams as having said that a friend owned land in the South "on which he had never grown or tried to grow any cotton" but that "last year the AAA sent him a check for $1500 for the cotton he did not grow." When the friend protested, he was said to have added, "they insisted that he keep the money because it was down on the books."

Davis replied:

"You do not know of any such person as you describe. No such person exists. No cotton benefit checks for $1500 or for any other sum whatever have been sent to any person as owners or operators of land on which cotton has never been grown."

Detective Shot to Death in Texas.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 9.—R. H. Sullivan, 36 years old, city detective, was shot to death in a shoe repair shop late today as he rushed to the aid of a friend in an altercation with the Negro proprietor Isaac Jones. The detective was shot as he rushed into the shop and started to follow Jones behind the counter, a witness said.

March of Fashion

IN FASHION SQUARE

FALL IN STEP, fashionable St. Louis! This week style holds sway . . . and up and down the streets of Fashion Square you will feel a new gay Something in the air. The March of Fashion is on!

St. Louis has waited long for such an exciting fashion fete as this . . . a complete and concentrated presentation of all that is new and "right" for a 1935 Spring . . . fresh as a March breeze, welcome as March sunshine, banishing all trace of winter.

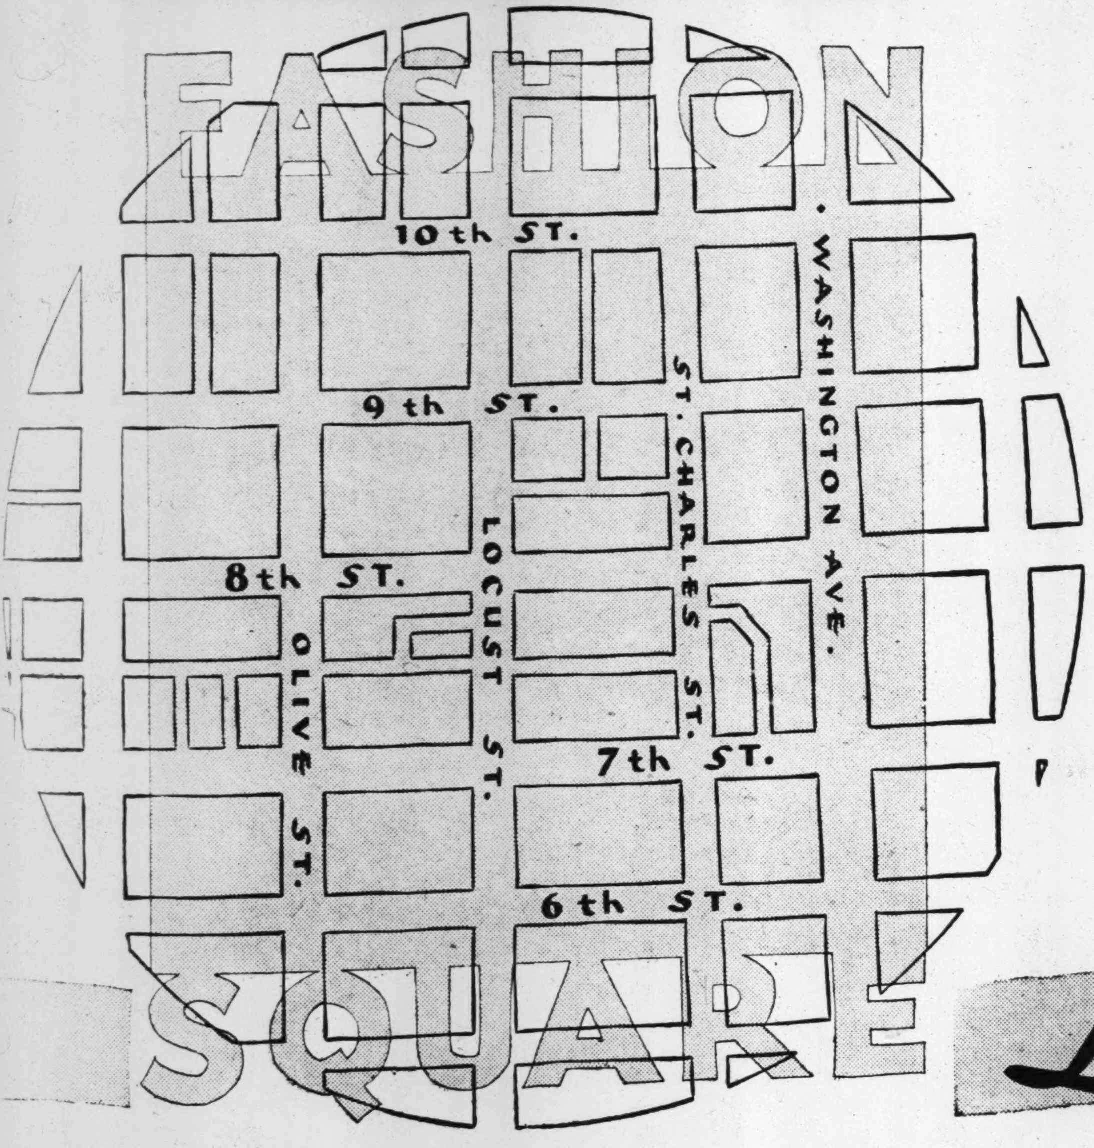
To be sure, the March of Fashion could only happen in Fashion Square. All the members of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis whose shops are within its bounds, participate. Counters and cases are brimming with new things; the frocks, the coats, the bonnets, the tailleurs and the accessories which tomorrow will adorn the avenue, are beckoning now.

Things have been happening, of course; and the results show plainly the advantages of buying YOUR fashions in the downtown shops of Fashion Square.

Within these shops are literally hundreds of style-experts who serve you from morning till night . . . people who know their fashions and know their St. Louis . . . who choose, within the inner sanctums of America's style creators, the clothes that suit the tempo of life in St. Louis. While you are entertaining your bridge club, these buyers are dashing in and out of New York salons thinking of what you would like to wear at your next party, choosing this, rejecting that . . . so that only the gems of each designer's collection reach the shops of the Associated Retailers for your delight.

Obviously, the place where most people buy is the place to shop for clothes. No frock loses its freshness, no fashion gathers dust in a busy salon. Yesterday's mode has no place in today's picture.

It's March . . . it's Spring . . . it's time to make over your Winter self. The March of Fashion has been planned for the very purpose of helping you.



Turn now to the special Fashion Presentation in Section 9 of today's paper. Your favorite Fashion Square shop has an important message for you there.

What is Fashion Square?

Take your pencil and draw a square from Sixth Street to Tenth, and from Olive Street to Washington Avenue. There you have Fashion Square. Within this area are located the shops of the Associated Retailers which serve fashionable St. Louis, and where the great majority of well-dressed St. Louisans prefer to buy their clothes.

Let's go window shopping

— MONDAY NIGHT, WHEN FASHION SQUARE UNVEILS ITS WINDOWS AT 7 O'CLOCK

All day Monday, the windows of Fashion Square Shops will be closely curtained . . . but oh, the goings-on behind them! When the clock strikes seven Monday night, the curtains will be drawn and THEN you'll see . . . but that would be telling! Tie a string around your finger, make a dinner date, and be in Fashion Square for the grand unveiling. More than likely you will want your notebook and pencil to do some serious planning for your Spring wardrobe; or perhaps you'd rather make it an evening of just plain fun. In either case, don't miss seeing what the March of Fashion brings to the windows of the following shops:

FORGED WILL CASE LEADS TO INQUIRY IN ANOTHER DEATH

Earlier Lodger of Chicago Woman Reported to Have Left Several Thousand in Insurance.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Officials investigating the forged-will case of James Thomas Kelly, 70-year-old St. Louisan, who died in a "flophouse" but was worth $100,000, disclosed today a second death in the west side rooming house operated by Mrs. Bella Butman.

Thomas Christy, who reputedly left an insurance estate of several thousands dollars, died last Christmas in the Butman rooming house where Kelly lived until his last illness, Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin said. He ordered his investigators to determine who got the insurance money.

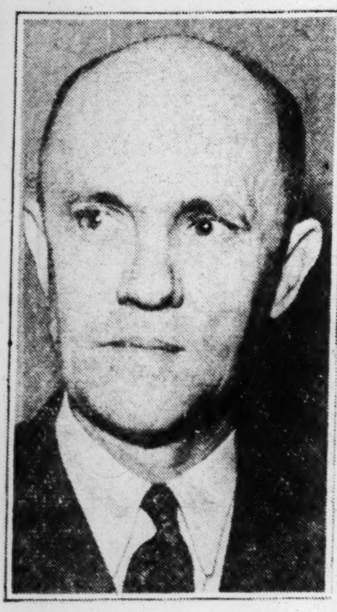
The police continued questioning nine persons, two of whom have confessed that the will leaving the bulk of Kelly's estate to Mrs. Butman, was a forgery.

In addition to Mrs. Butman, who told police she already had a fortune in addition to the money Kelly "left me," police are holding John J. Bagdonas, undertaker who buried Kelly in a $98 casket and who claimed $4500 left him in the "will;" his assistant, Nicholas Radis; Attorney Julius P. Waitches; the Rev. Paul Zalink and John Dailyde, who allegedly "witnessed the will" after Kelly was dead; the woman's son, Thomas, and two clerks in her rooming house.

As toxicologists examined the contents of Kelly's vital organs to determine whether he was poisoned, Jack Rubens, investigator for the Public Administrator, sought a "valid" will and information as to the source of Kelly's fortune in safe deposit boxes here and in three St. Louis banks.

Six of the persons held in connection with the Kelly case investigation already have been sentenced to a year in jail for contempt of court, and ordered held to the grand jury.

"NOT INTERESTED"



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

BURT R. BAY,

PRESIDENT and general manager of the Panhandle-Eastern Pipe Line Co., who told an Aldermanic Committee Friday that his company would not be interested in a competitive effort to sell natural gas to St. Louis while there is a sufficient supply of such gas available. He is one of the individual defendants in an anti-trust suit filed last week by the Federal Government at Wilmington, Del.

LACLEDE TO TAKE PART IN HEARING ON NATURAL GAS

Two Pipe Lines Also Notify State Commission They Will Be Represented at Inquiry March 25.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 9.—The Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis and the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation notified the Missouri Public Service Commission today that, subject to reservations as to their legal rights, they would take part in a hearing ordered by the commission for March 25 on the feasibility of the distribution and sale of straight natural gas in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

The City of St. Louis also notified the commission today, without any legal reservations, that it would participate in the hearing, to be held here, and would offer some evidence.

So far the commission has received acceptances of the order from five of the seven parties directed to participate. Three of the acceptances, received from Laclede, Mississippi River Fuel and Panhandle-Eastern Pipe Line Co., were qualified by reservations as to jurisdiction of the commission. The other acceptances, with no reservations, were from the City of St. Louis and the St. Louis County Gas Co., the latter controlled by the same holding company that controls the Union Electric Light & Power Co. of St. Louis.

Two Not Heard From.

No notice of acceptance has been received so far from St. Louis County, or from the McKnab Oil & Gas Co. of Winfield, Kan. The latter company is seeking a franchise in St. Louis to supply straight natural gas and has applied to the commission for authority to build a pipe line to connect St. Louis with the pipe line of the Panhandle-Eastern, near Bowling Green, Mo.

The Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, which operates a pipe line extending from Louisiana to St. Louis, sells natural gas to Laclede and the St. Louis County Gas Co. to be used for mixing with artificial gas. This mixed gas now is sold in the city and county. The contracts prohibit resale of straight natural gas by the two distributing companies to their customers, with the exception of a few industrial users.

The St. Louis law firm of Sullivan, Reeder & Finley, attorneys for Mississippi River Fuel, wrote the commission acknowledging a copy of the hearing order, and stating "while we have not been able to come up with any provision of law authorizing the proposed investigation, we are nevertheless writing to say that it is the present intention of the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation to supply the commission with whatever reasonable information they may desire and the company may possess relating to the proposed inquiry."

The Panhandle-Eastern Pipe Line Co. previously had filed a conditional acceptance, stating it would participate in the hearing, "without waiving any of our rights, particularly our right to question your jurisdiction over us."

Jurisdiction Disputed.

The several natural gas pipe line companies operating in Missouri have contended they are not public utilities, and are not subject to State regulation, on the ground they are operating in interstate commerce. A test case, initiated by the commission, to compel Panhandle-Eastern to furnish natural gas to a proposed municipally-owned gas distribution system in Fulton Mo., now is pending in the Missouri Supreme Court.

The Laclede Gas notified the commission it would appear "voluntarily" at the hearing, and produce evidence, "provided, however, that the company does not thereby waive any legal rights which it now has or may hereafter acquire in connection with the ownership or the management of its properties or the conduct of its business in supplying gas service to the consumers residing in the City of St. Louis."

PRINCIPAL WOUNDED IN SECOND DUEL OF THE WEEK IN PARIS

Two Lawyers Fight With Swords; Premier Flandin Stops Prosecution of Pair.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 9. — Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin stepped in today to halt application of France's anti-dueling laws to two lawyers, one of them seriously wounded in the neck, who crossed swords this morning in falling snow at the Parc des Princes football field.

Felix Kanoui and Pierre Meriat, both members of the Court of Appeals bar, met to settle a dispute, the exact nature of which was not disclosed. Kanoui had considered his professional dignity impaired. Minister of Justice Georges Pernot, up against the second duel of the week in which one of the combatants was injured, wanted to try the duelists. The Premier, however, halted him because experience had proved attempts to enforce the anti-dueling legislation were futile, serving only to make the prosecutions appear ridiculous. Wednesday, two Corsican deputies, Cesar Campinchi and Horace de Carbuccia, fought a duel. Today, Kanoui suffered two wounds in the arm and one in the neck near his carotid artery.

SAYS LINDBERGH OFFERED TO LAND ON GLACIER FOR $1000

Boulder Engineer Tells of Turning Him Down in 1923 Because Plane Was So Old.

BOULDER, Colo., March 9.—For a thousand dollars, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh once was willing to risk his life by landing a plane on a glacier in the Colorado Rockies.

The story was told by Fred A. Fair, Boulder engineer. Fair said a Denver interurban railway company in 1923 offered $1000 to the first pilot who would land on St. Vrain glacier, as a means of calling attention to the region's scenic attractions. Several flyers looked over the ice field and turned down the offer.

One day Pete Eiler of Boulder came to Fair and told him: "I've found you a flyer." Fair and Eiler went to the improvised landing field in a pasture where "Slim" Lindbergh was taking up passengers.

"That ship was a wreck if I ever saw one," said Fair. "It creaked with age. The canvas was tattered; frayed edges fluttered in the breeze. But the engine purred smoothly."

Fair described Lindbergh as a "long youngster with a bashful grin."

"He said, 'Sure, I'll land on the glacier. I'll guarantee it. I know I can do it and I certainly could use that $1000. I don't care if I never get her off there. You can see for yourself it wouldn't be much loss."

Fair turned him down. "I didn't want a hurt his feelings; but the ship looked like a suicide to me," he said.

SENTENCE UNDER DEAD LAW

Judge Says Repeal Applies Only to Cases in Future.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 9.—Parker V. Lucas, Dallas attorney, was sentenced to six months in prison and fined $500 today by Federal Judge R. J. McMillan, who convicted him of violating a law, now repealed, which limited attorneys' fees in war risk insurance cases to 10 per cent of the amount of the judgment.

The case was regarded as setting a precedent for numerous other cases now pending. This point involves the question of whether repeal of the law applies to cases which were pending previously. Judge McMillan said he thought it was clear that Congress intended the repeal of the law to apply only to cases in the future. The Dallas attorney was charged with collecting $2650 in fees from Laura May Butts of Sabinal in a case on which judgment of $6500 was given the woman.

DIES OF INJURIES SUFFERED WHEN STRUCK BY TRUCK

Edward Boening, 62, Hit Wednesday in Front of 1076 Tower Grove Avenue.

Edward Boening, 62-year-old tile worker, 4301B Manchester avenue, died at City Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Wednesday afternoon when struck by a truck in front of 1076 Tower Grove avenue.

The driver, Edward Smith, 7825 Michigan avenue, told police Boening ran in front of the truck. It was raining heavily at the time. There were no other witnesses. Boening suffered fractures of the pelvis and both legs.

Playmates Burn Boy.

By the Associated Press.

BROCKTON, Mass., March 9.—Edward Smith, 9 years old, was severely burned while playing Indian with four companions today. Hospital officials feared he would die. Police said the boy was tied to a tree by his companions who piled brush about him and then set fire to it. Authorities began a search for his playmates.

JUDGE FARIS BARS ENFORCEMENT OF UNDERWEAR CODE

Finds Manufacturing Business Is Not Interstate Commerce, Hence Congress Can't Regulate It.

In line with other recent NRA decisions in United States District Courts, Federal Judge Faris denied yesterday the suit of the Government to force the National Garment Co. and its subsidiary, the National Underwear Corporation, to comply with the NRA underwear manufacturing code.

The decision held, as have others, that authority for the NRA, if any, in the commerce clause of the Constitution, and that under a long line of Supreme Court decisions such authority applies only to interstate commerce.

Judge Faris found that the defendant companies were not engaged in interstate commerce. He cited decisions holding that Congress has no authority to regulate intrastate business.

Concerning interstate commerce, Judge Faris offered the following explanation:

"The mere facts that the defendants largely purchase the knitted rayon used by them in manufacturing garments, which when made they largely sell in other states of the Union, do not make their business interstate commerce. Before they dealt with the imported materials, and before labor was used on them and wages paid for making them into garments, these materials had come to rest in Missouri, their interstate journey ended. Before these materials, now goods, began again to move in interstate commerce, which an unknown and unidentified portion alone did, labor and wages had wholly ceased to be used on them. When the goods were made it was not definitely known what specific portions of them, if any, would be sold in states other than Missouri."

Judge Faris listed Supreme Court decisions upholding this principle and quoted from one decision, which stated:

"Over interstate transportation, or its incidents, the regulatory power of Congress is ample, but the production of articles intended for interstate commerce is a matter of local regulation."

The Supreme Court, Judge Faris said, had ruled "either squarely, or in principle, against the validity of of a Federal law fixing wages and hours of labor in private intrastate business not coupled with any public interest." He held that he was unable otherwise to construe these decisions and, as an inferior court, was bound to follow the higher ruling.

On the question of the evidence presented by the Government in its complaint, Judge Faris stated: "There is, I think, no question that the defendants have violated the provisions of the said code." The companies, however, had not signed the agreement and did not recognize its provisions, the decision stated.

At the hearing of the case last December, the Government introduced evidence of alleged code violation in the affidavits of 12 women employes, who swore they earned as little as $10.69 for two weeks' work in National Garment Co. plants in St. Louis and Chaffee, Mo. The code provided for a minimum of $13 for a 40-hour week.

INDIANA BUILDS FORTIFIED STATE POLICE RADIO STATION

Building Has Bullet-Proof Portholes, Barbed Wire Fence and Protected Doors.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 9. — Guarding against future forays on arsenals and police headquarters, Indiana rapidly is completing the first fortified State police radio station in the country at the Fairgrounds here. Dillinger gangsters pillaged arsenals and police headquarters at Warsaw, Peru and Auburn in their forays of 1933-34.

The new State police station has portholes so equipped that it will be impossible to shoot into them. The front of the building is of grilled iron, with a bullet-proof partition back of the door. A barbed-wire fence surrounds the structure. Light enters through a skylight protected by a wire net. The roof is constructed of bullet-proof material. An auxiliary motor will be used if outside power lines are destroyed.

Radio operators will be on duty 24 hours a day. At night the station will be flood-lighted by power from its own electric system. The station will cover the central part of the State and will be connected with four other stations when they are completed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The War Department announced approval today of a $202,000 allotment for the repair and upkeep of floating equipment engaged in the preservation and maintenance of channels in the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

The major repairs now in progress and requiring completion include conversion of the dredge Ste. Genevieve from cutter head to dustpan type and replating of the hulls of the steamers Mamie S. Barrett, Guyandot and Minneapolis.

BETTER HOUSING CAMPAIGN EXTENDED FOR TWO WEEKS

Recheck on Amount of Property Improvements Completed to Be Resumed.

Extension of the Better Housing Campaign for two weeks to permit completion of a recheck to determine the amount of property improvements already completed, was announced yesterday.

The recheck will be resumed in St. Louis and St. Louis County tomorrow by a force of approximately 660 field workers, after a week's lapse in the canvass pending allotment of additional FERA funds for completion of the work. The campaign office force of more than 20 persons went back to work Friday and will be retained until the end of this month.

Property improvements to cost a total of $13,632,754 were pledged by 48,125 property owners of St. Louis and St. Louis County during the campaign, begun Nov. 5 by the Federal Housing Administration in co-operation with the St. Louis and St. Louis County Chambers of Commerce.

Completion of improvements costing $4,604,632 had been reported when the recheck was suspended.

REORGANIZATION PLAN FILED FOR GAS & COKE CO.

Judge FitzHenry Accepts It for Submission to Bondholders, Though Not Indicating Approval.

SEVERAL CREDITORS ATTACK PROPOSAL

It Would Leave Utilities Power & Light in Control and Trade New Securities for Old.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., March 9.—A plan of the Utilities Power & Light Corporation to reorganize its subsidiary, St. Louis Gas & Coke Corporation at Granite City, and still retain control, was filed in Federal Court here today under the corporation reorganization provisions of the amended bankruptcy law.

Although several representatives of bondholders objected to the plan as unfair to bondholders, Judge Louis FitzHenry of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, said he would permit it to be filed so that it might be submitted to all bondholders for acceptance or rejection.

He made it plain the Court was not indicating approval of the plan which provides no cash for bondholders, but for their participation in new securities to be issued upon the surrender of their bonds.

The plan leaves it uncertain whether the pig iron blast furnaces and activities of this one-time $27,000,000 corporation are to be continued. It provides for continued operation of an electric power generating plant of the company.

In Receivership in 1933.

The Gas & Coke Corporation was placed in receivership early in 1933 and later the receiver, George B. Evans, was appointed trustee under the amended Bankruptcy Act. Joseph T. Davis of St. Louis, attorney for the trustee, today agreed to the filing of the reorganization plan after several amendments he suggested were accepted.

The Gas & Coke Corporation has outstanding $9,036,900 of first mortgage 6 per cent bonds which were sold to the public in 1927 after Harley L. Clarke had acquired the corporation for his holding company, Utilities Power & Light, which also owns stock control of the Laclede Gas Light Co. and the Laclede Power & Light Co. of St. Louis. The past due interest on these bonds amounts to $1,219,981.

The holding company owns $1,266,500, face value, of these bonds which it acquired at about 80 cents on the dollar. It agrees, in the reorganization plan, to surrender these bonds, as well as the interest coupons thereon without any direct compensation, and its attorneys told the court that the holding company's loss in the Gas & Coke Corporation since 1927 was $6,500,000.

Reorganization Plan.

Owners of the $7,770,400 of the bonds in the hands of the public are to receive 25 per cent of the face value of their bonds in bonds of two new corporations and are to receive 25 per cent of the stock of one corporation and 35 per cent of the other, the majority of the stock in both cases going to Utilities Power & Light Corporation in return for its cancellation of claims against the Gas & Coke Corporation.

Under this plan, the electric generating property of the Gas & Coke Corporation would be placed in a new corporation which would issue $1,554,080 of 5 per cent first mortgage bonds to be distributed pro rata among old bondholders, and the Iron & Coke properties would be placed in another corporation which would issue $388,520 of bonds. The aggregate of the two issues would make $1,942,600 in bonds available for distribution to the old bondholders, or a face value of $250 in new bonds for each $1000 bond surrendered.

The only other compensation to the old bondholders would be, for each $100 of old bonds, one share of generating company stock and two shares of Iron Co. stock. The plan provides that the generating plant would be leased for 25 years to the Laclede Power & Light Co. for an annual rental of $120,000, which it was estimated would be sufficient to provide interest and sinking fund on the new bonds of the generating company, in addition to taxes and other corporate expenses.

The $388,520 of bonds of the new Iron & Coke Corporation would be secured by first mortgage on the iron and coke properties, but since no provision is made for continued operation of those properties, Utilities Power & Light offers the additional security of a pledge of securities having a market value equal to the face value of the bonds, such value to be maintained by pledge of additional or substitute securities if necessary

Objections Raised.

Objecting groups of bondholders charged Utilities Power & Light with bad faith in the performance of some of its obligations in the past and asserted they could not rely on its new undertakings, particularly on its promise that its subsidiary, Laclede Power & Light, would pay $120,000 annual rental for the electric generating plant.

They declared the Gas & Coke Corporation bondholders had suffered from the failure of Laclede Power & light to live up to a contract made in 1927 to purchase a minimum of 4,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a month at 8 mills a kilowatt hour from the Gas & Coke Corporation. This contract was pledged as part of the security behind the bonds; it was never lived up to, and the objecting bondholders declared full performance would have yielded more than $1,000,000 in additional revenue for the Gas & Coke Corporation.

Eric W. Passmore, Milwaukee attorney, representing a bondholders' committee with which $900,000 in bonds has been deposited, asserted the trustee ought to file suit to collect that deficiency, and informed the Court that he had made demand on the trustee for the bond issue, a New York bank, that it immediately take steps to enforce the contract.

Effect of Closing Iron Plant.

Probable unfavorable results to the iron and steel industry in the St. Louis district from the permanent closing of the Gas & Coke Corporation's blast furnaces were discussed. It was said that for several years the corporation had supplied about 200,000 tons of pig iron a year to mills in the St. Louis area and that the procurement of that pig iron from other sources would entail an additional cost of at least $1.66 a ton, which would be the excess cost if shipped from Chicago producers.

Under the plan, Utilities Power & Light does not agree to provide funds to keep the iron and coke plants in operation, and since the new iron corporation would have no working capital, it probably would have to close at once unless investors could be found who would purchase and operate it. The holding company does agree to provide up to $50,000 a year for two years to maintain the iron plant in such condition that it could be reopened.

Objects to Proposed Control.

Edwin M. Stark of Chicago, representing a bondholders' reorganization committee, and Victor Packman of St. Louis, representing one bondholder, joined with Passmore in objecting to any plan that would continue the management of the Gas & Coke Corporation properties in the hands of Utilites Power & Light, as this one would.

Attorneys for the holding company pointed out that in addition to surrendering $1,266,500 of bonds, the holding company would cancel unsecured claims of $1,201,930 against its subsidiary and receivers' certificates for $330,000. These certificates represented funds advanced to cover operating losses of the Gas & Coke Co. since the receivership. The operating loss recently has been running about $30,000 a month and attorneys said the holding company could not continue to put up this amount.

The question of whether the trustees should sue Utilities Power & Light to recover about $4,000,000 representing inventory of iron and coke that was seized through foreclosure by the holding company after the receiver was appointed to satisfy loans it had made to the Gas & Coke Corporation, was still under consideration by the Court.

Friend Offers to Bury Mrs. Tabor.

LEADVILLE, Colo., March 9. — Plans to bury Mrs. Elizabeth Tabor in St. Joseph's Cemetery here, were halted today, and it is said she will be buried in Denver, beside the body of her husband, former United States Senator H. A. W. Tabor. Mrs. John L. Dower, a friend of the Tabors, wired an offer to pay the expenses of buriel in the Colorado capital. Mrs. Tabor, 83 years old, widow of the former "Silver king," who lost his fortune in the panic of 1893, died in a shack here, near the Matchless mine which built the Tabor fortune.

500 GAME LAW VIOLATORS ARRESTED IN FEDERAL DRIVE

Agents Follow Ducks and Geese Southward; Bag "Blunderbusses" and "Battery Guns."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9. — The Biological Survey said today that more than 500 game law violators had been arrested in a nation-wide drive. Fifty-eight men, working with Department of Justice agents, followed wild ducks and geese southward, arresting violators ranging from those who merely had a few birds over bag limits to the "market gunners" who kill by wholesale.

Punishment ranging up to $500 fines and 60-day jail sentences have been imposed in Federal Courts, particularly in Louisiana and California, it was reported by Stanley P. Young, chief of the division of game management, and F. P. Callaghan, in charge of game law enforcement.

Young and Callaghan exhibited a collection of "blunderbusses"—10-foot home-made guns of 1½-inch caliber, which are crammed to the muzzle with powder and shot and fired itno ducks or geese, killing many with one charge. These and "battery guns," which have several gun barrels mounted together and fired at once, are used by market hunters, who sell birds to hotels, restaurants and night clubs.

Move to Preserve Historic Home.

By the Associated Press.

CHELMSFORD, England, March 9.—A decision to continue efforts to preserve famous Bulls cottage at Boreham in the face of Henry Ford's reported desire to move it was taken today by the Essex branch of the Council for the Preservation of Rural England. The cottage, in which Anne Boleyn stayed when Henry VIII resided at New Hall, a few hundred yards away, was included in Ford's purchase of Boreham house estate three years ago.

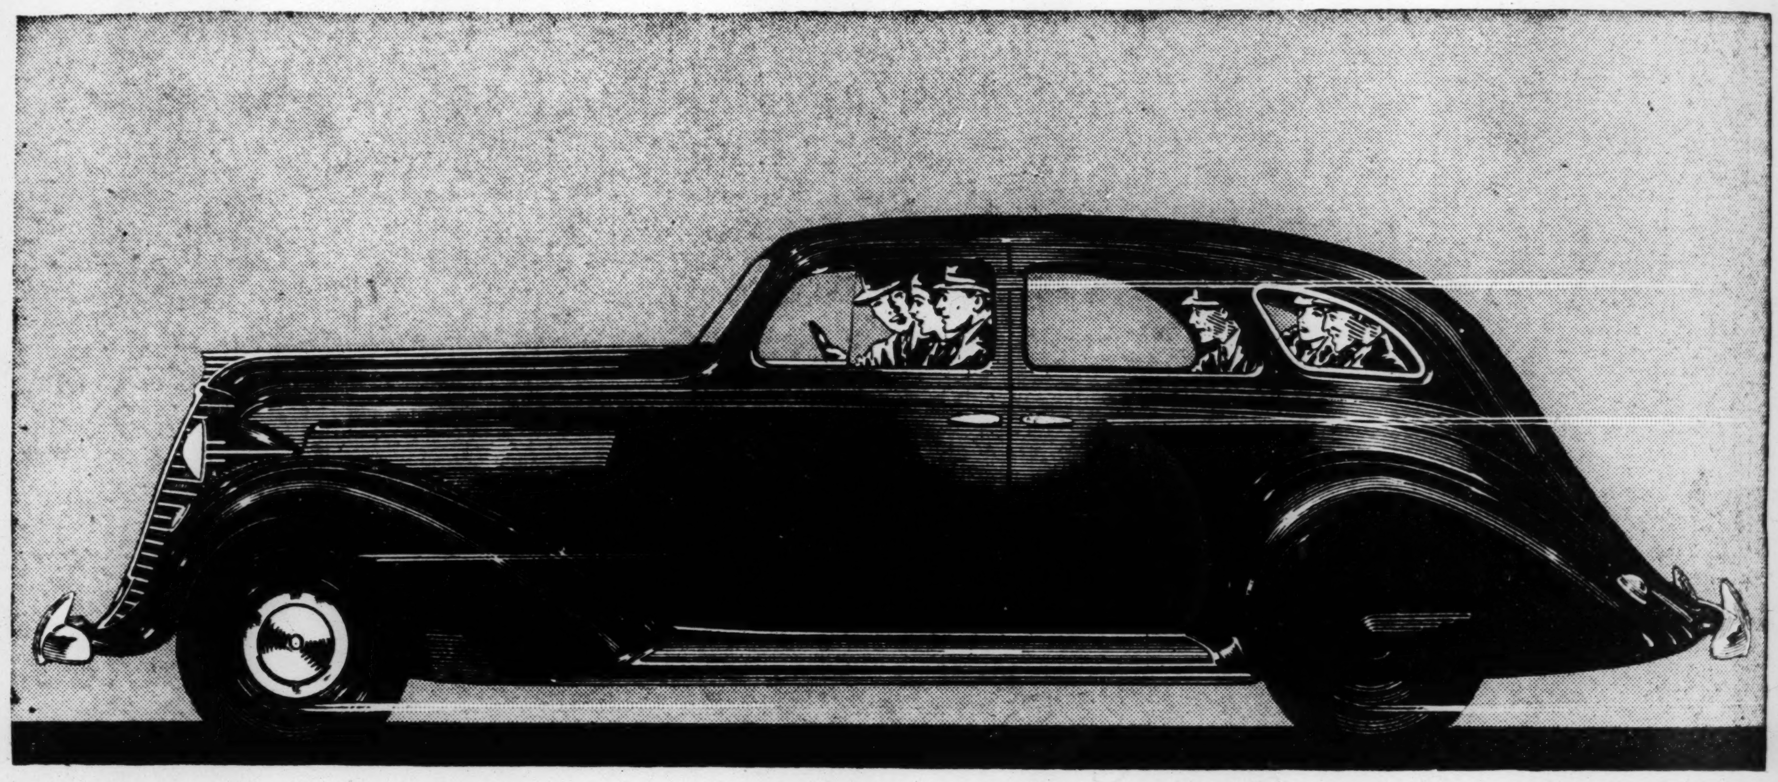
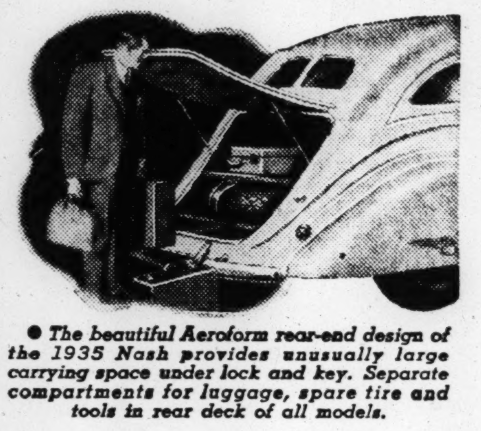
R.P.S.
HERE IS THE RIDE THAT'S THE SMOOTHEST YET
HERE IS THE PERFORMANCE OF FLYING POWER
HERE IS THE STYLE LEADER OF THE YEAR . . . .





● The beautiful Aeroform rear-end design of the 1935 Nash provides unusually large carrying space under lock and key. Separate compartments for luggage, spare tire and tools in rear deck of all models.

NASH FOR 1935
Spectacular as it is—Nash performance is only one of the many reasons why we ask you to drive a Nash before you buy a new car this year.

Aeroform Design
Flying Power (Developed from Twin Ignition)
Super-Hydraulic Brakes
Automatic Cruising Gear
All-Steel, One-Piece Bodies
Synchronized Springing Ball-Bearing Steering
Mid-Section Seating
Balanced Ride

With absolute confidence, we make the statement that a Nash "ride" will eclipse any automobile ride you have ever had. It's like having "a new road under the wheels" wherever you drive. Synchronized Springing does it—springs that flex evenly at all four wheels. Springs in which patented "Silenite" damper-leaves control friction. Springs that never need lubrication. Springs that never squeak.

This even spring action, with car weight balanced 50-50 front and rear, means a level ride over the most un-level roads. No front-end jar or rear-end bounce so common to cars with unequal weight distribution and unequal spring action.

And you ride in an all-steel one-piece body with safety front doors—hinged at the front. Six-passenger seating. Super-hydraulic brakes. An Automatic Cruising Gear—giving a big 102-horsepower car the economy of 18 to 22 miles per gallon of gasoline. Ball-bearing steering. Clutch-pedal starting. Large luggage space in the rear deck. Every convenience and comfort to make every mile of Nash travel extremely enjoyable.

BEN G. BRINKMAN RULED BANKRUPT; OWES $836,760

Promoter of The Arena in St. Louis Lists Assets of $400 in Miami (Fla.) Federal Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9. — Ben G. Brinkman, who went broke after promoting and building The Arena in St. Louis, has been formally adjudged a bankrupt, with liabilities of $836,760 and assets of $400. Of his liabilities $641,760 are unsecured and $195,000 secured.

He claimed exemption of $350 of his assets, leaving $50 available for creditors. The assets listed consisted of clothing valued at $250; cash on hand, $100; property in trust, $50, sidearms and uniforms of the Missouri National Guard.

The largest secured claim was a debt of $150,000 due the Reorganization Investment Co. of St. Louis, secured by a promissory note of the National Exhibition Co. (The Arena) given in 1929.

Among the unsecured debts were $200,000 owing to the estate of the late Edward W. Foristel, St. Louis lawyer, on a promissory note made in 1931 and $250,000 to John W. Snyder as receiver, on a stockholders' liability in the failure of a St. Louis bank in 1933.

Creditors will hold their first meeting March 15 in Federal Referee's Court here to discuss claims against Brinkman.

Others listed as secured creditors were as follows:

Manchester Bank, St. Louis, first mortgage 1929, valued $20,000, amount of debt $20,000.

Campbell Heating Co., Kansas City, Mo., second mortgage bonds, 1929, value none, amount debt $10,000.

Mark D. Eagleton, St. Louis, first mortgage, 1929, valued $15,000; debt $15,000.

Mississippi Valley Trust Co., St. Louis, 1929, class and value of security is listed as unknown, as is amount of debt.

Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., St. Louis, 1929, unknown.

South Side National Bank, St. Louis, 1929, unknown.

Lafayette South Side Bank & Trust Co., St. Louis, 1929, unknown.

Among the unsecured claims held by St. Louisans were the following:

Louis Nolte, as trustee of the E. C. Stuever estate, $35,000; J. L. Rehme, $12,500; Boaz and Kiel, $5000; Mary E. Pullen, $3000; William Fox, $25,000; South Side Ice Cream Co., $6000; Twelfth Street National Bank, $20,000; Mark Steinberg & Co., $5000; Sunset Realty Co., $2000; H. B. Wolken, $10,000; J. A. Schmle, $2500; Vandeventer National Bank, $8000; E. W. Stinde, $2000; General Materials Co., $25,000; Bauer Brothers Brokerage Co., $1200; Southern Commercial Bank, $6000; Blackwell-Wielandy Co., $2000; Henry R. Weisels, $1600.

Also listed as liabilities, with amounts undetermined, are partnership contracts with Edward A. Faust, F. W. A. Vesper, Harold M. Bixby, Willard R. Cox and W. K. Woods, growing out of the promotion and construction of the Arena.

E. R. Bradley, Palm Beach, is a $2500 creditor and Lew Meyers of Miami Beach a $10,000 creditor.

In his schedule Brinkman stated that he owned no real estate, that he "had some in St. Louis but abandoned same and did not pay taxes for more than five years." His only present stockholding is in the Grand Bahama Mercantile Development Co., with face value of $50,000, now listed as of no value.

BIRTH RATE IS HIGHEST IN FAMILIES ON RELIEF

FERA Figures Show Depression Babies Added to Rolls in Four Years Were 1,612,891.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Birth rates among families on relief are becoming the concern of governmental agencies as relief rolls reach the 20,000,000 mark.

There were 19,900,569 persons on relief rolls in December, the last month for which accurate figures are available. The expense of maintaining them totaled $179,502,799 for the month, including Federal, State and local expenses. The Federal Government paid $138,616,690 of the bill.

Babies are arriving at the fastest rates in the classes "least capable of the responsibility," says one report—among families on relief; among families not yet on relief but without employed workers; among families with less than $1200 a year income, and even among those whose economic status dropped from moderate to poor in the last few years.

Special Studies Made.

The facts came to light in a special study made by G. St. J. Perrott and Edgar Sydenstricker through the co-operation of the United States Public Health Service and the Milbank Memorial Fund. A less extensive study has been made by FERA, which is responsible for providing food and shelter for the impoverished millions.

It was found in October, 1933, that there were 1,849,771 children who were five years of age or less in families living on public funds. The great majority of those can be figured as "depression babies" since many of the families were on relief before the 1929 crash.

In a study made by Prof. James H. S. Bossard, sociologist of the University of Pennsylvania, it was found that families on relief have a birth rate 60 per cent higher than other families living on the same economic scale but not accepting public aid.

The Perrott-Sydenstricker study considers the birth rate figures from three angles—first, as compared with varying degrees of low incomes; second, in comparison with employment figures; and third, in comparison with relief figures.

In almost every case the greatest number of children were born to those families least capable of assuming the responsibility.

Their chart shows:

What the Chart Shows.

Social and Employment Status	Birth Rate Per 1000 Married Women Aged 15-44
Unskilled labor (average)	182
No employed workers	234
Part time workers	166
Full time workers	169
Skilled labor	150
No employed workers	188
Part time workers	152
Full time workers	134
Salaried Workers	134
No employed workers	153
Part time workers	153
Full time workers	120

Family Income Figures.

Then, considering the birth rate in conjunction with the family income, the following facts were found:

Income:	Birth rate per 1000 Married Women aged 15-44
Under $1200	176
$1200-$1999	145
$2000-$2499	124
$2500 and over	115

For the classes on relief in 1932 the report found that 210 babies were being born to every 1000 mothers on the relief rolls, while only 137 were being born to those not living on relief.

FERA figures show that between October, 1932, and October, 1933, there were 236,880 babies born to families living on public charity. Between October, 1929, and October, 1933, there were 1,612,891 new babies arrived in families on relief rolls. Those babies formed 12.7 per cent of the total relief roll population, while children of the same age in the general population were only 9.6 per cent of the number.

MOTHER WHO WOULDN'T SEND BOY TO SCHOOL, OUT OF JAIL

She Serves Five Days in Los Angeles; Says Son Has Been Sent Out of California.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—Mrs. Edith Gassoway was released from jail today after serving five days of a 30-day sentence for refusal to send her son, Robert, 13 years old, to school.

She announced the boy had been sent out of the State since the controversy started over his education.

Defending her violation of the compulsory school attendance law Mrs. Gassoway said she sought to tutor her son at home because of his frail condition.

"HAMLET" FIRST CHOICE PLAY

"Rain" Next in Poll of 300 on Favorite Drama.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—A majority of 300 playwrights, novelists, actors, producers, critics, publishers, educators and business men have selected "Hamlet" as their favorite play.

Ward Morehouse, dramatic critic of the New York Sun, today publishes the results of a symposium begun in March, 1934, which gives "Hamlet" 80 of a possible 300 votes. Next comes "Rain" with 64 votes, and "What Price Glory" with 46. Following, in the order named are "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Peter Pan," "The Jest," "The Green Pastures," "Journey's End," "Reunion in Vienna" and "The Cherry Orchard."

Funeral of Mrs. Henry Van Dyke.

TERMINAL MAKES CITY NEW BRIDGE APPROACH OFFER

Ready to Finish Work With Own Money and Material if St. Louis Will Get PWA Grant.

A new proposal of the Terminal Association, to complete the Municipal Bridge approaches with its own money and material, if a PWA grant can be obtained by the city to help in the work, was made to Mayor Dickmann and the City Law Department yesterday.

The Mayor told of the proposal last evening at Union Station, where he accompanied Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to his train for Washington. He said Henry Miller, president of the Terminal, would present the plan to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, at its meeting in the Mayor's office Tuesday. At present, the Mayor made it clear, he did not think much of the plan.

The Mayor was in conference with Chairman Jones yesterday afternoon about the Terminal's objections to the agreement lately reached by the city and the Government, providing for a PWA loan and grant, with RFC backing, to complete the approaches, so that Eastern railroads may use the bridge.

Chairman Jones' View.

Jones said, at the train, that the Government was still ready to make the $1,103,000 loan and grant recently authorized, and that he saw no insurmountable obstacle to the city administration's plan.

The Mayor said the Terminal's attitude was an obstacle, but he hoped it would not be insurmountable, even if it took legal action to surmount it.

"The Terminal, which agreed on the plan for building the approaches, and asked the city to provide the money through a Government loan and grant, has made objections to the contract which our law department recently brought back from Washington," the Mayor said. "We have gone over these objections with Mr. Jones, and it appears that they can all be disposed of, except the Terminal's objection to signing the guarantee of annual payments to amortize the Government loan." These payments, the Mayor said, have been figured as between $100,000 and $125,000 a year.

Mayor Wants Action.

"After five years," the Mayor said, "the Terminal proposes another plan. Its new proposal is that the Terminal shall build the approaches with its own money and materials, the city helping with the grant promised by the Government, without the Government loan." The amount of the grant has been stated as $345,000.

"Mr. Miller is to tell the Board of Estimate of his new plan Tuesday. Until then, I can say only that I am determined that the work shall be started without further long delays. We have a contract with the Terminal, and if steps to enforce it are necessary, they will be taken."

Status of Grant Alone.

Chairman Jones said he could not speak for the PWA, but that he did not think the withdrawal of the city's loan application would prevent the grant from being made. It was his opinion, however, that the grant could be made only to the city, and not to the Terminal or any railroad corporation.

There was discussion also of the plan, lately presented, for private financing of the loan, the brokerage firm of Stifel, Nicolaus & Co. having offered to provide the money to the city, and this proposal having been submitted to President Miller and General Thomas M. Pierce of the Terminal.

If the private loan were negotiated, the PWA-RFC loan would not be asked for but the grant from the PWA would still be sought. Most of the Mayor's discussion with Chairman Jones was on the basis of the plan for a Government loan and grant.

City Counselor Hay said last night he doubted that it would be practically possible to get the Government grant under the Terminal's new plan. He said the Terminal's proposal would be presented in writing at the Board of Estimate meeting Tuesday. "As I understand it," he said, "the Terminal now wants to put up the money and do the work itself, without a loan either from the Government or from Stifel-Nicolaus."

ORDERS ARREST OF BROTHER

Brazilian Cabinet Officer Acts Following Revolt.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 9. — Gen. Pedro de Goes Monteiro, Minister of War, today ordered the arrest of his brother, Sylvestre, 20 years old, who participated in a revolt yesterday in the State of Alagoas.

A third brother, Edgard, Captain of the State police, who defended the palace against an attack by Sylvestre's forces, was reported to be in a dangerous condition from bullet wounds in the leg and arm which, the newspaper Globo asserts, were inflicted by Sylvestre.

Publishers Would Scrap NRA.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 9.—The Nebraska Press Association adopted a resolution today urging discontinuance of the NRA and all codes at the termination of the National Industrial Recovery Act in June, 1935. The editors also voted to quit administering the graphic art code in this state.

POSTOFFICE EMPLOYE DENIES CHARGE OF INSUBORDINATION

Alleges "Systematic Campaign" to Prevent Substitute Workers From Organizing.

Samuel L. Rosen, State organizer for the National Association of Substitute Postoffice Employes, asserted yesterday that insubordination charges recently filed against him by F. D. Flora, Postoffice Inspector of St. Joseph, Mo., were "groundless and represent new efforts to prevent substitute employes from organizing."

The charges against Rosen set forth that he showed "insolence and arrogance toward superior officers," and list specific examples of misconduct. He is charged with reporting late for work on several occasions, talking excessively with fellow employes, and neglecting to prepare for periodic examinations. Answers to the charges must be made within 10 days.

"This seems to be part of a systematic campaign of intimidation of those who would organize to correct working conditions," Rosen said. "Directed particularly against those active in organizing, it has driven the association into secrecy, though 80 per cent of elegible men have joined. Two substitute workers, Theodore Bronstein and Samuel Raban, have been discharged recently after similar charges. Both were active in the association."

Roger Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, has informed Rosen that legal representatives of the Union will represent him.

18 MONTHS FOR COMMUNIST ORGANIZER IN OKLAHOMA

Tries Vainly to Withdraw Guilty Plea After Sentence for Conspiracy to Obstruct Justice.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., March 9.—Harry Bender, 29-year-old Communist organizer, was sentenced today to 18 months in Federal prison and fined $500 on a plea of guilty to charges of conspiracy to obstruct and interfere with justice.

Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught overruled his request to withdraw the plea after sentence was pronounced.

Bender was one of 14 persons arrested in connection with demands on Government officials that they dismiss conspiracy charges against 10 persons convicted two weeks ago as a result of a demonstration of unemployed persons last May.

WOMAN IN THIRD ATTEMPT SUCCEEDS IN ENDING HER LIFE

Mrs. Amelia Thum, 2013 Chippewa Street, Dies in Hospital, After Taking Poison at Home.

Mrs. Amelia Thum, 38 years old, of 2013 Chippewa street, died of poisoning at City Hospital yesterday, following what her husband said was her third attempt to end her life.

The husband, Joseph Thum, building contractor, told police she was restrained on the first two occasions, but that Friday night she arose from bed, went to the bathroom and returned drinking poison from a bottle. She dropped the bottle, he said, and told him she had intended to kill herself.

Police were unable to get a statement from her. Her husband gave no reason for the act to police, but some one at her home told a reporter she had suffered from melancholia. A 7-year-old son also survives.

A. F. OF L. THREATENS AUTO WORKERS' STRIKE

Repeats Request to Deal With Manufacturers Independently of Industry's Board.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, March 9.—The American Federation of Labor renewed today its request for a conference with motor car manufacturers independently of the Roosevelt-created National Automobile Labor Board and coupled with it a threat to call out A. F. of L. members in the industry unless such a meeting is arranged.

The Federation also proposed that its right to speak for workers in the industry be determined by a Government-supervised poll, conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

These latest developments in the controversy between the Federation and the manufacturers were contained in a statement by Francis J. Dillon, Federation organizer. The statement was in response to a letter by Alfred G. Reeves, vice-president of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association to William Green, president of the A. F. of L., rejecting the latter's proposal for an independent conference and denying Green's right to speak for the majority of automobile plant workers.

"Mr. Green's request," said Dillon, "is a modest one. It is constructive and the automobile workers will stand back of him. Unless this modest request for a conference is conceded and recognized by the management we propose to use our economic power and withdraw the services of our people from this industry and fight if necessary to secure and preserve this right.

"I charge," he said, "that the automobile industry is spending thousands of dollars which is diverted from the workers' earnings, developing and maintaining a company dominated and controlled union for the deliberate purpose of making it impossible for workers to join and maintain genuine collective bargaining."

Referring further to a strike vote ordered by the National Council of United Automobile Workers Federal Labor Unions, A. F. of L. affiliates, Dillon said: "The strike vote now being taken represents the only avenue left by which these workers may adjust or correct their grievances."

The automobile board, which the Federation has charged with functioning more in the interest of the employer than the worker, gave out figures today showing that of 121,722 workers participating in collective bargaining elections, only 7458 listed themselves as A. F. of L. members while 88,028 recorded themselves as without organization affiliation.

Found Dead in Bathroom.

By the Associated Press.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., March 9.—Relatives today found Sam Davies West of Fayetteville and Westville dead of a pistol wound in the bathroom of his home here. A revolver was at his side. Police were told he had been in ill health. He was a son of Mrs. Audie Davies West of St. Louis.

ORDERED TO PAY BACK $44,700 OF FEE OF $99,900

U. S. Appellate Court Cuts Allowance to Master in Dubbs Oil-Cracking Case.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—Reviewing one of the large Federal Court fees of a decade ago, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals has directed that Holmes Hall, special master in the old Dubbs oil-cracking litigation, restore $44,700 of a fee of $99,900 and pay interest at 6 per cent from Oct. 18, 1924.

Hall, then a Sedalia lawyer and a former Missouri State Senator, was named special master in November, 1921, by Judge Arba S. Van Valkenburgh, his duties being to take evidence and report findings in law and fact in the litigation which the Universal Oil Products Co. was carrying on against the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

Reference is made to various stipulations as to compensation and it seemed that the special master was paid $100 a day for 999 days, testimony having been heard in various parts of the country up to 1924. The special master sought an additional $12,000. This the higher courts directed be dropped as a lower court proceeding.

Much has been heard of the litigation of Carbon Petroleum Dubbs since the reported settlement by big oil companies in 1931 on a reported basis of $22,000,000. J. Ogden Armour financed Dubbs in seeking to recover on the oil-cracking processes invented by his father, and the Armour estate was said to have had a large share in the settlement. Former Senator James A. Reed and C. W. German, Kansas City attorneys, still are prosecuting suits for large legal fees.

STEVENS POINT, WIS, PAYS OBLIGATIONS BEFORE DUE

With Tax Collections $50,000 Ahead of Last Year Treasury Has $182,000 on Hand.

By the Associated Press.

STEVENS POINT, Wis., March 9.—Because it has too much cash on hand, this city of 12,000 inhabitants is paying in advance its bills falling due as far ahead as next December.

With tax collections running $50,000 ahead of last year, the city treasury today showed a balance of $182,000 cash on hand, and all current expenses paid.

The city has paid off $20,000 in county taxes not yet due and notified holders of general obligations bonds due up to and including December, 1935, that they will be paid in full with interest to date of maturity on presentation.

Prompt payment of taxes and of a plan for payment of taxes in advance of the due date, with interest paid thereon, have kept the city's finances shipshape. The bonded indebtedness of the city is $284,000, a substantial reduction from a few years ago when the city was bonded to its limit.

ACQUITTED IN KILLING OF FRIEND AT TAVERN

Berdell Childers, on Stand, Insists He Didn't Try to Shoot Man's Hat Off.

Berdell Childers, charged with the murder of John Clay Stephens, 29-year-old unemployed airplane mechanic, who was shot in Childers' tavern at 428 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, Jan. 27, was found not guilty yesterday by a jury in City Judge Cook's court.

Childers, who is 25 years old and resides at 1802 Ohio avenue, took the stand yesterday to deny his statement to police that he had unintentionally shot Stephens after a challenge to shoot a hat from his head.

His Story of Shooting.

"John was my best friend," Childers testified. "He had been examining a .30-caliber Luger automatic that belonged to me and had taken it apart. When he reassembled it, it wouldn't work and he laid it on the counter while I waited on a customer at the bar. When I returned, we both reached for the pistol and it went off, the bullet striking John in the head."

Childers said his statement to police had been signed without knowledge of what it contained.

Leo Geabes, 1224 North Forty-seventh street, a laborer, the only other defense witness, also repudiated his signed statement to police, which supported Childers' story of attempting to shoot a hat from Stephens' head. He took the stand to testify he was asleep at the time of the shooting and did not know the exact circumstances.

Verdict Within Three Hours.

Police Sergeant Michael O'Rourke, called as a State witness, said Childers first told him he had shot Stephens in resisting a holdup. Detective Sergeant John McNerney testified that Childers told of attempting to shoot a hat from Stephens' head.

The jury deliberated two and half hours.

"Now I can catch every little word."

SWITZERLAND HOLDS FAST TO THE GOLD STANDARD

Head of National Bank Declares Recovery Cannot Be Achieved by Depreciating Currency.

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 9.—The firm determination of Switzerland to stay on the gold standard was pledged by directors of the National Bank of Switzerland at the annual stockholders' meeting today.

Asserting recovery could not be achieved through "artificial means" such as depreciation of the currency, Alfred Sarasin, chairman of the bank's board, declared: "It is impossible for Switzerland to follow a monetary policy different from that which the bank has followed in complete legality."

He deprecated "repeated attacks on the Swiss franc," saying, "Lasting recovery must result from world economy."

George Bachmann, president of the bank, said the closest economic as well as monetary collaboration by Switzerland with other gold standard countries was necessary.

TO FACE TRIAL HERE FOR DIPLOMA FRAUD

Woman Once on Iowa Chiropractic Board Ordered Taken to St. Louis.

Mrs. Myrtle Long, former secretary of the Iowa Board of Chiropractic Examiners, will be brought to St. Louis to face charges of participating in the diploma fraud conspiracy attributed to George M. Lindsay of Kansas City.

An order for her removal to St. Louis was signed yesterday at Sioux City, Ia., by Federal Judge George Scott. Arrested Friday at Dubuque, Ia., Mrs. Long had been unable to make bond of $10,000 and was held in jail.

She was the second official of a state board to be arrested under the indictment, which alleged misuse of the mails in a conspiracy to defraud by traffic in faked medical and chiropractic diplomas and licenses. Dr. Claude E. Laws of Fort Smith, Ark., former secretary of the Arkansas Eclectic Medical Board, was arrested there and placed under bond.

Mrs. Long was charged in the indictment with aiding diploma buyers to obtain chiropractic licenses. Dr. Laws was charged with aiding them to secure medical licenses in Arkansas. At least 11 physicians' licenses have been revoked by the Arkansas board because the holders were found to have presented false credentials.

Another of the defendants, A. E. Krebs, former St. Louis chiropractor, who was arrested at Ashtabula, O., was returned to St. Louis yesterday and is held in jail here, unable to furnish bond.

Only one of the eight persons named in the indictment remains to be arrested. Besides those mentioned, the defendants who have been arrested are Dr. Dale R. Alexander, former head of the defunct Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery; William T. Gallagher of Kansas City and John E. Hamilton of Fort Worth, Tex.

Dr. Alexander's medical school was deprived of its charter in 1926 by the Supreme Court on evidence that it had sold "honorary" diplomas. The indictment charged he supplied the diplomas sold by Lindsay and his associates. Gallagher, Krebs and Hamilton were named as salesmen of diplomas and licenses.

DEAN AT LOUISIANA STATE U. REPLIES TO SNUB BY COLLEGE

Accuses Washington and Jefferson President of Being "Unethical and Unacademic."

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 9.—The refusal of Dr. Ralph C. Hutchinson, president of Washington and Jefferson College, to accept an invitation to attend the seventy-fifth anniversary celebration of Louisiana State University was described today as "unethical and unacademic" by Dr. James F. Broussard, dean of L. S. U. and acting president.

Dr. Hutchinson wrote Dr. James N. Smith, president of L. S. U., that Washington and Jefferson College officials "should hesitate to lend their support at just this time when the high purposes of the university seem at a distance to have been subordinated to the political objectives of Mr. Huey Long."

Dean Broussard issued the following statement: "As chairman of the Diamond Jubilee Celebration, I would like to say that the unethical and unacademic procedure of the President of Washington and Jefferson College is rather astounding. "No college president and certainly no well-trained college man ever draws conclusions from rumors, press reports and indefinite sources of information 'at a distance.'

"Washington and Jefferson loses a great deal by not joining the host of delegates from the great institutions of America who have already accepted our invitation and who are joining with us in the celebration of our seventy-fifth anniversary."

GOV. OLSON FOR PAYMENT OF FARM DEBTS IN CROPS

Thinks Scheme Would Convince Mortgage Holders of Need for Higher Prices.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 9.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson says farm commodity prices can be increased by making creditors partners of debtor farmers. His scheme would, in effect, prohibit foreclosure or eviction of any farmer who offered one-third of his crops to apply on his debts.

Olson, a Farmer-Laborite, told a group of farmers this week he believed an economic revolution was needed. He says national adoption of his plan would increase prices through production based on need instead of effective demand. He thinks it would make big holders of farm property, such as banks and insurance companies, work for better farm commodity prices.

If compelled to accept crops as part payment, mortgagees would be more interested in what prices were paid for such commodities, he says.

Kansas' Ex-Governor Leedy Ill.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 9.—A resolution under which Kansas would pay burial expenses of one of its former Governors, J. W. Leedy who is seriously ill at his home near Edmonton, Canad, was passed by the House and Senate and sent to the Governor tonight. Leedy was a populist Governor in Kansas from 1898 until 1900. The resolution would appropriate $1000 for burial expenses of both Mr. and Mrs. Leedy at Edmonton and for erection of a monument.

27 CANDIDATES SEEK 4 MAPLEWOOD POSTS

Five File for Mayor, Others for Council; 14 Running in Webster Groves.

Twenty-seven candidates have filed in Maplewood for election to four city positions to be filled at the municipal election April 22. Five have filed for Mayor, and the remainder for three positions on the City Council.

In Webster Groves, where the same positions are to be filled, there are two candidates for Mayor and 12 for the Council seats. Filings in both towns ended last night.

Candidates in each city will be subject to elimination at primary elections to be held March 19 and at which two nominees for Mayor and six for Councilmen will be chosen. The elections are non-partisan, the two candidates for Mayor receiving the highest numbers of votes in the primary becoming the nominees to run against each other in the municipal election. Similarly, the six candidates for Councilmen in each town receiving the highest number of votes become the nominees to run in the municipal election at which the three with the highest number of votes are elected.

With the exceptions of A. Stratford Fuller and Joseph Carr, Maplewood Councilmen, all incumbents in the two towns have filed for re-election. Fuller has announced his retirement, and Carr is a candidate for Mayor.

Besides Carr, candidates for the Maplewood mayoralty are John B. Fels (incumbent), Frank L. Martini former Councilman), George A. McGregor, and O. C. Trovost.

Mayor John B. Chipman of Webster Groves is running for re-election, opposed by George W. Kriegesman, publisher of a local newspaper.

Candidates who have filed for Council seats are:

Maplewood—Harry G. McClure (incumbent), Lee Wilson and Fred E. Heideman (former Councilmen), Joseph E. Kavanaugh (Chief of Police), Dr. T. M. Brossard, J. M. Lauritson, Oscar B. Hegstrom, James B. Walton, Thomas Rose, Richard Howard, W. E. Waterhouse, Roland Minges, L. Mike Ruck, Mrs. Lillian M. Doyle, Al Renkel, T. E. Altenbernd, Alfred Bruno, Charles H. Boenecke, John Vogel, J. L. Johansen, Otto T. Grimm and Dr. E. O. Breckenridge.

Webster Groves—E. S. Chapman, Berton Forester and T. Herbert Heath (incumbents), Herbert de Staebler, J. P. Waddock, John Kotobsky, Fred Knickman, Eugene Booth, F. R. McMath, James E. Holland, P. R. Goodenough and E. M. Henry.

FOUR OSLO SCHOOLS CLOSED DUE TO DECREASE IN BIRTHS

Number of New Babies Has Dropped From 8000 in 1900 to 2000 Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, March 9.—Births in Oslo have decreased from 8000 in 1900 to only 2000 in 1934.

A heated discussion followed the publication of the statistics, some persons maintain the decrease means only that "human breeding has become culturized," and that national economy will be the better for it. Conservative groups, however, insist that the decline spells catastrophe for the nation and that national economy is threatened.

Widespread propaganda for birth control was regarded as the chief cause of the lowered birth rate. Health Commissioner Andreas Diesen insisted that the decrease had gone far beyond the limits of reason.

Meanwhile four large school buildings in Oslo have been converted to other uses, since the number of school children has decreased from 30,000 to 20,000 during a period of a few years.

Dr. Fuerbringer to Speak.

Dr. Ludwig Fuerbringer, president of Concordia Seminary, will give the first of a series of lectures sponsored by the Concordia Historical Institute Friday at 8:15 p. m. at the school. He will speak on "My Personal Reminiscences of Dr. C. F. W. Walther." On March 29, Prof. R. W. Heintze will discuss "The Palatinate Immigration to American Under Kocherthal."

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., March 9.—Horse and mule markets maintained a good level the past week, despite the heaviest run of the season. Horses on commission totaled better than 1000 head and mules in first hands exceeded 400. Good young mares and mules of the wanted ages sold as well as the week before, due to aggressive buyong on the part of both Southern and Eastern interests.

A rather large supply of small common range horses found the going difficult, demand for this class being limited because of high feed prices. Fat range mares and good geldings, on the other hand, received good support.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $120@150; medium to good draft $90@110; good to choice chunks, $95@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $70@90; young farm mares, $90@115; Southern mares, $50@85; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, $80@125; colt mules, small, $50@75; draft mules, $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice, cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules, over 3 years old, $45@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCKYARDS.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Raw sugar was steady and unchanged today at 3.00c for spots, with no sales reported.

There was little variation in futures and aside from one transaction of a block of 219 lots, or 10,950 tons at 2.21c in the spot No. 1, unchanged from the previous close, there was very little trading.

Operators generally were inclined to limit new commitments, pending labor conditions in Cuba over the week-end.

Undertone was steady, reflecting firmness of shares. Final quotations were unchanged in the No. 1 and unchanged to one point lower in the No. 3. Sales in the former totaled 13,400 tons and in the latter only 1000 tons.

March No. 1 closed at 2.06c, July at 2.16c and December 2.27c. Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.30 to 4.50c for fine granulated with only moderate inquiry reported.

SECURITIES, COTTON AND GRAINS OFF DURING WEEK

Wall Street Has Spell of Inflation-Deflation Fears on Price Level-Debt Burden Comment and Break in British Exchange Rate.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9. — The old familiar twin bogey-men, inflation and deflation, stalked across the financial scene again this week and left the usual plague of jitters in their wake.

Traders and investors had no sooner finished grappling with a wide-open break in the pound sterling, with its usual unsettling effects on all financial markets, than a chance remark of President Roosevelt, it now appears erroneously, was interpreted in many Wall street quarters as foreshadowing a further nearby reduction in the gold content of the dollar.

The net result was to create enough uncertainty and confusion so that offerings of stocks, bonds and the leading staples were more than ample to offset timid bids. Stocks ended the week a point or so lower net. Wheat and corn got down, and cotton was soft during most of the week.

Even Government securities and the best grade corporate liens, consistently strong for weeks, gave ground. Federal obligations had a good rally on the announcement early in the week of the Treasury's March financing plans. With long-term refunding bonds bearing the lowest interest rates in the history of the republic, at 2⅞ per cent. Net losses were the rule by the close of the week, however, as the wave of uncertainty swept over the market.

Steel operations halted their downward trend of several weeks' duration, and carloadings made a slightly better than seasonal recovery in the latest reported week from the low levels created by the Washington's birthday holiday.

Reports Out During Week.

Automobile production and sales reports for the industry and General Motors covering February appeared during the week. Swift & Co., packing concern, registered a $43,000,000 refunding bond issue, the largest so far proposed under the Securities Act. The bonds are to bear 3¾ per cent interest, the smallest coupon rate on a corporate offering in several decades, further reflecting the extreme ease of the money market.

Rail stocks and bonds gave ground more readily than the balance of the list. Poor earnings results for many roads, now coming to light, did nothing to help an already difficult situation as regards the confidence of the investor in rail securities.

Monetary Question to Fore.

Prices sagged in the two-hour session at week-end and Wall street nerves appeared a little jumpy.

The monetary question came to the fore again as sterling turned weak, losing around 3 cents in relation to the dollar in late dealings. European nervousness over the increasingly serious Balkan troubles, coupled with the recent run-up in the British currency, were believed in exchange circles to have made it a target for liquidation and short selling.

Stock prices were mostly reactionary. Government obligations were steady to a shade improved.

The mining issues were able to better the performance of the general list to gain fractions to around a point or so, while the high-priced Homestake lifted a full 5 points. The recent advance in the price of gold in the London open market encouraged those following the group. Copper shares were fractionally easy despite the presence here of a delegation of European producers' representatives who will confer next week on a plan to curtail production of the red metal outside the United States.

Although there was a general hesitancy to make new commitments on the part of most traders, there did not appear to be any disposition to press offerings on the market. Volume was fairly small for the short trading period at 288,090 shares, and evening-up of accounts over the week-end produced a fair sprinkling of plus signs among the list of leaders at the close. The Associated Press average for 60 stocks declined .2 of a point to 36.4.

Carriers Are Down.

As usual, commodities were a little more sensitive to disturbances in the foreign exchange market than were securities. Wheat declined ¼ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel, corn by about the same amount and cotton by 80 cents to $1.30 a bale. Rubber futures, responsive as always to movements of the pound sterling, lost .13 to .18 of a cent a pound.

Carrier shares bore the brunt of the day's offerings. While there were no immediate new developments, those who follow the fortunes of the rails most closely continued to point to the poor earnings showing being made by latest monthly figures, and the fact that the volume of freight movement is currently below a year ago. With a 5 per cent wage increase scheduled for April 1, increasing misgivings as to profit prospects for the group as a whole were being expressed in some Wall street quarters.

Among trading leaders which ended the day lower by minor fractions to a half point or so were U. S. Steel at 30⅞, American Can at 116¾, Westinghouse at 36, Consolidated Gas at 17, Chrysler at 33⅜, General Motors at 28⅜, Santa Fe at 39, International Harvester at 37½, and Baltimore & Ohio at 8⅝. Union Pacific, one of the high-priced rails, lost 1¼ points at 86¾.

U. S. TREASURY POSITION.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The position of the Treasury on March 7 was: Receipts, $18,905,223.12; expenditures, $20,048,099.83; net balance, $2,048,001,041.97; customs receipts for the month, $6,974,325.94. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $2,356,391,847.51; expenditures, $4,661,480,021.18 (including $2,417,611,631.28 of emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures, $2,305,088,173.67; gold assets, $8,545,829,973.93. Receipts for March 7, 1934 (comparable date last year), $113,629,074.02; expenditures, $121,169,353.16; net balance, $4,854,365,527.90; customs receipts for the month, $5,400,502.27. Receipts for the fiscal year, $1,971,450,321.41; expenditures, $4,375,796,159.30, including $2,503,847,277.65 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $2,404,345,837.89; gold assets, $7,556,200,654.25.

JANUARY EXPORT INDEX.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—United States agricultural exports are showing further decreases. According to the division of foreign crops and markets the export index on 44 leading farm products stood at 59 for January, the lowest for that month in more than two decades. For all commodities except cotton, the index dropped to 43 or less than one-half the preward level. Cotton showed the lowest January export index since 1923; wheat including flour, one of the lowest monthly exports on record; fruit, the second lowest January index since 1923; and lard, one of the lowest January indices so far recorded.

TOBACCO INDEX.

The Stich tobacco index, based on 1929 as 100, rose .7 to 124.4 last week, with loose leaf Burley tobacco averaging 16.3 cents a pound, against 16.2 cents in the preceding week and 9.4 cents a pound in the same week last year.

GROCERY TRADE SURVEY.

Dun & Bradstreet says in a special survey of the grocery trade that the volume of sales now exceeds that of the same period last year by 10 to 15 per cent on a tonnage basis and 20 to 25 per cent on a dollar basis. One reason for the sustained increase, the survey says, is constantly mounting prices, which have spurred consumers to lay in supplies for the future.

ACTIVE COTTON FUTURES LOWEST SINCE NOVEMBER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Cotton was weak today with new crop months leading the decline. Active months declined to the lowest levels since last November. The market closed barely steady at net declines of 16 to 26 points.

The selling was attributed to uncertainty regarding Government loans for the 1935 crop and the production control program. Other bearish influences was rumor of large fertilizer sales and continued dullness in cloth markets.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 58,000 bales, against 140,000 last year.

Spot quiet; middling, 12.30.

Up to this time last year, production amounted to only 345,166 tons, or 15.2 per cent of the total out-turn of 2,274,303 tons.

Transit revenues for the week ended March 2, as reported by a representative group of companies were slightly less than the preceding week, according to "Transit Journal," whose index stood at 99.10 against 99.73 for the week ended Feb. 23.

A plan for reorganization of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Co., proposed by Jacob J. Lesser, as attorney for the Stockholders' Protective Committee, will be submitted to creditors and stockholders at the Federal Courthouse in Buffalo, N. Y., on April 8, it was announced today.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Favorable dividend changes in the past week numbered 29 against 35 in the previous week, according to the Standard Statistics Co., unfavorable changes numbered 9 against 13 in the previous period.

SHARP DECLINES IN EXPORTS OF U. S. FARM PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Continuation of the sharp decline in American exports of farm products was reported today by the Bureau of Agriculture Economics.

It said farm shipments during January slipped to the lowest point in more than 20 years, the index dropping to 57 compared with 62 in December and 93 in January, 1934. The pre-war level of shipments is used as 100 in the index.

January exports of wheat and flour, including flour milled from Canadian wheat, totaled 1310 bushels, one of the smallest monthly figures on record.

Cotton exports during January were 486,000 bales compared with 782,000 bales in January, 1934.

All products except fruits were exported in less than pre-war volume in January. The indices were: Grain and grain products, 17; animal products, 33; dairy products and eggs, 69; fruit, 189; wheat and flour, 14; tobacco, 97; hams and bacon, 18, and lard, 45.

The large shipments of fruits were attributed to heavy importations by France under the quota system which she began relaxing in favor of the United States about a year ago.

MILL FEED FUTURES MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 9.—Millfeed futures were irregular in another dull session Saturday. Closing price changes for local deliveries were: Bran, steady to 30c lower; gray shorts steady. For Chicago deliveries: Bran, 10c higher to 30c lower; standard middlings, 5@10c lower. Sales totaled 400 tons.

GRAIN MARKET LOSES GROUND AT WEEK-END

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, March 9.—Prospects as Argentine corn movement into this country were discussed in trade and with lower securities and cotton markets, prices of wheat and corn turned lower on the local market today. Corn showed the wider range.

Liverpool wheat had a narrow range, closing ⅛d up to ¼d off after opening ⅛ to ¼d higher.

Winnipeg wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c lower and closed ¼@½c lower.

MATERIAL SETBACK TO GRAIN AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Swayed largely by tumbling prices in the cotton market, grain values underwent material setbacks today.

Bearish action of securities at New York contributed to weakness of grains, and so, too, did prospective larger imports of corn from Argentina. Wheat, however, showed considerable resistance to selling, and there was some buying of this grain against sales of corn.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛@⅝ compared with yesterday's finish, May 95½@⅝, corn unchanged to 1⅛ down, May 81@81⅛; oats, ⅛@½ off, and provisions showing 5 to 25 cents decline.

With scattered liquidating sales a feature in all the grain pits, trade sentiment expressed was distinctly more pessimistic than has been the case of late. Corn led the price downturns of cereals, and in most instances failed to display power to rally. Professional traders were persistent sellers of corn, and there was evidence of hedging sales against purchases of Argentine corn.

Uncertainty in regard to continuance of Government loans next season on the cotton crop suggested doubt as to crop loan policy concerning corn, but apparently was not given much attention. More notice was directed to the fact that United States imports of corn and oats for six months have totaled well up in millions of bushels, whereas a year ago they were virtually nil.

To the surprise of many traders, anxiety expressed in certain quarters over reports of alarming war complications in Europe failed entirely as a grain market stimulus. Forecasts of rain or snow in domestic wheat territory proved more than an offset for dust storms that had prevailed west and northwest and were extending into Canada.

Provisions gave way with grains.

CASH GRAIN ELSEWHERE

CHICAGO, March 9.—Wheat, No. 2 dark hard $1.04½; No. 2 red, 97½c; corn, No. 3 mixed 86¼c mainly white; No. 3 yellow 83¾c; No. 3 white 88½c; oats, No. 3 white 50@51¾c; no rye; barley 68c@$1.20; timothy seed $16.75@18 cwt; clover seed $15.50@20.15 cwt.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ¼c lower. There was little offered and the demand for ordinary quality wheat was slow. Choice grain sold readily. Elevators showed the most interest. Hard wheat was nominally ½c lower. Nothing was offered. Inquiry was light. Corn was 1c lower. A fairly active demand cleared the somewhat smaller receipts. Mills, feeders, elevators and industries were in the market. Oats were unchanged. Offerings were light and the demand was good. Mills, shippers and elevators were the buyers.

Local wheat receipts which were 18,000 bu., compared with 18,000 a week ago and 32,200 a year ago included 9 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, which were 45,000 bu., compared with 73,500 a week ago and 54,000 a year ago, included 22 cars local and 8 through. Oats receipts which were 38,000 bu., compared with 24,000 a week ago and 8000 a year ago included 8 cars local and 11 through. Hay receipts were 1 car through.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 9.—The United States dollar opened at 4.78¼ to the pound today and strengthened gradually to close at 4.77¾ for a gain of 1⅛ cents. Yesterday's closing price was 4.78⅞. Sterling weakened also with relation to other gold issues on a quiet market.

The French franc was firmer, closing at 71.50, as against 71.86 yesterday.

BERLIN, March 9.—The United States dollar sold today at 2.46 marks (40.65 cents to the mark) as compared with yesterday's quotation of 2.457 marks (40.70 cents to the mark).

PARIS, March 9.—The United States dollar closed today at 14.9875 francs (6.674 cents to the franc) as compared with yesterday's close of 14.9925 francs (6.669 cents to the franc).

NEW YORK, March 9.—Another sharp slump in the British pound sterling upset Foreign Exchange markets today.

Increasing seriousness of the Balkan war situation and the recent substantial advance in the British currency were believed to have invited both profit taking and short selling during the short session of all markets.

In London the dollar gained 1⅛ cents, closing at 4.77¾ to the pound sterling and in New York the British unit later extended the decline to 2¾ cents, ending at $4.75, the low of the day.

In Paris the dollar was steady at an equivalent of 6.673 cents to the franc and in New York francs were .01 of a cent higher at 6.68 cents. Other leading gold units, including Dutch guilders and Swiss francs also were higher in terms of both sterling and guilders.

Based on the franc at its final New York rate the dollar was at a discount of 70-100ths of 1 per cent, compared with 54-100ths on Friday and a premium of 69-100ths a month ago.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—With the exception of tin, non-ferrous metals ruled steady in moderate trading last week.

Sharply irregular fluctuations in sterling exchange had their direct reflection in tin quotations here, but mid-week losses in the metal price had been almost completely recovered as the week closed.

Interest in copper centered in the arrival here on Friday of leading European producers, who are expected to confer immediately on a world copper marketing agreement. Although officials have remained non-committal, the impending conference was reflected by a slightly steadier European market on moderate business.

The domestic Blue Eagle price remained unchanged at 9 cents, although buying picked up moderately in the past day or so. Reported sales thus far in March are about 7000 tons.

After a few offerings had been absorbed at slight concessions at the opening of the week, a $3 a ton advance in zinc reported in the previous week was generally established. Although demand tapered off, smelters which had booked a large business a week earlier on announcement of curtailment plans, were not pressing offerings.

Demand for lead was irregularly distributed, but smelters were said to have been able to meet daily ore intake either on new business received or against old orders. Prices were unchanged.

Antimony was quiet, with prices unchanged. Business was of a small filling-in character.

Steel operations were steady, at around 48½ per cent of capacity, following a declining trend in the two preceding weeks. The automobile industry furnished a large proportion of the orders, while miscellaneous buyers were said to be less inclined to make forward commitments. However, the trade was hopeful that seasonal improvement in outside work would lead to railroad and structural orders.

GOVERNMENT BONDS STEADY AT WEEK-END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—With the exception of steadiness in United States Government obligations, the bond market idled away its short session today without getting anywhere.

Investment circles were cheered at the lack of pressure in the Government list and this lent encouragement to some loans in the industrial and utility section which showed fractional improvement under light demand. Most of the treasury issues weer 2-32nds to 8-32nds higher at the close and nearly that much improvement was shown by Liberties and indirect obligations.

The persistent downward trend in railroad securities was halted, temporarily at least, but there was little enthusiasm for accumulating these bonds excvept in isolated cases. Pennnsylvania general 4½s were ¾ higher at 106⅞, Erie 5s gained ½ at 59½, and N. Y. Central 5s were ¼ higher at 54½. Declines were shown by Soutnern Railway 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s and Northern Pacific 4s.

In other divisions, the best showing was made by utilities. North American 5s gained 1½ points at 88, Consolidated Gas 5½s were ¼ higher at 106¼, and moderate improvement was shown by Federal Light & Traction 5s and Laclede Gas 5s. Among a handful of industrials improving were United Drug 5s and Youngstown Tube 5s. The Associated Press averages were .1 of a point higher to .1 of a point lower.

The foreign section was quiet and without feature. Some improvement occurred in British dominions bonds.

Transfers aggregated $7,461,000, par value, compared with $6,563,000 last Saturday.

CURB PRICES ARE MIXED IN WEEK-END TRADING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—In dull trading, the curb market finished the week today with prices slightly mixed. Dealings generally were without feature.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol "B" dipped 2 points, while other liquor shares were quiet. Dow Chemical lost a point. Fractional recessions appeared in Humble Oil, Technicolor, Lake Shore and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, while steadiness prevailed in Swift International, American Cyanamid "B," Hollinger, Wright Hargreaves and International Petroleum.

Transfers dwindled to 51,000 shares compared with 121,000 a week ago.

Gertrude Stein Writes Her None Too High Opinion Of American Newspapers

The Difference Between the Reader's Wants and What He Thinks They Are—The Effect of Comics.

By GERTRUDE STEIN.

WHAT do they want to know in the newspapers that is what does anybody want to know just anybody and do they want to know what they do want to know or do they only think so only think they want to know what they do want to know from the newspapers because if they do if they only think so then they do get what they want. What they want or think they want to know what they want in the newspapers is to know every day what happened the day before and so get the feeling that it has happened on that day the same day and not the day before. That is what the American newspaper is supposed to do to make it be as if they the newspapers had it to do that is to make the things that happened yesterday happen to-day.

And do they do so.

Not if you know it not if anybody knows it that it all did happen the day before.

Think of any news that is fit to print it all did happen the day before and once it is the day before it might just as well be the week before or the month before or the year before if you really do know that it was not on that day the newspaper day that it happened but on the day before. It always has happened on the day before because the newspaper cannot come out on the day it happens, of course it cannot.

The Yellow Press.

When the yellow press began, I can remember when the yellow press began that was about 35 years ago or so. Anybody knows what the yellow press did. The yellow press that is really the American press then had in every way by headlines by scare lines, by short lines and by long lines, by making all the noise and sound they could with their words and lines tried to invent in every way they could making it be as if the news that had happened on one day had happened not on that one day but on the day the newspaper day. And they did and they did do it they almost did do it and they almost made it come to be that what happened six hours earlier was what happened six hours later. They did just that.

And now what do they do the newspaper now do, they go on as if they still were doing just that but slowly they only act as if they were doing just that acting as if it were today the newspaper day that everything happened and not yesterday. They have forgotten newspapers have they have forgotten to act as if it were like that as if yesterday was today, they have once more fallen into the fact the real fact that the news that they put in the newspapers was yesterdays news and so it is flat the news is flat just that or they still keep on using the way that the yellow press invented to make yesterdays news be as if happened to-day in the newspapers to-day.

The Dionne "Quintettes."

Some country newspapers, by country I mean twenty or thirty thousand inhabitants in a city, do make yesterdays news be to-days, because everybody knows everybody and so they the newspapers make yesterdays or last weeks news sound like to-day. That is because everybody knows everybody knows about everybody every day, and as they all know all the streets in the town and all the people in the town any news is such real news that even if it happened yesterday it is as if it did really happen to-day so that is what they say and so it all really happens the news in the small town newspaper happens as if it happened to-day. The other news they accept as if it had happened any past day preferably yesterday but really any past day.

There was a strange thing about that in the story of the birth of the quintettes and their doctor coming to New York.

That interested the reader of the metropolitan paper as if it had been the news of a small town paper. I watched some reading this metropolitan paper and they read the paper in their way but they did not settle down to reading their newspaper as if it were a real story of a real happening and a real present happening until they came to the story of the quintettes, that and the cross word puzzle was the only solid satisfaction in the metropolitan newspaper that made like a small town newspaper a real happening of to-day as to-day is as any one can say it in saying it as any one can know in knowing it.

Existing and Exciting.

Now the big newspaper the big city newspaper cannot do that, they cannot do that unless something is most terribly exciting and by terribly exciting it can only be

Who's Who of The Author

GERTRUDE STEIN, who finds it an exciting job to put words together for a sometimes puzzled public, has written a series of six articles which will appear in the Post-Dispatch and a group of other American newspapers. The subject of the first article, published today, is "American Newspapers."

Miss Stein told her recent St. Louis audience, a capacity gathering in the Wednesday Club auditorium, that Chaucer got his chief excitement from "putting words next to each other, long words next to each other, short words next to each other." Shakespeare derived excitement from the same activity in his time, she assured her hearers. And it was perfectly evident that she found a great stimulation, amounting even to a kick, in putting together the words of her selection.

As her hearers found out, and as readers of her articles will note, Miss Stein puts the same words together very frequently. She is none of your condensationists, who would compress an hour's discourse into 10 minutes. The very reverse, in fact. Like the successful preacher of tradition, she tells her audience what she is going to tell them, and then she tells them, and then she tells them what she has told them.

When it is all told, it may not have covered much ground, but it is likely to have left at least the germ of an idea on one or two major matters. In her lecture on "English Literature," Miss Stein did not quote from the authors she named, did not indicate whether they had written prose, poetry, drama or limericks; but she did say some things that might lead to a profitable study of their style and subject matter.

Miss Stein is 61 years old, and has been known to the world of literature since her book, "Tender Buttons," appeared 20 years ago. A native of Alleghany, Pa., she has lived more than one-half her life in Paris. Her life in the international artistic and literary colony there is described in her two most recent books, "Matisse, Picasso and Gertrude Stein," and "Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas." Miss Toklas, whose "autobiography" is in reality a story of episodes in Miss Stein's life, is the author's secretary.

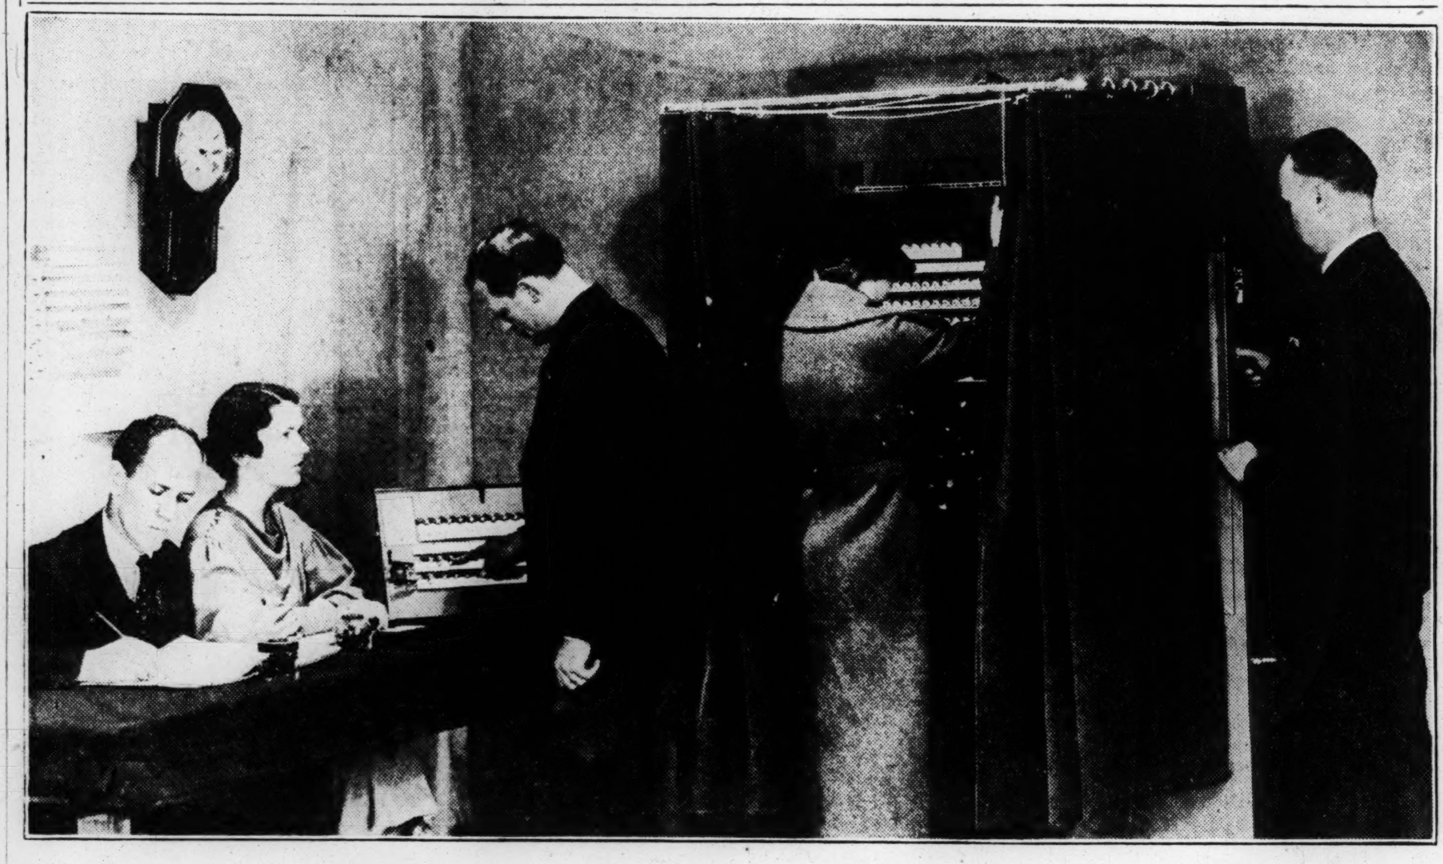
Other books by Miss Stein are, "Acquaintance With Description," "Lucy Church Amiably," "How to Write," and "Before the Flowers of Friendship Faded Friendship Faded."

One of the best-known lines of her writings is that which affirms that "A rose is a rose is a rose," with further repetitions of the factual statement. Her opera, "Four Saints in Three Acts," produced in 1933, contained such passages as: "It is very easy to love alone. Too much too much. They are very sweetly very sweetly Henry very sweetly Rene very sweetly many very sweetly. There are very sweetly many very sweetly Rene very sweetly there are many very sweetly."

Punctuation marks, Miss Stein explained in her St. Louis lecture, destroy the continuity of a paragraph. And she insists that she does know how to write paragraphs, having learned the art from Henry James. The writings of Henry James, who died in 1916, are examples of highly polished literary work, in which the meaning is not always clear nor the narrative interest uniformly sustained.

Voting Machines How They Work in Philadelphia

Scene in a Philadelphia Polling Place



They Give Full Returns in a Large City Within an Hour After Polls Close. Virtually Eliminate Contests and Are Difficult to Manipulate Improperly.

THIS is the first of two articles dealing with improvement of election procedure in Missouri. The second will be on permanent registration and will describe the system used in Detroit, which results in substantial economies as well as discouragement of fraud and irregularities. Measures providing for both voting machines and permanent registration were introduced this year in the Legislature at Jefferson City. The voting machine measure was killed in committee, but the permanent registration measure, which would apply to St. Louis, is still pending.

In this connection, a recent significant warning to the State may be recalled. Russell F. Greiner, foreman of a Jackson County grand jury, said in an interview in the Post-Dispatch last Dec. 9, in which he was discussing the Pendergast political machine: "Such legislation is not only necessary to aid this city but to save other sections of the State from being virtually disfranchised through the rolling up of huge majorities of mythical votes, as has been done here in Kansas City."

By SAMUEL J. SHELTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE voting machine has been used since its introduction 40 years ago as an instrumentality of cleaner elections in nearly 3000 American municipalities and has won favor in some of the country's largest cities.

This mechanized ballot box represents a major reform in voting and is hailed by its ardent advocates as an infallible guardian of an honest count, economizer of public funds, and protector of government against the sordid consequences of rule by a corrupt political machine.

Some failures are charged up against the voting machine; it has been abandoned in places for reasons that will be explained here, but the list of cities using it continues to grow.

One of the larger cities that has in recent years completely equipped its polling places with voting machines is Philadelphia, formerly home of a notorious political machine.

Mechanical Device Gives Protection to Ballot.

Surveying the experience of Philadelphia with voting machines, talking with election officials and political leaders, this writer found a surprising acceptance of the mechanical device for casting and counting ballots, a feeling that to a greater extent than ever before every voter was protected in his right to cast one ballot and have that ballot counted as cast.

Election returns that show uniform and almost unanimous votes for favored candidates of a political combination that controls a ward or precincts, as does Jimmie Miller's outfit in the Fourth Ward of St. Louis, are said to be unheard of where mechanical voting machines are used.

Philadelphia Election Bureau officials are satisfied the machines have demonstrated their accuracy and reliability; that they have practically eliminated fraudulent voting and counting; that voters soon learn to operate them and find voting on them easier than by means of large paper ballots. They are not so sure of the economy; the machines are expensive to buy and their use involves certain other substantial continuing charges.

Number of Machines Required for a City.

The City of Philadelphia coincides territorially with the County of Philadelphia and elections are conducted by an election bureau which is an agency of the Board of County Commissioners. There are three commissioners and they are elected every four years.

Use of voting machines was authorized by a State law enacted in 1929. The city at once purchased several machines which were first used in an election in 1930. Not until the general election of 1934 were all of the 1283 voting divisions equipped with machines. The divisions are arranged so as to contain not fewer than 500 registered voters each, but some have considerably more. Ordinarily one voting machine serves a division, but where there are more than 600 registered voters a second machine must be provided.

Philadelphia's Outlay $2,281,000 for Machines.

With a population of approximately 2,000,000, Philadelphia has more than 700,000 registered voters and in the 1934 election it cast 675,000 votes for candidates for Governor. All these votes were recorded on machines without any material difficulty and the returns from the whole city, recorded on mechanical counters, were available within about an hour after the polls closed.

To take care of the requirements of all voting precincts, including those which have more than 600 registered voters, the city has purchased 2000 machines at a total cost of $2,281,000, or an average price of $1140. Smaller machines can be had at a lower price, but they would not handle the large number of candidates usually found on a Philadelphia ballot.

For a general election the Philadelphia machines will handle 50 candidates on each of nine party tickets, a total of 450 names. Since there are usually few candidates in the minor parties, it is possible in primaries to rearrange the space on the machines to accommodate the greater number of candidates in the two predominant parties.

How to Vote Straight or Split Ticket.

Two types of machines are used in Philadelphia, 1500 of one and 500 of the other. Both operate in much the same way, but each has its special features. On one type the names of candidates are placed in a horizontal row across the face of the machine, with the party designation at the left. The voter may vote a straight party ticket by pulling a lever over the party label, or he may vote for individual candidates from various parties by moving down a small lever that appears over each name.

Whether Mechanical Devices Result in Large Savings Is Still Open to Question—Most Cities That Tried and Abandoned Them Installed Them 25 or 30 Years Ago.

When a straight party ticket is voted all levers over names in that row are automatically moved down. If the voter wishes to scratch his ticket, he may turn back as many of the pulled levers as he wishes and pull down others for corresponding offices on other tickets. But the machine will not permit him to vote for two persons for the same office, except where two or more are to be elected, and then he can vote for only as many as are to be elected. Even in the case of an indorsed candidate whose name appears on two or more party tickets each voter may record only one vote.

Voters Are Enabled to Correct Mistakes.

The other type of machine has the names of candidates arranged in vertical rows, with the party label at the top, and the office designation at the left. This arrangement has an appearance similar to that of the usual blanket ballot. On this machine, also, voting is done by moving levers, a large one for a straight ticket and small ones opposite each name for individual voting. On this machine the moving of a lever causes a cross mark to appear in a small square at the side of the name, giving visible evidence that the particular candidate has been voted for.

On both machines the voter may correct his ballot up to the time he is ready to leave. If he sees he has pulled down a lever over the wrong name, he may replace it and pull another. Before he can leave the enclosure formed by curtains around the machine, he must move a lever that opens the curtains and causes his vote to be recorded as indicated.

Public Counter in Plain View at All Times.

Many protective devices are found on both machines. One is a public counter, in plain view at all times. It must be set at zero before the polls open and thereafter it counts each voter who uses the machine. Then there is a "protective counter," built into the machine so that it cannot be changed. It also counts each voter who uses the machine. Before the polls open the number that it shows must be noted, and at the end of the day it serves as a check on the public counter.

After a voter has used a machine, an election official must operate a release before another voter can use it. And before the release can be operated the voter who has just used the machine must open the curtains surrounding it. This is to prevent a voter from operating the machine more than once.

Of course, a voter is not permitted to use a machine unless he is properly registered. He must identify himself and be checked off and numbered on the record. The machine is no protection against fraudulent registration. It cannot discriminate between voters properly or improperly permitted to use it.

The counters which register the votes for individual candidates are concealed while the voting is in progress. They cannot be seen until the machine is locked against further voting, an operation which also locks the counters. On one machine, final results are read off at the back and are identified by key

Head of National Manufacturers Says Administration's 20-Month Recovery Effort Has Been a Failure

Sees No Reason to Believe It Will Succeed, So Recommends Attempt at Once to Restore 'Normal Operation of Business System.'

By Robert L. Lund,
Chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers.
THIRD AND LAST ARTICLE.
(Copyright, 1935.)

FOR the first time in our history, systematic governmental efforts have been made to bring about recovery from depression. A fair appraisal of the efforts to manage recovery must lead to a conclusion that, on the whole, the measures adopted have not attained their objective in any appreciable degree.

Further:

They have involved the expenditure of tremendous sums of money, adding to the public debt and to taxes—

They have necessitated the setting up of bureaucratic organizations employing many people, at great expense, and involving the grave dangers always inherent in bureaucratic direction of business and social affairs—

In many directions these activities have gone contrary to those business traditions and practices which have made our country great, and therefore, to this extent—

They tend to destroy the best business system the world has ever known.

Granting that the purposes of those responsible for these activities are upon a high plane of idealism and patriotism, the experience of the last 20 months has shown that the plans are seriously lacking in practicality.

The inevitable conclusion must be that, without delay, every effort should be directed toward restoring the normal operation of our American business system. It is a system which, during more than a century, has produced the highest standard of living, the most equitable division of national production (as shown in an earlier article), and the greatest opportunities for individual accomplishment in all history.

Past and Present Methods.

Past depressions have been permitted to take their course to a level where business could operate safely, then revival has come. Under President Roosevelt, a vigorous, resourceful attack upon depression was launched on two fronts:

First—To ease the burden of debt; and,

Second—To stimulate and guide recovery in business.

Under first category, above, are two sub-divisions:

1. To relieve debtors and the unemployed, five major agencies were set up; the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, Farm Credit Administration, Home Owners' Relief Corporation, Federal Deposit and Insurance Corporation and Reorganized Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Between February, 1932, and November, 1934, these agencies expended $8,165 000,000. Most of the rest of total appropriations of 14 billions have been allotted.

A multitude of corporations, large and small, and individual property owners have been saved from bankruptcy and from actual physical distress by these agencies which have served to support and stabilize the business and social structure of the country.

2. The second effort to relieve the debt burden was by devaluation of the currency; objective, to raise prices by lowering the value of the dollar.

Exports have been stimulated. Imports have been restricted. By gradual stages domestic prices will advance. This will be to the advantage of the holders of commodities or other property. But the real value of wages and salaries will be reduced. A general readjustment extending over a considerable period will be necessary.

The Recovery Program.

A disturbing influence is that the gold value of the dollar is not finally fixed. This causes uncertainty regarding future commitments, both domestic and foreign. This is a grave obstacle to the development and expansion of business activity.

Turn now to efforts to stimulate and guide recovery on four fronts.

1. THE NRA. It attempted to create buying power by increasing wages, to spread work by reducing hours; to strengthen bargaining powers of the workers. Child labor was abolished. To accomplish its objectives, the act lifted from industry the restrictions of the anti-trust laws.

Industry co-operated loyally. More than 1,500,000 employers voluntarily signed the President's re-employment agreement, thus pledging to live up to the conditions of the act.

Twenty months' experience, however, show that the act has not served appreciably to stimulate recovery.

Child labor already, prior to the NRA, had been reduced from 1,000,000 in 1900 to approximately 70,000. Anti-trust relief helped business, in some degree, to control unsound and destructive trade practices. In some industries the effect has been highly beneficial.

On the other hand, the effect of shorter hours and higher wages was to advance prices more rapidly than purchasing power. Higher prices—caused by increased costs—throttled sales. Result: Even with shorter hours, employment could not be increased.

By no possibility could there have been success in the attempt to fix minimum wages by rigid rule, varying for different sections, localities and community sizes. The result has been inequitable — injurious in some places, unfairly advantageous in others.

Small businesses, so many of which had paid the lower wages justified by low living costs in the communities in which they are located—and thus were able to survive in competition with more efficient bigger businesses—have in many cases suffered under the NRA because this advantage is wiped out.

Effect on Labor.

Labor leaders hoped ardently that the labor clause would make possible countrywide organization and an immediate aggressive campaign launched. Result: Strikes involving millions of workers, with direct cost of more than one billion dollars, and greater indirect cost.

Unfortunately, this strike tide rose in 1934. More than 13,000,000 work days were lost by strikers in the first 10 months of 1933; the figure was 50 per cent greater, 19,685,000 days, in the similar period of 1934. Two-thirds of these strikes were for union recognition—as compared with less than 10 per cent for that cause in England.

Our workers never have strongly favored national labor unions, whose top enrollment has been about 10 per cent of the industrial employes. Their membership in 1920 was more than 4,000,000. It is 2,600,000 now.

In industry, the interests of workers, management and investors are identical—except in division of earnings. Real wages have increased four-fold in a century. The workers' share of the national income has increased more rapidly than that of the management or investors.

If industry's job is well done, all three groups profit. If it is not well done, all go down together. These obvious truths point to the only sound plan for dealings b tween management and work

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Campaign to Prevent Accidents.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE agitation over accidents on the highways and the publicity given to comparative statistics showing increasing casualties, cause me to write to explain what the Missouri State Highway Department is now doing to protect the automobile driving public.

The Missouri State Highway Department is installing flashing neon highway signals all over the State at dangerous intersections. It is the first one in the United States to start this movement on a wide scale.

Near St. Louis these signals, operating day and night, are installed at the intersections of Manchester and Lindbergh; Ladue and Lindbergh and Pennsylvania and Page boulevard, and have cut down accidents and have created very favorable comment among the driving public.

In justice to the Missouri State Highway Department, the public should be informed that it has made a survey of all of the more dangerous highway intersections in the State, approximately 167 in number, and is proceeding to mark these intersections with the latest flashing warning signals as fast as it is able to appropriate funds for the purpose.

The proof of the efficiency and efficacy of this safety plan is that inquiries are coming into Jefferson City from the highway departments of other states, asking for information as to the plan of operation and type of signals in use here.

Rules for Bondsmen.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITH reference to the matter of bondsmen being accepted without proper qualification: I notice the Legislature will do nothing. Therefore, I suggest that a list of so-called professional bondsmen be compiled, together with the following information about them: the assessed valuation of their property, minus incumbrances, if any; defaults, if any, and the amount for which they are on bonds. This information should then be given to all our Judges and, if they then accept a bondsman not properly qualified, publication of that fact would be one way of diminishing crime.

F. A. HUGO.

Complains of Music Bill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A BILL is now before the Legislature requiring every teacher of music in the schools of Missouri to have at least one year of college work, regardless of his musical qualifications. Such a law would eliminate from the musical profession the very best teachers in the State of Missouri—such men as Carl Busch, who is recognized the world over and whose compositions are played by all the great symphony orchestras. Such renowned artists of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra as Mr. Guidi, concert master; Joseph Gustat, first trumpet; Mr. Zotterelli, first clarinet, and Mr. Steindel, first cello, would have to take back seats in favor of teachers who had had a few hours of college work even though they might not be competent to fill engagements in any professional band or orchestra. Joseph Maddy, director of music at the University of Michigan, is a national authority and has done more for the advancement of music in America than all the so-called educators put together, although he has only a high school education.

A law basing the requirements for a certificate to teach music in Missouri on the teachers' musical training and teaching ability would be welcomed by the profession. Many states have such a law.

MRS. A. D.

No Doubt.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN a young man receives a license to practice law and hangs out a shingle, he considers himself an "attorney and counselor at law," and is so recognized. When he gets to the point that he has a few clients and handles a case now and then with the assistance of someone more experienced, he becomes an "attorney at law." When he gets to where he has some real ability, can think with his own mind and stand on his own feet, he then becomes a "lawyer."

When you state editorially that 33 of the members of the House Judiciary Committee are "lawyers," you compliment quite a few of them highly.

GEORGE E. DUEMLER

A Letter From Justice Holmes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A FEW years ago, I had occasion to write Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes. I was interested to find out as to whether his father, the poet, in his well-known "One-Hoss Shay" had intended to symbolize human life, which runs about 100 years and then collapses. Although a busy member of the Supreme Court, he yet found time to reply at once, in his beautiful script, as follows:

"Many inquiries seem to be made as to possible symbolical interpretations of my father's poem which I can no more answer than anyone else. It may very well be that an author, after he has written something, thinks of parallels, but I think it more likely that while writing the 'One-Hoss Shay,' my father simply was amusing himself with logic."

S. F. ROSENHEIM.

COURAGEOUS MR. KURN.

The morale of railroad men in the United States would have been stiffened had they heard the testimony given in St. Louis last week by James M. Kurn, one of the co-trustees of the Frisco.

Mr. Kurn was called to the stand in an investigation of financial practices which plunged the Frisco into receivership. He was president of the road when the receivership began, and he is still in charge of its operation.

Mr. Kurn's is not a happy role. He was made president of the Frisco by the bankers who controlled the system, the people who presumably hoped to regain control after reorganization. It therefore required courage on Mr. Kurn's part to testify as frankly as he did. He said he was told at the outset that he was to operate the Frisco and the bankers would take care of its finances. He did operate the Frisco. He made it an excellent and profitable property, but the bankers ran it into debt by pouring always more and more water into its financial structure. So Mr. Kurn was compelled to admit at last that, free from this banking control, he could take the Frisco and make a paying property of it.

There is nothing new in the Frisco revelations. They are all of a piece with similar revelations in American railroading from the days when the Goulds, Fisks and Drews made free with other people's money and sent one railroad after another to the block. The bankers behind the Frisco followed the common practice of American railroad finance. Their game was to overload the railroad with debt, to squeeze dividends out of it until the road was dry, and then to reorganize it. In reorganizing it, they meant to freeze out old investors and get new investors in. This is what has commonly happened in railroad reorganization. It is not peculiar to the Frisco or to the Rock Island. It is not different from what happened in the case of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, or, still back of that, the Erie.

But it was something new to hear the president of an exploited railroad tell what he thought about it. Mr. Kurn did just that. One of the complaints made by bondholders against the Frisco bankers is that they took a million dollars out of the road's resources to make up losses which they had sustained by speculating in stock of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern. E. N. Brown, Frisco board chairman, recently testified in this inquiry that four members of the board, including Mr. Kurn, had acquiesced in the purchase of this stock. Mr. Kurn testified this week that he knew nothing about it until long after the stock had been bought. He said that, had he been given an opportunity to say what he thought of taking a million dollars out of the Frisco treasury for this purpose, he would have advised against it.

It was impossible for Mr. Kurn to operate the railroad without being mindful of its finances. He had been told, in substance, not to bother about the latter, but he had been in the railroad business long enough to know that railroad finance is usually a very great peril to the well-being of a railroad. He testified that he had urged the bankers to sell the Frisco's holdings in the Rock Island at a time when the Frisco could have made a profit of $10,000,000. They did not do so. They held the stock, and the Frisco has it still. The Frisco's losses in it are approximately $10,000,000, so that the difference between the two things was about $20,000,000.

It is quite well known why the bankers did not act upon Mr. Kurn's advice. They also held a large block of Rock Island stock. They were selling it at a huge profit. Had they offered the Frisco's Rock Island stock at the time they were engaged in this operation, they would have depressed the market. This is an old racket, and it always operates to the loss of stocks left in the treasury of the railroad itself.

So it was for the Frisco. The bankers got the money. The Frisco bondholders were left holding the sack. Mr. Kurn testified that he could see no justification for the Frisco's buying stock of either the Rock Island or the Gulf, Mobile & Northern. Asked if he did not think there was something rotten in Denmark at the time these operations were made, he preferred not to be embarrassed by answering the question. He said that, had he known the Frisco was buying stock in the G. M. & N., he would, as a member of the board, have protested to the board against it. He only learned about it 16 months later, which was, in fact, when the board learned about it. It was on this occasion that the board voted $1,000,000 out of the Frisco's earnings to recoup the losses on this stock.

Few recitals in American industrialism have equaled the story Mr. Kurn told of how the Frisco was plucked by the bankers at a time when it needed its earnings to keep up the system. He said the bankers cut expenditures until the road had to close its shops. In 1930, the shops were closed 182 days, yet it was at this time the bankers were declaring dividends for 1931, when they divided $8,000,000. Mr. Kurn said people who had worked for the Frisco over many years were at that time starving. The road was using equipment unfit for service. The maintenance of the tracks declined until there were as many as 25 broken rails in a single day. The bankers were persistently squeezing him for dividends, and he in turn was squeezing savings out of the operations. They squeezed and he squeezed until the very lives of the passengers and the operators were at last imperiled by the condition of the Frisco tracks.

There was no length to which this mulcting of the Frisco did not go. The original bond issues which constitute a mortgage upon the property is supposed to be protected by a trusteeship. This trusteeship is presumed to keep the equipment of the railroad forever free and clear. Yet the Frisco bankers connived with the trusteeship to equip the Frisco with locomotives and cars already mortgaged when they were delivered to the system. This was one of the ways in which the fixed obligations of the road were constantly increased. Earnings went for dividends. New securities paid for equipment.

The Interstate Commerce Commission said in 1918 that the Frisco had no less than $100,000,000 of water in it. There are $265,000,000 in Frisco bonds outstanding. They are held by insurance companies, by banks, by 40,000 investors scattered over the United States and through 17 foreign countries.

The investors in these securities hope to keep the Frisco from being reorganized by the bankers. They hope to salvage the greater part of their investment. The reorganization plan proposed by the bankers, which would have made them the chief beneficiaries, has been rejected. There is no reorganization plan at the moment. But the investors have more than mere reorganization plans in mind. They want to sue the exploiters of the Frisco, to recover from them civilly dividends taken out of the road when they were needed for equipment. They want to recover from the bankers money lost by Frisco speculations in the stocks of other roads.

As for Mr. Kurn, the country is in debt to him. It is too bad that more railroad presidents have not his courage.

THE GOVERNOR AND CODE REFORM.

Those who are fighting the good fight for the criminal code reform bills before the Missouri Legislature will welcome the heartening words of Gov. Park in his address before the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce Friday night. The Governor said:

> No bill is more important than those intended to bring criminals to speedy justice. Fortunately, members of the Legislature have violated an established precedent and over the heads of its committee demanded an opportunity to vote on these bills. In my opinion, they will be passed.

The Governor states an unequivocal position. His words gain weight from the fact that he is a former Judge: he knows how the present outworn code handicaps the people in their war on crime. His prophecy raises the hope that the pending reform bills, thanks to the stimulating revolt in the House against the obstructionist lawyer bloc, will be passed at the present session of the Legislature. Their passage would be a fine achievement of Gov. Park's administration.

In any event, the cause represented by the bills has received tremendous impetus, and for this happy result the Governor must be awarded a considerable share of the credit. The issue is clear: the fight is between society and those who would hinder it in the performance of a clear duty. That is a fight that can end in only one way.

ANOTHER COFFIN NAIL.

In view of other recent Federal Court decisions in NRA cases, the ruling of Federal Judge Faris that Congress lacks constitutional authority to regulate private intrastate business will occasion no surprise. Like other Judges when confronted with the same issue, Judge Faris held himself bound by the clearly stated concept of the United States Supreme Court, in several notable cases, as to what does and does not constitute interstate commerce. Judge Nields in the Weirton steel case was under similar constraint.

The issues in all the NRA cases must ultimately be passed upon by the Supreme Court. Meantime, the mounting list of decisions against the Government in these cases has been a factor, along with the proved difficulties of enforcement, in the steady breakdown of the original far-flung regulatory effort of the NRA. The codes of the future, if any, will be comparatively few and comparatively simple. Judge Faris' decision is another coffin nail in the present NRA.

THE CITY'S LISTLESS PRIMARY.

In Friday's aldermanic primary, only 78,921 votes were cast, or 21.2 per cent of the registration and less than 10 per cent of the city's population. In other words, a small minority of the people, guided by political machines, determined who may run to form a majority of the legislative body in control of the municipal welfare for the next four years.

It was demonstrated that Mayor Dickmann has become the political boss of St. Louis. His mastery even went unchallenged by the redoubtable Jimmie Miller, who gave up an effort to oppose one of the Mayor's candidates.

The Republicans, who dominated St. Louis politics for a quarter of a century until they began to lose power in 1932, mustered a bare 18,000 votes for the unexciting contests on their ticket. Two veteran Republican Aldermen failed of renomination and one Democrat was defeated, spanked by the Mayor, whose revenue measures he had opposed. For the most part, the canvass by both parties fairly reeked of harmony, so anxious were the boys from the precincts to climb on the machine bandwagons.

In the three weeks remaining before the election, it is to be hoped there will be an intelligent discussion of public questions by the opposing nominees and a consequent awakening of interest among the voters.

NAZI WORD AND DEED.

Berlin, Feb. 28.—Economic pressure, it became apparent today, had forced Reichsfuehrer Hitler to abandon for the present at least the public manifestations of his anti-Jewish policy. Speakers at a meeting of Nazi leaders said that, for foreign political reasons, "the administration undertakes nothing more against the Jews."

Berlin, March 5.—A score or more of Jews, who returned to Berlin within the last few weeks in the hope the anti-Semitic campaign had abated, were promptly arrested, it was learned today. Some were released when they promised to leave the country immediately. The others are being held at police headquarters pending transfer to the "educational camp," a concentration camp as far as Jews are concerned.

HUEY LONG'S GLASS HOUSE.

Huey Long, in his radio address last week, used his choicest vituperatives to assail crop limitation. The Hoover Farm Board's plan to plow up every fourth row of cotton, the Roosevelt plan to plow up every third row, the AAA's acreage reduction program—he poured it on 'em all. Destroying cotton while people lacked clothing, he said, was not government but "St. Vitus' dance." He lamented the plight of a needy woman: "They won't allow her to raise cotton, and she wants some old clothes."

Huey has hurled a heavy stone, but he stood in a glass house when he heaved it. Has he forgotten the law he put through the Louisiana Legislature in 1931, when he was Governor? That law outlawed the planting of cotton within the State in 1932, and provided a $100 to $500 fine or 10 to 60 days' imprisonment for violation. Has he forgotten the frenzied campaign he waged through the South in 1931, seeking to persuade other legislatures to enact similar measures, to raise the price of cotton and relieve the depression? "No cotton in 1932" was his battle-cry. "It must be an entire 100 per cent prohibition against cotton planting for 1932 or nothing!" he exclaimed. But his persuasiveness failed, and the scheme was dropped.

So a few years roll around, and the author of the most drastic restriction plan to receive official backing in the depression years now is found denouncing a policy that is a mild copy of his own.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Plea for Reasonableness!

FAREWELL TO REVOLUTION. By Everett Dean Martin. (W. W. Norton & Co., New York City.)

IN this volume, Everett Dean Martin undertakes to present "a critical and realistic account of the revolutions of history" with the purpose of demolishing the Marxian dogma of economic determinism and establishing an equally dogmatic psychological determinism, social psychology being the author's specialty.

He finds "three major cycles of revolutionary activity" since the time of Solon. Each of these, though seeming to have been inspired by an ideal, he notes, has resulted in "a complete repudiation of the ideal which inspired it." Revolutions, he argues, may be occasioned but not caused by economic forces. Revolutions, in the final analysis, are simply a matter of crowd neurosis—psychopathic spells recurring spontaneously at intervals throughout history.

"Revolutionary behavior," we read, "at all times shows certain stereotyped forms and sequences. These behavior patterns are as clearly recognizable as the well-known symptoms of an individual psychosis or nervous disorder in the average psychopathic clinic. Economic factors play a role no more important, and no less, in the collective madness than in the individual case."

Later we read: "The grand maladies of popular epidemic madness are war, persecution and revolution. It is a matter of common observation that wars and financial panics recur at almost regular intervals." That is to say, and certainly the book actually does say in total effect, that now and then the crowd is seized, quite unaccountably, with a fit of acute insanity—and there is a war, or there is a financial panic, or there is a revolution!

But there is still to be considered the unobliging fact that wars are all prepared and ready to go before the crowd is informed that it must die for something or other. The crowd insanity, necessary to the waging of war, is deliberately induced by propaganda. We Americans were a long way from the Germans and didn't know we hated and wished to murder them until we were informed by propaganda that such was the case!

It is equally ridiculous to assume that our recurrent financial panics have been caused by spontaneous cyclic returns of crowd insanity. Is the present so-called "depression" thus caused?

Certainly one need be no Marxian doctrinaire, or a rabid "Red" of any sort, in order to insist that the cause of recurrent financial panics is well known; that to understand the fundamental cause of recurrent panics, and of the present breakdown, is to understand what causes modern wars; and that the cause is not to be explained in terms of social psychology.

That Everett Dean Martin either does not understand, or does not want to understand, is clearly indicated by the fact that he even goes so far as to include the "world-wide spasm of prohibitive tariff legislation" among the many diverse psychopathic symptoms of the crowd—along with the crossword puzzle craze and "the popularity of Mae West"! He seems not to have suspected that the "world-wide spasm of prohibitive tariff legislation" has precisely the same cause as recurrent financial panics, the present "depression" and modern war.

The book is intended to be a plea for liberalism as opposed to radicalism, the latter being merely a psychopathic crowd symptom; and yet the author is able to say: "I suspect that the very idea of a planned economy—plausible as it may seem—is a revolutionary idea. It implies a measure of official control over everyone and everything, an exercise of bureaucratic power abhorrent to many of us."

Is the author, then, in favor of rule by the mass? But the mass is psychopathic and incapable of sane rule, according to his thesis! For what sort of social control, then, and for what social purpose, if any, does he argue as a liberal? Is he an anarchist, by any chance; and if so, what of the psychopathic crowd in a state of anarchy?

That he is not a little confused in his approach to the modern world-problem is further indicated by the fact that he sees no essential difference between Italian Fascism and German Nazi-ism, on the one hand, and Russian Sovietism on the other!

"The time has come," so we read in the final chapter, "to reaffirm and make live that philosophy of freedom, reasonableness and the good life which has distinguished liberalism since the days of Socrates."

Bravo!

But something tremendous has happened since the days of Socrates; and if that something is concerned with nothing more than competitive machine industrialism, we shall have to do something more than to reaffirm the philosophy of the good life before we can make it live. We shall have to know why so many millions are jobless paupers in a world that is able to produce far more than mankind needs for the good life, and we shall have to act upon that knowledge. We cannot possibly arrive at such knowledge by discussing the psychopathology of crowds.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY. Current Volume D. (James T. White & Co., New York City.)

THIS is the fourth volume of the series of biographies of famous Americans now living, men and women who are "doing the work and molding the thought of the present time." Among those included, the reader will find biographies of the chief personalities in the Roosevelt administration. These biographies are unusually comprehensive. That of President Roosevelt, for example, 9000 words long, is a review of his entire public career and an official summary of his administration up to September, 1934, the facts and figures having been checked and corrected by the President himself. There are many portraits, of unusual excellence.

It has been suggested that these bulky volumes should have their contents arranged alphabetically, for easier reference. To have so arranged these biographies, however, would have defeated the manifest object of the compilers of the present volume, which was to bring together the leading figures of the administration. These are grouped at the opening of the volume, immediately after the President's biography. There is a full index, covering the four volumes.

ONE LIGHT BURNING. By R. C. Hutchinson. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York City.)

R. C. HUTCHINSON won high critical praise and a considerable following with his two previous novels, "The Answering Glory" and "The Unforgotten Prisoner." His latest book, here noted, further demonstrates his unusual gifts, and should increase the esteem and number of his readers.

"One Light Burning" is a curious tale and not to be fairly sketched, so much of its effectiveness depending upon mood and atmosphere and the author's insights. It is concerned with two men, Capt. Sandy Brissaut and Prof. Andrew Wild, the former an exuberant, lovable eccentric, always chasing some will-o'-the-wisp with a robust disregard for realities, and the latter something of a spiritual Don Quixote. The woman is Sandy's wife, Greta, describable as still water running deeper than the unsteady light of Sandy's moods and intuitions can penetrate.

The three meet on a voyage from Ireland to the Continent, and Wild discovers depths in Greta's nature that Sandy has never plumbed and that Greta herself has hardly suspected.

According to the ordinary novelist, with a weather eye constantly on his public, such a situation should result in an immediate explosion. But Hutchinson, being no ordinary novelist, knows that a fuse, although indubitably lighted, may burn slowly; if indeed it does not go out, as most do, happily, long before the charge is reached. This, however, is a matter of the slow fuse, which becomes the "one light burning" for Wild throughout his terrible experiences on a quixotic Siberian expedition in search of a friend who has disappeared in that country.

Wild survives his struggle in the blizzard-swept wilderness less because of his love for his lost friend than because of his love for Greta, to whom he has not revealed the secret of his heart. He endures because he conceives her as an ideal witness of his suffering; and at last the trail leads back to her, not without fatal consequences to the husband and one of those ironic twists of human triumph in the achievement of which Life is admittedly a master.

FAREWELL TO FIFTH AVENUE. By Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. (Simon & Schuster, New York City.)

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT JR., born a prince of the American nobility, disinherited and regarded as "a traitor to his class," here tells the story of his life, a revealing book it should be for those who may have mistaken the voting privilege for genuine democracy.

At the age of 16, the author had already "dined with all the crowned heads of Europe," and, owing to both his social prestige and his activities as a journalist, he has been in intimate contact with many of the most important figures on both sides of the Atlantic.

As reminiscence of famous people alone, the story would be notable; but in the final analysis, it is the social implication of the book that matters most. The author is inclined to believe that the old ruling class, from which he was born, is doomed; and he definitely takes his stand with the forward-looking.

GERMAN SYNOD ISSUES MANIFESTO AGAINST NAZIISM

Outspoken Attack to Be Read From Hundreds of Lutheran and Reformed Pulpits Today.

"LAST ATTEMPT TO SAVE STATE"

Hitler Doctrines as Philosophy of Life Declared Anti-Christian, Idolatrous, Subversive.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 9.—From hundreds of Lutheran and Reform pulpits tomorrow National Socialism as a philosophy of life will be denounced as anti-Christian, idolatrous and subversive.

The Confessional Synod of Prussia which met for extensive sessions during last week dispatched an amazing manifesto to all of its congregations today and made it mandatory on all adhering pastors to read it from their pulpits either tomorrow, or if a copy should not reach them in time, on a following Sunday.

On presenting the manifesto, each pastor is to explain that no attack on the state is intended, but that the church is charged with the duty of saving souls, and must make this last attempt to save the state from development which is bound to lead straight to the ruination of the Fatherland.

In this connection the pastors are reminded to read Ezekiel III, verses 17 to end to their congregations.

"We see our people threatened by a mortal danger," the manifesto of the synod begins. "This danger consists of a new religion . . . the church knows it will be called to account by God if the German people should turn away from Christ unwarranted."

After citing the first commandment, the manifesto charges that Naziism violates this commandment, for "blood and race, nationality, honor and liberty are made idols."

There follows a direct attack on Hitler's oft-repeated phrase about the "eternal Germany," for the manifesto continues, "Belief demanded in this new religion in an eternal Germany puts itself in place of belief in the Eternal Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. . . . Such idolatry has nothing in common with positive Christianity but is anti-Christian."

It was recalled that Point 24 of the Nazi program asserts that the Nazi Reich is to be built on positive Christianity.

The charge that Naziism is subversive is expressed in these words: "Whoever puts blood, race and nationality in place of God as Creator and Lord from whom the authority of state is derived undermines the state. . . . The church recognizes obediently and gratefully the authority of the state's defined and limited in Holy Writs, but for that very reason cannot submit to the totality claim which this new religion ascribes to the state—a claim which throws conscience into bondage."

MAKES STUDY OF COLLEGE GRADUATES' EMPLOYMENT

Manager of State Job Office Finds One Selling Fish and Another Driving Cattle.

Leo McCarthy, manager of the St. Louis office of the Missouri State Employment Service, completed last week a study of the employment problems and experiences of recent college and university graduates.

One college graduate took a job selling fish and vegetables from house to house. Another drove cattle at a packing house. Others found work as: Insurance salesmen, clerk in a 10-cent store, apprentice embalmer, life-guard, electrical welder, automobile repair man, summer camp counselor and leader, playground supervisor, research worker, detective, physical education instructor, musician, butler, chauffeur, filling station attendant, newspaper reporter, law clerks, stenographer and bookkeeper.

Government projects have created jobs for many who have specialized in engineering, and young attorneys recently admitted to the bar also have found work in special projects of various kinds, McCarthy said. Large corporations still send "scouts" to universities at graduation time to recruit the most promising young men for their staffs.

Nevertheless, many whose training has not been along specialized lines find unexpected difficulties in obtaining work, McCarthy said. He added that the experience of his organization showed the average employer was more interested in experience, natural capacity, personality and adaptability than in a college degree.

Gertrude Stein's Opinion Of American Newspapers

terribly exciting if somebody who could excite everybody and day is mixed up with it, and that does not happen very often, Dillinger and Lindbergh were and are exciting in that way and that is not because the story their story is exciting it is exciting their story but what is really exciting is the reason that what happens to them yesterday is still what happens to them to-day because they are existing every day and every day they are existing they are exciting and so any day any newspaper tells anything about them it makes it like to-day and so be exciting. But there is very little that is as exciting as that that has anybody in it who is as exciting as that so most of the news the newspaper prints is the news of yesterday and not the news of to-day and so the newspaper does not do what it says it does, it does not tell the news of today.

And what is the difference well the difference is that it is a mistake. If the newspaper says that it is printing yesterday news as if it were the news of to-day then they are they really are a newspaper otherwise they are not.

Newspapers Now Magazines.

As I say the yellow newspaper the yellow press, the American newspaper as it was invented up to to-day did try to do it and they did do it and they did they did do it but that was when they invented it when invented it over 35 years ago, you can see that the newspapers to-day which keep up the same machinery that was invented 35 years ago know that they do not do it. They turn their newspapers into magazines, they make them bigger and bigger until at last anybody can know that anything as big as that could not be anything that could happen to-day. Of course one might say an awful lot can happen today so a newspaper might be as big as that and happen to-day but it would have to be awfully lively newspaper to be as big as that and all happen to-day so what really happens is that the metropolitan newspaper just knows it is that, that it all did happen yesterday, at best they can say it only did happen yesterday that is it only did happen six hours ago that is really the very best that they can say about any day.

Well and what should the newspapers do, well sooner or later they will have to rediscover today and realize that yesterday is not to-day. The small newspapers do do it somewhat in their way because everybody knows everybody and knows the exact spot where anything that happened yesterday happen to-day but what can the metropolitan newspaper do about it, well if they are going to be as big as the metropolis where they are to be today they must find out how they make to-day to-day and not yesterday. And how to make yesterday to-day and not yesterday.

As long as they keep on in this way, in the way they are now they are no longer newspapers that is newspapers that to-day print the news of to-day.

When the yellow press, and todays respectable press does use the form the headlines, the sound all this their accepted ways their completely accepted way are the ways of the past exciting yellow press, but the press that yellow press had found out a way to make yesterdays news be to-days and when the yellow press did this it was with the idea that a newspaper should do this should makes yesterdays news be to-days.

Perhaps now that is not yes that is not what the metropolitan press thinks should be the metropolitan press perhaps now the press the metropolitan press thinks that metropolitan press should be a soothing press, that it should make of the news of today not the news of today but the rest, the rest away and to the news of any day. They use the machinery of the yellow press but they do not excite anyone with it no. They almost do do this, yes they almost do do this and then it happens that it comes across them that they use the machinery of that old yellow press which they are and that this old yellow press was made and is with the hope that any news which is to come to press must be the to-days news and not that of any other day, yesterday or any other day. Yes the metropolitan press has stirring just a little in with the soothing of its yesterdays press the memory that its machinery was invented to make yesterdays news be to-days news yes todays. So the newspaper the metropolitan newspaper gets so large that yes it mostly is soothing because that is perhaps that is what the metropolitan reading likes I guess yes it is because the comic strips are that they are just soothing. And the yellow press now that all that filled it to be exciting has come to be machinery yes that machinery now that it works as if it was something that had never been anything else, well yes now it is soothing.

Concerning Interviewers.

There are some hang overs, some rather sweet really sweet hang overs and they are rather touching these sweet hang overs. They are mostly reporters.

Reporters are nice they are nice they are sweet they often are young and though they are supposed to ask questions they do like to talk, and I like to question and I like to listen to any one who answers questions so I get the reporters to talk that is to tell me what they are and they are reporters and they know what reporters are but they are all nice reporters and they all tell me what they are.

Now what I mean by hang overs from the yellow press day is this the reporters always think they bombard you with questions but they do not, they mostly talk a little and answer questions and you talk a little a good deal and more or less do not answer questions. But as I say there was the yellow press and so there is the violence of the yellow press words but as I say the metropolitan newspaper must be soothing it must be yesterdays news, and so no matter how pleasant and gentle and pleasant any reporter is he must have the emotion of the violence that was once the yellow press, they still have the machinery of it, the headlines the bombarding with questions, but actually what they want is a pleasant conversation these reporters and then to write down the same general thing that has always written down about the one reported.

Explaining Her Meaning.

You must not change the tone nor the words that succeed each other, the same words must always come one after the other because the newspaper reader must not have a shock of change. To-days news must be yesterday news, do you see how it can gradually come to that. That is the swing of the pendulum. In the old days before the yellow press yesterdays news, and everybody knew that, yesterdays news or earlier last weeks news or earlier six weeks ago news was six weeks ago news or last weeks news or yesterdays news.

Then the yellow press made yesterdays news to be to-days news, they almost made it be to-morrows news and now the metropolitan press makes todays news be yesterdays news almost makes to-days news be last weeks news almost makes to-days news be six weeks ago's news. That is what has happened by the yellow press having become stereotyped having become a way of doing a machinery that all the schools of journalism teach and as soon as anybody can teach it it is a way of doing a thing and is not the thing itself and it begins to move backward. And this is what is, what now is, and I have enjoyed watching it and I now am enjoying telling it, and this is what just now the newspaper the American newspaper is.

Let me explain just a little more what I mean. Think of the whole business, what the newspaper says about anything, it always every time it mentions anybody or anything it has to say the same thing using the same words otherwise it would be a shock to the newspaper reader who has gotten used to this formula about this thing, think of Will Rogers, or the comic strips or what they say about me. If they want to change they have to change so imperceptibly that the reader will not know it. That is what makes to-days news be six weeks ago news, and that is what I mean and anybody can see that what I mean that is what I say is what is is what the newspaper to-day and by to-day I mean any day of any of these days is.

The Experience of Philadelphia With Voting Machines

numbers corresponding to numbers assigned to each candidate. On the other machine, the final count appears in plain figures in an opening just below each candidate's name. In this case it is a simple matter to make a photographic record.

Both machines are equipped for voting yes or no on as many as 25 questions or propositions, and for writing in names when the voter does not wish to vote for any candidate appearing on the regular ballot.

Some Questions Put to Election Authorities.

Checking the experience of Philadelphia against claims of superiority made for the voting machines, the following questions were put to Election Bureau employes who have direct supervision over the machines:

Do voters have difficulty in learning to operate the machines?

It is possible for a voter to manipulate a machine improperly?

Do the machines develop mechanical troubles when in use?

Does their use, where only one machine is available, cause congestion at the polls?

Are the results shown by the machines accepted as accurate?

Is there any economy in their use?

The Pennsylvania law requires that the machines shall be in the care of a custodian. The custodian in Philadelphia is Joseph W. Whyte. Between elections the machines are all stored in a central warehouse, and when this investigation was made Whyte and his employes were engaged in preparing the machines for a coming municipal primary election. It is also the duty of the custodian to place demonstration machines in various parts of the city for instruction of voters, and to have reserve machines ready to replace any that may develop trouble on election day.

Demonstration Machines Teach Voters What to Do.

Answering in part the foregoing questions, Whyte said the demonstration machines helped greatly in acquainting voters with operation, but that some who had received no instruction became confused the first time they tried to ovte. There were few of these, however.

With each machine there is a small working model which is set up in the polling place. Any voter who is uncertain as to how to operate the machine may practice on this model and may ask attendants to show him how it works.

Comparatively few instances have been reported in Philadelphia of attempts to manipulate machines improperly. There were some cases of erasure of a candidate's name from the faces of the machine, and other cases of transposing names by cutting out squares from the strips of heavy paper on which the names are printed. On one type of machine the names are behind a sheet of glass. Occasionally a voter tries to build up the count on the public and protective counters, which would cause discrepancy between the totals shown there and the count of voters kept by the election officials, casting doubt on the machine. Such attempts are soon discovered, Whyte said.

Mechanical Troubles Few, Congestion Trifling.

Mechanical troubles are rare. Whyte said that only four machines have been "pulled," that is, removed from a polling place and replaced by others on election day.

There has been very little complaint of congestion at the polls, election officials said. Most voters find it easier and quicker to use the machine than the old blanket ballot. Efforts are made, of course, to keep voters coming throughout the day and to avoid a late evening rush.

There is no question of the accuracy of the count. Before an election, each machine is tested by the custodian in the presence of representatives of the public and certified to be in proper working order. A voter may make a mistake, just as he may on a paper ballot, but there is mechanical certainty that his vote will be recorded just as he indicated on the face of the machine.

There can be no discarded ballots or collusive agreement on a fictitious count without practical certainty of detection. The counters showing the final results are locked in place and cannot be moved except by use of a master key that never leaves the custodian's care. Every machine must be kept in this locked condition for at least 30 days following an election, and inspection at any time in that period would show just what total was recorded for any candidate in any precinct. The courts may impound machines for longer periods.

G. O. P. Political Leader Approves of Machine.

An interesting view was obtained from an outstanding political leader, Edwin R. Cox, chairman of the Republican Central Campaign Committee of Philadelphia, and for several years president of the City Council. Cox is a business man, president of the Atlantic Refining Co.

In an interview, he heartily approved the voting machine. In his close contact with voters he found that they like it, that very few of them had trouble with it, that voting was fast and accurate, and that irregularities were reduced to a minimum. He thought the machines had given the city the cleanest elections it ever had.

The machine's quick and certain count of the vote was a distinct benefit to election officials, he said; it saved clerks and judges from suspicion of irregularities.

Whether voting machines result in substantial savings in the conduct of elections is open to question. Sales literature of manufacturers makes impressive representations of economy. An executive of one company, in private conversation with the writer, admitted that expected economies did not always materialize.

"It is not the fault of the machines," he said, "but of political administrations that refuse to make the saving that are possible."

He thought that eventually public opinion would force municipalities to take full advantage of the possible savings.

Cuts Down Number of Election Officials.

In Philadelphia, the number of election officials at each polling place was reduced from five to three after the introduction of machines. This was done by the elimination of two inspectors, or clerks, whose pay was $10 a day. This means a saving of $20 at each precinct, or $25,660 for the entire city at each election. There is also a large saving in the printing of ballots, but it is still necessary to have quite a large amount of printing done, such as label strips for the machines, specimen voting diagrams for voters, return sheets and the like.

In the last election, when Magistrates were to be elected throughout the ctiy, the ballot was too large for the machines, so the Magistrates were put on a paper ballot.

Figures on Cost of Mechanical Voting.

There are other expenses attributable to the machines. If interest on the capital investment is considered, this alone at 4 per cent costs the city about $80,000 a year. Storage of the machines is a large item. The city formerly paid about 40 cents a square foot a year for storage space. It now pays 23 cents and each machine requires at least 40 square feet. That is $9.20 a machine, or $18,400 a year. Transportation of the machines to the polling places and back to the warehouse also is expensive, as each machine weighs about 1000 pounds. Hauling is contracted for by competitive bidding and at the last election cost $5.40 for each machine. Additional hauling of demonstration machines and the cost of having trucks stand by to deliver replacement machines in case of trouble brought the total bill up to $18,018. These figures on costs were supplied by Carl B. Zilenziger Jr., chief clerk of the County Commissioners.

Election Contests Virtually Eliminated.

It is said for the voting machines that they virtually eliminate election contests and thus avoid the heavy expense of vote recounts. It is very seldom, the manufacturers state, that the results as cast upon the machines are questioned, and then it is a matter of slight expense to go back and check the results as shown on the machine counters.

There is, of course, opposition in many places to use of voting machines. Sometimes it is attributed to the fear of politicians that they will lose their power, and again to public dissatisfaction after a trial.

Although voting machines are used by many other large cities, including New York, Albany, Rochester, N. Y.; Baltimore, Buffalo, Indianapolis, and Des Moines, Ia., in addition to a large number of smaller cities, there are some cities which have tried machines and abandoned them.

Special correspondents of the Post-Dispatch have inquired into the experience of cities which have abandoned machines and reported the reasons for abandonment. It was found in most cases that the machines were installed 25 or 30 years ago, when they were not so well developed as they are now, and were unsatisfactory from the first.

Cities That Have Tried and Abandoned Machines.

Following are summaries of reports from 10 cities that have turned away from voting machines:

Newark, N. J.—When Legislature in 1903 authorized use of voting machines, 81 were installed in the State, 13 in Newark. In the first election test they proved eminently successful and no case of fraud was reported in any district where a machine was used. Subsequently other machines were installed and in 1914 there were 361 in the State. Then came a drive against them and the Legislature abolished their use. Reasons why voting machines were abolished; They operated to the disadvantage of political machines; many honest voters complained they could not accustom themselves to the new method; public sentiment was lukewarm in support of machines; interests that had profited from contracts to print ballots conducted an active campaign against machines.

In Denver.

Denver, Colo.—Machines were installed in 1907 at a cost of $112,500 for 150. The following year a District Judge ruled they were too complicated and could not be used. A heated political battle was waged around voting machines, the Republicans, who were out of power, asserting the party in charge of the city government could manipulate the machines to its own advantage. A final court decision characterized the machines as both "useless and fallible," and in 1923 they were sold to a junk man for $366. They were not of a type now generally in use. Two years ago the statute authorizing use of machines was repealed.

Held Illegal in Illinois.

Chicago, Ill.—About 200 machines were used in one election, the primary of 1912. There was much public dissatisfaction, increased by charges of graft in connection with the Election Board's contract for 1000 machines at a cost of $1,000,000. It was said that at this election voters were subjected to long waits in line and had difficulty in operating the machines. Legality of the use of machines was questioned in the courts and the Illinois Supreme Court held they were illegal because electors were not able to vote for all candidates within one minute, as the statute required. Some of the 200 machines that had been delivered were sold and the city still has many in storage. Preceding the introduction of machines, the people had approved them by a vote of eight to one in a referendum.

Racine Tried Them in 1905.

Racine, Wis.—Machines were introduced in 1905 and used four years. There was dissatisfaction among voters who could not become accustomed to operating them. It was said voters had difficulty voting split tickets and in correcting errors in operation of the machine. Returns were quickly available when the machines were used, and the cost of elections was reduced, as only half as many poll officials were employed as before. A few years ago the manufacturer offered to modernize the 15 machines, but the City Council decided to keep them in storage.

Wisconsin has a State law permitting use of voting machines by municipalities, and some are in use in Fond du Lac and Superior. The voters are said to prefer the paper ballot, and there has been very little popular demand for use of machines.

Omaha and Los Angeles.

Omaha, Neb.—Machines were installed about 30 years ago and used three or four years. It was said that with the type of machines in use, a designing politician was able by applying a rubber band to a part of the mechanism to cause all votes cast for a particular office to be counted for his candidate. This led to a campaign that resulted in the ousting of machines.

Milwaukee Wants Them Back.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Machines were installed 30 years ago and used until the County Board of Election Commissioners was installed in 1916. This board objected to use of machines and was charged with wishing to eliminate them so that it might appoint additional polling officials. The machines were discarded, but now there is a public demand for their return. It is strengthened by the fact that in the 1934 election 104 ballots disappeared in one precinct. Following the 1928 election, a recount showed an error of 102 in one precinct where the total vote was 271, and out of 128 precincts recounted only one was found to be as originally reported.

Minneapolis and Portland.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Machines were abandoned 20 years ago after having been used a few years. There was confusion from the first because no preliminary instruction of voters in their use was provided. Then enactment of a primary law which permitted voters to indicate a second choice made use of the machines impracticable. Agitation for going back to machines has resulted from the many errors in the last election which caused disturbances and recounts. Although State law permits municipalities to use machines, it requires that paper ballots also must be supplied so the voter may have his choice, and this is said to make the use of machines inadvisable.

PORTLAND, Ore. — The experience with machines is recent, beginning with 1927. The city purchased 80 and used them in the 1928 election. There was no preliminary instruction of voters, and the ballot was long and complicated.. The precincts in which machines were installed had been created by consolidation of a number of precincts. The result was congestion at the polls and many voters complained they were not able to vote, even after long waits in line. Because of this one failure the machines were discarded.

What St. Louis Would Need.

The voting machine measure proposed at Jefferson City was a joint and concurrent resolution, introduced in both Senate and House, to submit to the people a constitutional amendment that would give the Legislature power to authorize municipalities to use machines.

Allowing one machine for each 500 voters, as in Philadelphia, it would take a minimum of 700 machines to fully equip St. Louis polling places, and of course some additional machines would be required for reserves, demonstrations, and provision of an extra machine in the more populous precincts. The city now has 669 voting precincts and about 370,000 registered voters.

Robert L. Lund Says Recovery Effort Has Failed

which is, that all such relations should be direct within the shop or plant without outside interference.

That employes themselves believe this is shown by the fact that 40 per cent of the industrial employes work under this plan, as against 10 per cent in labor union organizations. The remaining 40 per cent deal with employers individually, without organization.

An investigation by the Industrial Advisory Board of the Recovery Administration, covering 16 concerns where within-the-shop relations had existed for many years—and whose labor condition had been condemned by labor leaders — showed that the working conditions, the wage rates and the co-operation between management and workers averaged definitely better than in other concerns in the same industry where plant workers' organization did not exist.

Obstructionism arising out of the labor clause, confusion growing out of bureaucratic control and uncertainty caused by obvious doubt regarding the legality of certain of its phases, have been among leading reasons why the NRA has not appreciably stimulated recovery.

The Works Program.

2. PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM of $3,300,000,000. This effort to stimulate recovery also has failed to bring appreciable results. Reasons: Slow rate of the use of funds, and the fact that a considerable part has been used for enterprises of doubtful usefulness, which will prove an ultimate waste.

Wise expenditure of public money on useful public works will aid recovery in some degree. The experience of the past 20 months, however, seem clearly to demonstrate that there are not enough sound public projects and that they cannot be carried out with sufficient speed to have any important effect in correcting our business difficulties.

3. HOUSING ADMINISTRATION aimed chiefly at stimulating durable goods industries, which account for one-half of all unemployment. Until rents advance or costs decline, private capital cannot safely invest in new buildings. Between 1926 and 1934, reduction in rents was more than three times as great as reduction in building costs.

A sharp rise in the cost of building—with no appreciable improvement in rents—brought about the lowest rate of return to investors since 1923 and put almost a full stop to building.

Only renewal of business activity can change this situation. The building program thus, while sound in its attempts to stimulate the durable goods industries, attacks the recovery program at the wrong end, and there seems little hope that it can stimulate recovery in any appreciable degree.

The three major attacks upon the depression have so far failed. There is no reason to believe that by pursuing them further they will succeed.

I repeat, therefore, that the conclusion must be that, without delay, every effort should be directed toward restoring the normal operation of the American business system, which has proved itself the best the world has ever known.

TALK BY FINDER OF ILLIUM

Illinois U. Man to Address St. Louis Chemists Tomorrow Night.

Dr. B. Smith Hopkins of the University of Illinois will address the St. Louis Section of the American Chemical Society tomorrow night at the School of Medicine, St. Louis University. His subject will be "Rare Earths and the Periodic Table."

In 1926, Dr. Hopkins announced the isolation and identification of a new element which he named illium. He is an authority in the field of rare earth elements.

Lee Meriwether to Talk.

Lee Meriwether will address the Traffic Club at noon tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson on "Russia and Japan—The Lesson and the Warning They Afford America."

Small Town Products Among Hollywood Great

Movie Actors and Actresses No Longer Ashamed to Claim Hinterland Settlements as Birthplaces.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, March 9.

THERE is an ever increasing rush of "Big Names" descending upon Hollywood from New York—opera highlights, stage stars, playwrights, producers, show girls and dancing cuties. Helen Gahagan is the latest Broadway celebrity to fall for the fat contracts being offered by the screen factories and while she will make her first film appearance, as we have already told, in a new version of "She," it is on account of her singing voice that Miss Gahagan is being brought to Hollywood. The studios are musical-conscious in a big way and singers are in demand at fancy prices. After she gets through with "She," Miss Gahagan will do her opera stuff.

All of this we have related previously, but what we started out to say was that the exodus from Broadway is increasing. As a matter of fact, most of the arrivals come from the metropolis only en route from smaller towns and they admit it, without blushing.

Actors and actresses of the old days almost invariably claimed New York City as their "home town." While they may have hailed from the corniest of cross road villages, there was such a consensus of scorn for the "hick town" a generation ago, that Broadway thespians concealed carefully the secret of their bucolic origin.

But now, stars of the stage and screen, more often than not, are found blatantly announcing that they are really "9 o'clock" people.

In every studio, interviewers have recently discovered, are to be found actors and actresses who sing high the praises of the small towns. Warren William, swinging his walking stick, states in a clipped English accent that he's from Aitkin, Minn. Dick Powell not only claims the town of Mountain View, Ark., with its 800 inhabitants, but he frequently visits there. John Boles is from Greenville, Tex., suh, which is far from cosmopolitan. Helen Jepson, of Titusville, O., and Lorraine Bridges of Wewoka, Ok., are players who make no secret of their native places. Helen Gahagan, the one we mentioned at the start, is from Boonton, N. J.

FRANK MELTON, Fox player, is not complimentary to his birthplace. Melton, it appears, hails from Pineapple, Ala. "Pineapple is still a hick town," insists Melton, with a broad Alabama inflection.

Questioning, however, disclosed that Pineapple, which is little more than the native Melton plantation, is located 22 miles from the important village of Camden (2500 inhabitants), and that in Camden, at a choice of three picture houses, the Pineapple folk may enjoy the latest in Hollywood screen plays or buy the newest of smart styles from really up-to-date shops.

Joe E. Brown, who always insists he's a "small town lad," announces that his natal place was Holgate, O., and he, too, declares that Holgate is "right up to snuff."

On one studio lot may be found Alfred Del Campo claiming Carrizo Springs, Tex., and Gertrude Michael, who boasts of the modernisms of Talladega, Ala. At another Astrid Allwyn of South Manchester, Conn., is interrupted by Rochelle Hudson who inquires superciliously if anyone has heard of her home city. No less than Claremore, Ok. And that there ain't no bad little place, if we're to believe Will Rogers.

Frank McHugh mentions Homestead, Pa., Mary Astor speaks with pride of Quincy, Ill.; Johnny Arledge calls himself a Crockett (Tex.) product, and Margaret Lindsay even refuses to discuss Dubuque, Ia., with the rest of the small places.

"Dubuque," says Margaret, a touch of genuine pride in her Oxfordian voice, "is quite a big city. And very cultured!"

Martha Graham Dance Recital at Principia On Friday Evening

MARTHA GRAHAM, former soloist with the Denishawn company of dancers, will make her first individual appearance in St. Louis at the Principia, at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening. Miss Graham, who has developed her own dance form, in which she seeks to express the mechanical tempo of modern life, is noted for the sharp, and often abrupt, attack she makes. One of the new numbers she will introduce will be a dance in four parts, with music by George Antheil, young American composer. Sections of the work are entitled: Quest, Derision, Dream, Sportive Tragedy. The recital is the sixth in the current Principia series, which will be concluded on April 6 with the appearance of Nelson Eddy, young baritone.

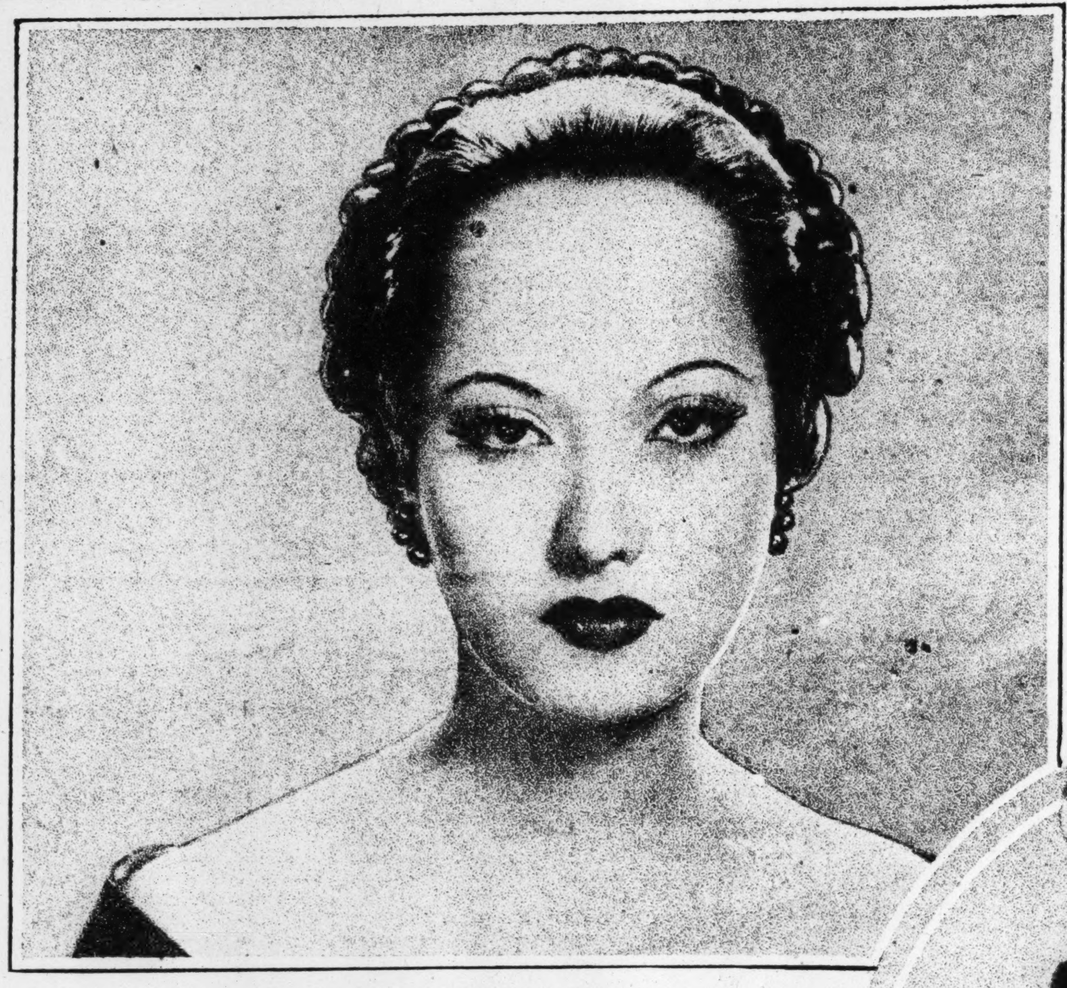
Dorothy Wilson in "When a Man's a Man," Missouri.

Rosa Ponselle Concert March 28.

Rosa Ponselle, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be heard here in recital Thursday evening, March 28, at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House. The concert will be the fourth of the Condon Concert Course.

Burton Holmes on Southern Europe

Continuing his travel talks at the Opera House, Burton Holmes will offer "Southern Europe, Yugoslavia to Spain and Portugal," as the illustrative theme of the third episode in his current series tomorrow evening.



Merle Oberon in "Folies Bergere de Paris," Loew's State.

The Week's New Films

By Colvin McPherson

THERE were never any people like those in "Ruggles of Red Gap" at the Shubert this week. There was never any such a Western community and, I am sure, never such wild fun. Firing from the hip, the Charles Laughton picture keeps banging away at the funny bone until an evening with it becomes a mirthful massacre. A mere glance at the cast will show, in beginning, that "Ruggles of Red Gap" comes to the screen armed to the teeth with comedians. Mary Boland, Charles Ruggles, ZaSu Pitts, Roland Young and Maude Eburne—the only wonder is that they keep their faces straight. The producers wanted to make sure, doubtlessly, that Charles Laughton, the star, would be taken in the spirit of the thing and not as Nero or mean old man Barrett waiting tables. As the period portrayed is 1908, those same producers put Leo McCarey, director of "Belle of the Nineties," in charge, and persuaded the Gay Nineties to stay over a few years. No bets were overlooked to give Charles Laughton a grand send-off in his first comedy part. His performance as Ruggles, the English butler, is the kind to send reviewers into raptures. Through his whole career of being lost by his English master in a poker game with Americans and shipped to Red Gap, Wash., he keeps a nice balance between humor and pathos. He is the most engaging drunk in a long line of besotted gentlemen and, in a reverse side, reads Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" with an insight that makes it thrilling. He comes certainly very close to being the screen's greatest actor. "Gigolette" is the second picture on the Shubert bill, a dimly dramatic piece about a young lady from Duchess County, N. Y., who lost her financial backing and went to work as hostess in a downtown "clip joint." Adrienne Ames is the girl.

Roberta.

"ROBERTA" brings up a point which might be raised for nearly any picture in any week. Have the movies made a good adaptation? Those who go to the Orpheum this week seeking to find a repetition of the wistfulness of "Roberta" on the stage will look many reels in vain, if not in sorrow. Things have been done to the show, but as one of the best friends of the original, I am not particularly grieved. "Roberta" on the screen, although different, is a superb motion picture, and superior, in a half dozen ways, to the stage play. Two excellent reasons are to be found in Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. Cameramen say that a few years ago they would have been unable to film Mr. Astaire's nimble feet adequately, and in "Roberta" he develops a speed that makes further invention a necessity. That Rogers girl, it seems, has everybody's best wishes, too. Although considerably retailored, the play still glorifies an American lady, Aunt Minnie by name, who goes to Paris and builds up a snooty business as "Roberta," fashion creator. In the year of Our Lord, 1934 or 1935, an American jazz orchestra, headed by Fred Astaire and accompanied by Randolph Scott, Aunt Minnie's nephew, is stranded in Paris, and Randolph goes to Aunt Minnie for aid. He meets her shop foreman, Stephanie (Irene Dunne), a former Russian princess, and Fred runs across Ginger Rogers, a cornfed citizen of the United States, passing herself off for a Polish countess. Randolph's and Irene's romance, after his Aunt Minnie (Helen Westley) dies and leaves him the shop, is the story, but a style show naturally is the big event.

Folies Bergere de Paris.

SOMEWHAT after the pattern of "All the King's Horses," as well as that very excellent movie called "The Guardsman," the new Maurice Chevalier picture at Loew's this week, is a frivolous little farce set to music. The situation is this: Charlier, an entertainer at the "Folies Bergere" does a very clever imitation of Baron Cassini, one of the big men of the Bourse. The Baron sees the performance and almost immediately gets in difficulties over investments or stocks or behind in the installments on something. He has to go flying away to London for help. In order to fool the 50 million, his associates ring in Charlier. Now the Baron has a wife—such a lovely wife—in the person of Merle Oberon. And Charlier has a sweetheart, Ann Sothern, who has met the Baron. Complications happen but romance and the home both have their rewards. Backing up the action is a musical setting that is said to have cost $30,000 a minute, and a big straw-hat chorus scene that is supposed to have set the company back $100,000. The statistics alone are impressive. Loew's, however, offers "The Winning Ticket" and "The March of Time," in addition to the "Folies." "The Winning Ticket," with Leo Carillo as an Italian barber, Louise Fazenda as his Irish wife, Ted Healey as her good-for-nothing brother and Luis Alberni in his stormiest excitement, is the better laugh-getter.

Night Life of the Gods.

WHAT the late Lowell Sherman would have done with "Night Life of the Gods," had he been left to his own devices, is an absorbing speculation. He was about to get under way with an adaptation of the Thorne Smith novel when the film renovation campaign came steaming along. Rumor hath it that Mr. Sherman was disturbed, to put it mildly. So he put pants on Apollo and pants on most of the humor. It was his last picture (he died just after starting "Becky Sharp") and carries a reminder of his clever style, his understanding of subtle comedy. The show at the Ambassador, altogether innocuous now, tells of an eccentric scientist (Alan Mowbray) who perfects a process for turning living beings into statues and vice versa. As a grand demonstration of his powers, he frees the inhabitants of the Metropolitan Museum from their statuary limitations. The gods and the scientist (all equally without their marbles) go on a tour of Broadway. "A Successful Failure" is the name of the second Ambassador picture. It is about a newspaper man abused by his family, and his eventual victory.

When a Man's a Man.

A DROLL piece has been made out of the Harold Bell Wright novel this time, in "When A Man's A Man." The picture at the Missouri, for three-fourths of its length, is sprinkled with alkaline wit, and only in the last part, stampedes into a melodramatic romance. George O'Brien is the big clean boy who saves the gal and the ranch. "Behind the Evidence" is so much like other crime pictures of its breed that a review of the plot would hardly serve any purpose. A young blueblood (Norman Foster) loses his fortune one morning or one afternoon—maybe during the night—and goes to work on a newspaper. As the right connections are his to begin with, he stumbles onto a big story his first day. He is permitted to solve the whole thing, with a great deal of shooting and auto-racing. It might be appropriate, here and now, for a newspaper man to complain that the creature is a Frankenstein, but so different is St. Louis from Los Angeles and Louisiana from Long Island, that what is one's Frankenstein may be somebody else's Horace Greeley. Quien sabe, as the Spanish say.

The Little Colonel.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE is still with us, at the Fox, and at the speed her studio is putting out her pictures, will probably be continually available in some form until exhausted. The Fox will change its bill soon, however, with "Carnival," which is about carnival people.

'Sailor Beware' Next Sunday Night

"SAILOR, Beware," rowdy comedy of the Navy, is now definitely set for a week's run at the American Theater, beginning next Sunday night. The play, by Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson, closed a 500-performance engagement in New York last December and is now on the road with the original cast, headed by Bruce Macfarlane, Audrey Christie and John Call. The story relates an adventure of "Dynamite" Jones, celebrated among his mates as the fleet's readiest and most successful lover, who finds himself involved in a great wager. Can he, or can he not, in the week in which his battleship remains in Panama Bay, win the affection of a young hostess at a shore resort? Included in the cast are Larry Fletcher, Ruth Lee, John Alexander, Josephine Evans, Effie Afton, Ann Thomas and others.

Symphony Chorus of 200 To Make Debut Friday

New Organization and Four Soloists to Assist Orchestra in Beethoven's "Ninth", Closing Season at Opera House.

THE St. Louis Symphony Orchestra season will end this week with three performances of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony—the Choral Symphony in D minor—on Friday afternoon, Saturday evening and next Sunday afternoon, at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House.

Four soloists of national reputation, the St. Louis Symphony Chorus of 200 voices and the orchestra, under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann, will take part in the presentation. The program also serves to commemorate, in its two opening numbers, the 250th anniversary of the birth of Johann Sebastian Bach on March 21, 1685.

The extra concert, at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, was made necessary by an unusual demand for seats for the two regular performances. Ticket prices remain at the usual schedule for Symphony concerts.

Soloists are Jeanette Vreeland, concert soprano who has appeared with the Symphony Orchestra previously; Mrs. Gladys Havens of Kansas City, contralto who also has been heard with the orchestra; Chase Baromeo, baritone who has won success in opera and concert, and Robert Betts, young St. Louis tenor, who sang in the Municipal Opera chorus six years ago, won a Juilliard scholarship and has since appeared with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

THE chorus, assembled especially for the Ninth Symphony presentation, is under the direction of William B. Heyne, as chorus master. Plans have been made for the organization to become a permanent adjunct of the Symphony Orchestra.

The Ninth Symphony was last presented in St. Louis in December, 1929, with the combined Apollo and Morning Choral Clubs assisting the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Beethoven composed nine symphonies and except for the Ninth, all were instrumental. In his final work, he chose to bring in the chorus to make completely clear what he had to say in the symphonic form. The Ninth Symphony represents the utterance of an idea that Beethoven had in mind almost from the beginning of his career and reflects his libertarian philosophy. The Ninth Symphony was later to become a spur to Richard Wagner's music-drama, since Wagner accepted it as evidence of Beethoven's confession that instrumental music was inadequate for the greatest music statement.

The two Bach works that lead up to the Beethoven Symphony are the Overture from Suite No. 3 in D major and the Passacaglia in C minor, as transcribed by Ottarino Respighi. The Passacaglia was composed for organ and is outstanding among Bach's purely instrumental works.

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "Roberta," Orpheum.

Cornell and Bergner Top List of 10 Best Stage Performers

JUDGING the best performances of the past season on Broadway, eight New York dramatic critics are unanimous in selecting Katharine Cornell and Elizabeth Bergner as the theater's outstanding actresses. Not a male actor won the approval of all reviewers.

Participating in the annual "10 best" poll conducted by the Associated Press, every first-string critic cast a vote for Miss Cornell's Juliet in her lavish $95,000 production of "Romeo and Juliet," and for Miss Bergner's interpretation of the unmoral waif in "Escape Me Never."

The only man this season who approached a clean sweep was Pierre Fresnay, French star playing in "Noah." He missed the top niche by a single vote. Philip Merivale's acting of George Washington in "Valley Forge" missed out by only two votes.

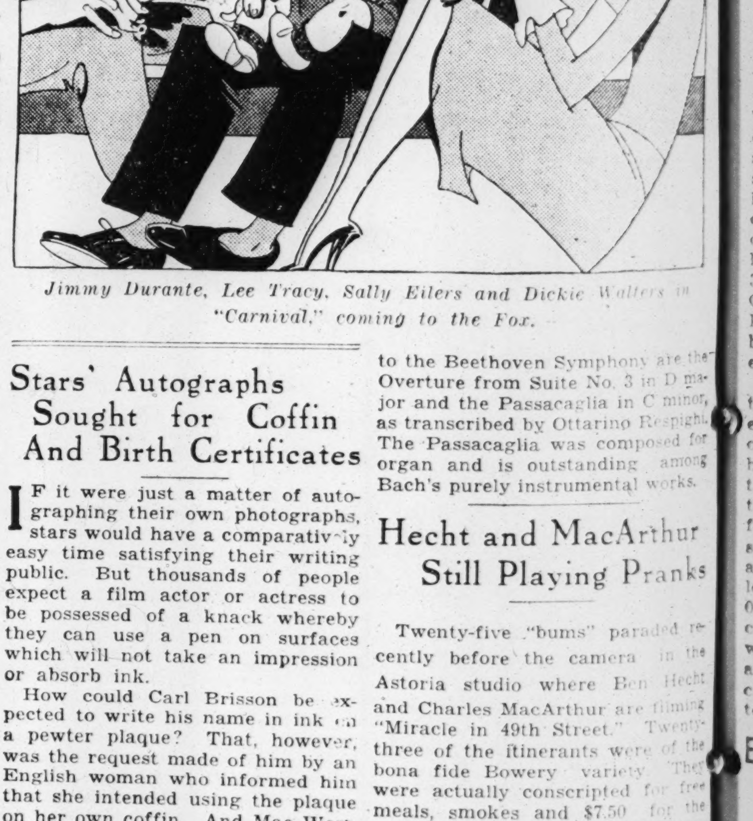
Other performances which ranked high in the poll include Leslie Howard in "The Petrified Forest," Florence McGee in "The Children's Hour," Lynn Fontanne in "Point Valaine," Barry Fitzgerald in the Irish Players repertory, Tallulah Bankhead in "Rain," and Lillian Gish in "Within the Gates."

Anna Sten Proves She Is Americanized

Samuel Goldwyn was puzzled whether he should cast Anna Sten, his blonde Russian star, as an American girl in her third picture. She couldn't speak a word of English when she arrived two and a half years ago. Her first two pictures were European in background. Then Goldwyn learned that Miss Sten had bought a flivver coupe and talked a policeman out of a ticket. That was enough. She is an American girl, born in Connecticut, in "The Wedding Night," soon to be released.

"Richelieu" With Monocle.

There were retakes on the George Arliss picture, "Richelieu," the other day in Hollywood. That's unusual. They were necessary because Arliss, who practically sleeps with his monocle, forgot to remove it and went through two scenes as the French Cardinal, who likely never saw a monocle.



Jimmy Durante, Lee Tracy, Sally Eilers and Dickie Walters in "Carnival," coming to the Fox.

Stars' Autographs Sought for Coffin And Birth Certificates

IF it were just a matter of autographing their own photographs, stars would have a comparatively easy time satisfying their writing public. But thousands of people expect a film actor or actress to be possessed of a knack whereby they can use a pen on surfaces which will not take an impression or absorb ink.

How could Carl Brisson be expected to write his name in ink on a pewter plaque? That, however, was the request made of him by an English woman who informed him that she intended using the plaque on her own coffin. And Mae West. One writer asked Miss West to write her name on a corset stay.

Mothers seem to go for Gary Cooper in a big way. They ask him repeatedly to signature such things as birth certificates. Cary Grant, while acting in "Wings in the Dark," received a square of silk material. The fan described it as a souvenir from a wrecked plane and wanted Grant's handwriting. Lee Tracy received an unusually large order. A box of 20 cigarettes was tendered, with the petition that Tracy take time off and write his full name on each of the smokes.

Is Cagney's Face Red?

James Cagney's performance as Bottom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" so pleased Max Reinhardt, director of the picture, that Reinhardt kissed him on both cheeks.

Hecht and MacArthur Still Playing Pranks

Twenty-five "bums" paraded recently before the camera in the Astoria studio where Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur are filming "Miracle in 49th Street." Twenty-three of the itinerants were of the bona fide Bowery variety. They were actually conscripted for free meals, smokes and $7.50 for the day's professional loafing in a flophouse sequence in the picture.

The last two derelicts were just imitation of Bowery life. They had dirt smeared over their eyes, and around the ears, and tufts of hair about nostrils and chin that looked like stubby hangover. As a matter of fact they were a couple of men in another of their prankish moods—Hecht and MacArthur themselves. In "Crime Without Passion," they had themselves and even Mrs. MacArthur (Helen Hayes) photographed as extras.

Metropolitan Opera Finale.

The Metropolitan Opera House, scene of the finale in "One Night of Love," will also be the setting for the end of Grace Moore's new picture, "On Wings of Song," under production in Hollywood.

LOANS AND VALUE OF CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER HOUSING

Borrowing in St. Louis and St. Louis County About $675,000, and in Country as a Whole, $45,000,000.

Upbuilding of properties, including modernization in many instances, campaigns for which have been promoted and supported by the Federal Housing Administration with active co-operation of local organizations, has been carried far in every section of the country. Except for finishing touches, as in St. Louis and St. Louis County, the movements, generally speaking, are practically completed, and the summing up, which cannot be expected in detail for several weeks, will, it is believed, bear out much of the claim made for its effectiveness in the direction of improved conditions.

Campaign methods have been much the same in every case. There has been a combination of individual resources and Federal insurance of such loans as were essential where personal resources were inadequate to the property improvement reasonably desired. The nature and scope of work that could be done to definite advantage of the properties was carefully studied and planned by men and women trained for it under Federal auspices. In St. Louis and St. Louis County the number of properties materially exceeded 40,000 and pledges to make the repairs and improvements deemed advisable were cheerfully given by the owners. As reported from the local headquarters, in the Chamber of Commerce Building, the cost of this modernization, when the outlay pledged shall have been made, will approximate $14,000,000, in round numbers. Of this aggregate, about $3,500,000 has been spent. The remaining work by the campaign management consists mainly of keeping in touch with those from whom pledges were received and thus forwarding the movement to the earliest practicable finish.

Modernization of the thousands of properties in city and county is but one feature of the campaign's direct benefit. The big advantage is found in the employment of many persons in various lines of business drawn into the betterment, and making a market for almost innumerable materials employed in it. While of itself there is an element of the temporary in the effect, but the employment and business will extend over several months if even the bulk of the pledges given is fulfilled.

Figures are not available to disclose the relative proportions of individual resources and borrowed funds put into the work here. It has been estimated that the percentage of borrowing has been about one-fourth. That could mean that the lending institutions in the St. Louis and St. Louis County have provided to date approximately $675,000. The statement was made to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch yesterday that a wide margin leader in loans of that nature is the Industrial Bank & Trust Co., not only in the number of loans, but in the aggregate amount involved. It was further stated that the bank named holds high rank among the leaders in the country as a whole. The number of financial concerns in the city lending support is said to be about 30, and that those in Maplewood, Clayton, Florissant, Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Wellston and Luxemburg are liberal holders of this Federal insured paper.

What has been accomplished in the country as a whole by the modernization movement can be stated only in approximate estimates based upon scattered reports from the various centers of activities in that field. These extend from California to New York, and include several of the 48 states. These unauthentic figures indicate that the loans total are not far below $45,000,000, with the number of loans closely approaching 100,000. This would make the average face amount of loans $450, which about coincides with what is understood to be the average here.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCE CO. LEASES MART BLDG. SPACE

The Meehan Electrical Appliance Co. has leased spacious quarters in the Mart building, South Twelfth street, and has moved its entire business from 3154 South Grand boulevard. The company announces it will shortly open a parts and service department on the South Side.

Ambassador Hotel Also Among Properties Taken Under Lease During the Week.

Lease for a long term, for the I. Z. Smith Estate of the store at 806-8 Sixth street, to the Schiff Co., a national chain shoe store organization, operating 275 stores in leading cities of the United States, was closed last week by Cornet & Zeibig. The lessee was represented by Ben Lowenstein.

Another lease reported by Cornet & Zeibig was that by Dave Muchnick of the Ambassador Hotel, at the northwest corner of Sixth and Lucas streets, containing approximately 60 rooms. The lease was made for the Elizabeth S. Bailey estate, all parties being represented by the agency named.

Other lease contracts closed during the week were reported by Cornet & Zeibig as follows:

For the Elizabeth S. Bailey estate, storeroom at 705 North Sixth street, in the Ambassador Hotel building, to Ben Weisman, for use as a restaurant for the Jemima Lindell estate, first floor storeroom at 1103 Washington avenue, to M. Lipshitz Co., for use in a general merchandising business; for the Dr. Thomas O'Reilly Estate Co., to Julius Glaser, fifth floor of 1701 Washington avenue, for office and wareroom for threads, linens and kindred merchandise; lot 80x109 feet on north side of Chestnut street between Ninth and Tenth streets, for the J. B. C. Lucas Trust, to a client of Henry Weisels, Inc., to be used as a parking lot.

KLEIN CHOSEN PRESIDENT BY REAL ESTATE SALESMEN

Annual Election Meeting Largely Attended and Competition for Offices Is Close.

The annual election of officers by the Real Estate Salesmen's Association took place last Thursday, following a luncheon that always features the monthly meetings of that organization. Attendance was such as to attest keen interest among its membership of 140. This was further manifest in the lively competition that marked the selection of officers for the ensuing 12 months, the choice for treasurer being by a single ballot. President Samuel L. Wimer, who skillfully piloted the association the previous term, was not an aspirant to similar service another year, but is ready for enthusiastic support whenever and wherever it may be called for.

The election carried official distinction as follows: President, R. L. Klein of Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., promoted from vice-president; first vice-president, F. A. Gilbert of Associated Real Estate Brokers; second vice-president, Ralph Crause of George F. Bergfeld, Inc.; secretary, R. D. W. Baldauf of Jost Realty Co., re-elected; treasurer, Francis H. Kennedy of Henry Hiemenz Realty Co.; sergeant-at-arms, A. G. Taylor of Webster Groves Trust Co. Installation will take place next Thursday, March 14, at 1 p. m.

H. P. TUDOR AND WIFE BUY HARDITH HILL COURT HOME

Sale of a recently completed residence, 6 Hardith Hill Court, constructed along popular modern lines, was reported last week by the Wenzlick Sales and Management Co., Inc. It is one of the first brought to completion in this new subdivision, located just off Rock Hill road, about three blocks south of Manchester road, in Rock Hill Village, the builder being Harry Wagner. Title to the property was conveyed by him to H. Plantagenet Tudor and wife, who will take possession of it as their future home. Both interests were represented by the Wenzlick organization, exclusive agents.

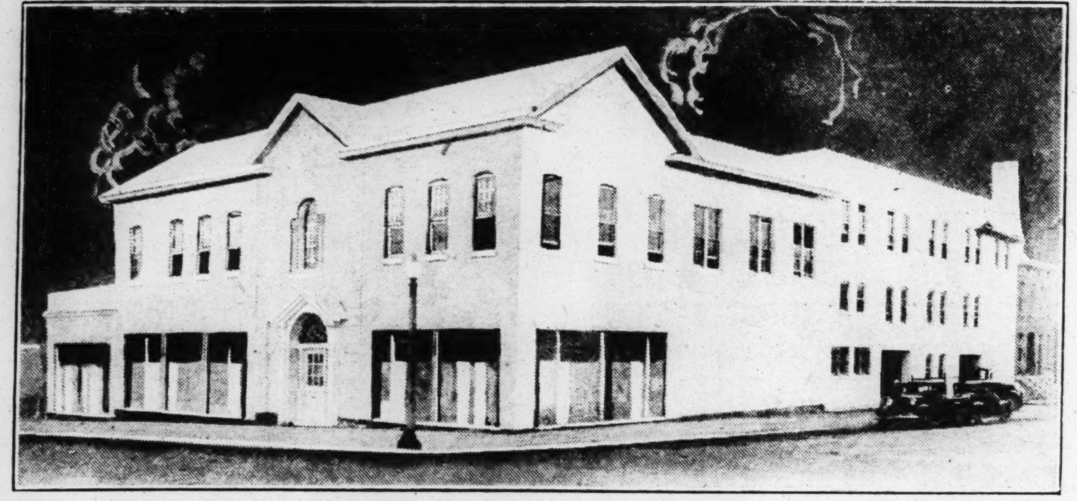
Two-family apartment at 7142 Amherst Place, University City, bought by Jesse P. and J. Porter Henry. Ralph D'Oench Realty Co. represented all interests concerned.



Modernization possibilities as examplified in the plan of the Hartenbach Carpet Cleaning Co., Grand boulevard and Clark avenue, where the building has been given a new appearance and a completely remodeled and refinished interior. The work was under supervision of the Baerveldt & Harig Construction Co.

MOTOR COMPANY LEASES LARGE BUILDING ON DELMAR

LeGrand Jones, Inc., reports having leased the property at 5875-83 Delmar boulevard to the Roberts Chevrolet Co. for several years. The building has a frontage of 100 feet on Delmar by a depth of 157 feet. Extensive alterations and improvements are being made in order to develop its attractiveness as an automobile sales and service establishment. The company is one of the oldest and most successful Chevrolet distributers in St. Louis. It will take possession of the property as soon as the improvements are completed.

The Jones realty agency has moved from 102 North Seventh street to offices in Suite 304, 114 North Seventh.

UNIVERSITY CITY APARTMENT AND PERSHING AVE. HOME SOLD

The two-family apartment at 7142 Amherst place, University City, last week became the property of Jesse P. and J. Porter Henry, who purchased it through the Ralph D'Oench Realty Co., representing both principals. The same agency also reported having sold the two-story modern residence, 4668 Pershing avenue, to P. Harvey Reis and wife.

CENTRAL BUSINESS CORNER IN WEBSTER GROVES SOLD

The Henry R. Weisels Co. announced yesterday sale of the property at the southwest corner of Lockwood and Gore avenues, Webster Groves, being in the heart of the business section of that progressive St. Louis County neighbor. It consists of a one-story business building containing three stores, lessees of which are the Thompson Tea Shop, Wearen Food Shoppe, Inc., and George W. Kriegesman Printing Co. The lot is 75 feet on Lockwood by 150 feet on Gore. The transaction was for the Webster Groves Investment Co., John Rockenstein being the purchaser. Negotiations were handled by the Weisels Co. and the Rudy Kohn Realty Co.

The Weisels Co. also reported having sold the 10-room residence at 5953 Cates avenue, on lot 50x157 feet, and the 9-room residence at 5580 Vernon avenue, on lot 30x135 feet, both for Helen Sherwood to Margaret Tegethoff.

UNIQUE HOME IN COUNTY PLANNED FOR J. A. SWITZER

A residence of unique design, reflecting the ideas of the owner, is to be erected on a broad and picturesque site on the west side of Geyer road south of the Clayton road. When completed it will be occupied as the Jerome A. Switzer family home. Its design, drawn by Tom P. McMahon, architect, is in accord with definite ideas of the owner, who also is closely observing every construction detail. It is regarded as a happy companion home for that of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher H. Muckermann, immediately opposite. The home is to be made ready for occupancy as early as practicable.

The site was acquired last week from Edward L. Bakewell, at a price not disclosed, but said by Bakewell to be firmly in line with values ruling in that exclusive residential section of the county.

BUYS FOUR LOTS ON WHICH TO BUILD HOMES AT ONCE

The Ashby Construction Co. announced yesterday that it had purchased four lots in Northampton Park from the Mardel Real Estate Co., J. Ben Miller handling the transaction for buyer and seller. The lots will be improved with five and six room houses.

D. Kenneth Ashby stated that he is building 20 homes in the city and county, one-half of which are under sale contract. Three of these are being completed in St. Louis Hills and two in Davis place.

N. ST. LOUIS R. E. SALESMEN HEAR ADDRESS ON RELIEF

A glimpse into the future of the relief system, as perceived by well-considered theory, was given members of the North St. Louis Real Estate Salesmen's Association at its monthly meeting last Monday night, attendance at which was large. The speaker was Prof. Frank J. Bruno, director of the department of social work, Washington University. The usual dinner preceded the address, and the occasion was accordingly pleasant and profitable, following the general rule with that organization.

FHA DISTRICT OFFICE HERE REPORTS ITS BUSIEST WEEK

Applications for More Than $150,000 New Construction Loans on File, Director Hawes Says.

The St. Louis office of the Federal Housing Administration received business last week at a faster rate than at any time since its opening, it was stated yesterday by Richard S. Hawes Jr., district director. Applications are now coming in at the rate of approximately $125,000 a week, he said, adding: "We have received applications for new construction totaling more than $150,000. We now have a total of 75 approved lending institutions in the Eastern District."

Hawes returned during the week from a trip through Southeast Missouri where he found that a large number of applications are in process of being filed with the FHA from such points as Cape Girardeau, Farmington, Poplar Bluff, Flat River, Steeleville and Kennett.

MARKED CHANGE WROUGHT BY BROAD MODERNIZATION

Convinced that the Grand boulevard and Market street district is ready for major improvements, Henry C. Hartenbach of the Hartenbach Carpet Cleaning Co. has materially altered his salesroom, plant and office at the southwest corner of Grand and Clark avenue. The original building was erected for Hartenbach early in 1913, and the general scheme of modernization carried out shows what can be done in that way on a plant that has served almost a quarter of a century. The work was done by the Baerveldt & Honig Construction Co., general contractors, and C. R. Kohlmeyer was the architect.

Double Error in Name Corrected.

Two typographical errors in the same story involved an extra degree of confusion in announcement last Sunday of the title transfer of the imposing residence at 41 Lake Forest. The new owner is J. L. Schrode, but in one instance it appeared as Schrader and in another as Schrade.

CHAIN STORE UNIT SPACE IS LEASED ON N. SEVENTH ST.

Premises to Be Given New Front and Interior Before Occupancy by Mathes Shoe Stores Co.

A long-term lease on the store at 423 N. Seventh street to the Mathes Shoe Store Co., a subsidiary of I. Mathes & Sons Shoe Co., at 1314-16 Washington avenue, was closed last week by Arthur S. Martin & Son. A modern front will be installed, embodying the latest developments in design and finish for that line of business. The front will be modernistic, in which contrasting colors of silver and black will predominate, and especial attention will be given to lighting of the show windows. The interior is to be remodeled and fixtures of newest design installed, zebra wood being used in the construction of all the latter. The floor covering is to be in carefully chosen colors. The company will handle women's shoes exclusively and also hosiery and handbags.

The parent company was established in 1899, occupying both wholesale and retail fields, and now operates 22 retail units in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky. The company maintains executive offices and warehouse at 1314-16 Washington avenue. Its officers are: I. Mathes, president; Robert Mathes, vice-president, and Leonard Mathes, secretary-treasurer. Martin & Son and the Andrean Leasing Co., handled the lease, and the former agency also reported having leased the ground formerly occupied by the Gayety Theater, northwest corner of Fourteenth and Locust streets, to John A. Woods, who will operate an automobile parking lot. The ground has a frontage of 100 feet on Locust by a depth along Fourteenth of 155 feet. The lease was made for the Amusement Syndicate Corporation, Martin & Son representing all parties.

OUTGROWS OLD QUARTERS, NOW IN SUMPTUOUS ONES

The Osterkamp-Havlicek Real Estate Co. has outgrown its former quarters and is occupying its new home, 5421 Gravois avenue, a few doors north of the former location. Alterations and decorations were made on a broad scale, including new furnishings.

Caution!

If you are remodeling or building a new home, of course you will want air-conditioned heating. But, before you buy—to avoid disappointment and later extra expense — ask yourself this question: "How can I be assured that my air-conditioning system will operate efficiently after it is installed?"

Remember, each system must be individually planned, designed and installed by competent engineers, for no two homes are exactly alike. If you want to be absolutely sure, inquire about the reputation of the manufacturer and the installer, and consult experienced builders or architects who have specified and bought air-conditioning in the past few years.

The overwhelming majority will recommend "AFCO," for it is recognized as the most advanced and finest system that can be bought —yet the price is extremely reasonable.

We invite you to ask for full information — without obligation. Phone JEfferson 0934 or visit the American Furnace Co., 2719 Delmar Blvd.

LEASE ADDS LINK TO CHAIN OF FOUR ST. LOUIS HOTELS

Morris Steinbaum to Take Immediate Possession of New Plaza — Also Operates One at Belleville, Ill.

The new Plaza Hotel, at Olive street and Leonard avenue, has become an added link in a chain of such enterprises operated by Morris Steinbaum, all of them in St. Louis except that at Belleville, Ill., bearing the name of that neighbor city. The addition was completed yesterday, with the signing of final papers in a lease contract, as a result of negotiations conducted by Arthur M. Fuldner, manager of the Oreon E. & R. G. Scott commercial leasing department, and Samuel M. Lowenstein. The consideration involved in the long-term contract, Fuldner stated, is approximately $200,000.

The hotel is a six-story structure, part of a parcel of realty owned by Maude S. Walker and Daisy G. Cornwell. It fronts 200 feet on Olive street, 135 feet on Leonard avenue, and 282 feet on the Lindell cut-off. The hotel section includes 140 rooms with bath and a large lobby on the first floor. Steinbaum has purchased from the owners, who have been operating the hotel, all of the furniture and equipment in the premises, and plans to spend approximately $25,000 for additional furniture and in decorating the premises.

Steinbaum is now operating the Maryland Hotel, Ninth and Pine streets; the Hamilton, the Bristol and the Marion-Roe hotels, all in St. Louis; also the Belleville Hotel, in Belleville, Ill. He will take possession of the New Plaza hotel at once.

This is the second hotel leased by Fuldner this year, the other being the 80-room Edison, at Eighteenth and Pine streets, it having been leased in January to M. M. Mabel. In the deal concluded yesterday Lowenstein represented Steinbaum and Fuldner, Edward Banister and John T. Hicks. The two latter attorneys represented the owners.

NATIONAL R. E. BODY NAMES ATLANTIC CITY FOR MEETING

New Plan of Regional Gathering Effective This Year, Starting Next Summer.

Atlantic City has been selected for the next annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, under decision reached by the Executive Committee. It will be held in October. Headquarters will be the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall.

The meeting will be the first under a plan designed to bring real estate groups throughout the country into closer communication, that of a single national gathering of realtors each year, supplemented by regional meetings in each geographical section. The latter are to be held next summer and fall. It is the plan to have them set up through joint action of the National Association, state real estate associations within the region and the host board. In many instances it is expected state meetings will be held in conjunction with the regional meeting.

A tentative division of the country into regions, in each of which the national body is to be represented by a vice-president, is being studied by the member boards and by the 36 state and provisional real estate associations. Proposed regions have been set up by the national directors, subject to revision at their spring meeting. Places and dates for the first series of regional meetings are also under discussion.

CLOSES SEVERAL SALES OF REALTY IN CITY AND COUNTY

John H. Armbruster & Co. report a number of sales closed during February, some of them as follows: 9740 North ave., for Harvey Vatterott to Jack W. Butts and wife; 8939 Argyle ave., for M. Spyer to William C. Johns; 8511 Renz ave., for Charles Maguire, represented by William Keano Jr., to V. J. Sanguinet; 3337 Dix ave., for Barbara Bartels to Eugene J. McDonald and wife; one-half acre and cottage in Maryland Heights, for E. S. Wright to Melvin L. Knisley and wife; 10 acres and improvements near McKelvey road, for Roy Palmer to Lloyd D. Robinson; cottage on Huntington, near Trescott ave., for Joseph Gohsen to Edmund F. Bayer; lot on Oakvale ave., with cottage, for L. C. Christmann to Leroy LaRue.

HOTEL PROPERTY AT NINTH AND CHESTNUT LEASED

A lease agreement was closed last week on the hotel at the northeast corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, including the second, third and fourth floors, to the Orpheum Hotel, Inc., owned by Harry Israel. The lease was made by the Edward K. Love Realty Co. for Dwight F. Davis, for five years.

ADDS UNIT TO INDUSTRIAL STRENGTH OF ST. LOUIS

The recent purchase by M. Moss of property at 1318 Blackstone avenue, has brought an addition to the industrial strength of St. Louis. He has adapted the property to and equipped it for the manufacture of window shades, and his initial force of employes will be at least five.

FEELS TOUCH OF REGRET OVER SALE OF HIS HOME

Relinquishing a residence built for and occupied by the family for more than 20 years is not to be done without the twinge of regret, is a fact admitted by W. W. Butts, of the Butts Realty Co. The dwelling, 6907 Washington boulevard, University City, on a site 50x192 feet, contains nine rooms and two baths, has a two-car garage reached by a side drive. It sets back 60 feet from the building line, on what generally is regarded as the most picturesque block in that district. It was sold in an unusually rapid way to Dr. Arthur J. Cone, of the faculty of Washington U. School of Medicine, who will take possession this week.

"When the residence was built there was no other development between it and Washington U." Butts said. "The situation now is vastly different and indicates the rapidity with which it has gone forward. The house had become too much of a burden upon the wife and daughter remaining after other children had established homes of their own. On the other hand, Dr. Cone has a wife and three young children, and will find it an ideal place in which to rear his family."

ST. LOUIS LEADS RECOVERY FROM RESIDENCE VACANCIES

Vacancy surveys made in 73 cities during the five-year period 1930 and 1934, and taken together for analysis by the Federal Housing Administration, disclosed that the number and percentage of vacant residences and apartments increased steadily from 1930 to 1933, but began to decrease sharply late in the latter year. On the average, more than 40 per cent of these vacancies were occupied in 1934, when the total was reduced more than 15 per cent from the 1930 average. While these figures are the only ones available, they give a definite indication of the vacancy trend for the five years.

The greatest improvement in 1934, as compared with 1933, was shown by these cities: St. Louis, Oklahoma City, Rockford, Ill.; Fort Wayne, Ind., and Denver.

MANY LAND BANK FARM SALES MADE ON CASH BASIS

Land sales continue to increase with a rising price level per acre throughout Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas, it was announced yesterday by the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, which serves these states.

Last month the Federal Land Bank sold 39 farms, against 33 sales in February, 1934, according to President Walter L. Rust of the bank. The price per farm last month represented an increase of 82 per cent over the February, 1934, price. Last month several sales were for cash, and others were for as much as 75 per cent in cash. This high percentage of cash sales, Rust said, indicates that investors and farmers are realizing the value of farm land as a safe investment.

SALE OF TWO RESIDENCES ON DE GIVERVILLE AV. REPORTED

Sale of two residences last week was reported by the John S. Blake & Bro. Realty Co. One, at 5819 DeGiverville avenue, has seven rooms with two-car garage, on lot 33x135 feet. This was sold for Mrs. Robert E. Hughes to Mrs. Helen M. Thierry, both of whom were represented by Blake & Bro. The other transaction involved 5735 DeGiverville avenue, a 10-room house with two baths and hot water heat, owned by the Hannauer Real Estate Co., for whom it was sold to a client of the Orean E. & R. G. Scott Realty Co.

LEASES WASHINGTON AVE. AND 3 OTHER PROPERTIES

The Barngrove Realty Co. has leased the store at 1904 Washington avenue, containing 6000 square feet of space, to the Commercial Fixture & Refrigerator Co., to be used as office and sales room. The same agency also reports other leases as follows: Store at 6221 Delmar boulevard to the Fairmount bar; store at 5823-25 Easton avenue, to the Easton Avenue Furniture Co.; store at 6350 South Rosebury avenue to the Howard Cleaners.

FORCED TO VACATE, FINDS NEW LOCATION NEARBY

In view of formal notice from Cornet & Zeibig, as agent of the Lucas estate, to vacate the space at 915 Chestnut street, in order that the one-story structure may be razed and the ground given over to a parking lot operator, L. J. Schneider, president of the Graef Realty Co., set about securing a new location. This he soon accomplished and will today have his office equipment installed in the building at 923 Chestnut. Plummer Bros., general contractors, will continue as co-tenants there.

A. C. SCHRIEBER AND WIFE BUY HOME IN FLORA PLACE

One of the many handsome residences in that favorite area, on an attractive site, 4115 Flora place, was acquired last week by Arthur C. Schreiber and wife, as their future home, from Adele Garthoeffner. It contains eight rooms and two baths, with adequate closets and other modern conveniences. The Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer R. E. Co., Inc., represented the buyer, the Glick R. E. Co. acting for the seller.

CHARLES F. LANGE JOINS REALTY SALES ORGANIZATION

Charles F. Lange, for several years president of the Lange China & Glass Co., has joined the sales staff of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. He will serve his clients from the Dickmann building office, Grand and Arsenal.

Alabama

FARMERS in Baldwin County, Alabama, are fortunately located; desirable climate, productive soils, good home conditions, abundant rainfall, several thousand carloads of early produce are shipped to Northern markets annually, growers receiving cash at shipping points. The early crops are followed by second crop on the same land. Baldwin County is a proved, good, prosperous general farming, livestock, poultry and trucking region; about 80 per cent of the farmers on lower Baldwin are from the North; good land still available at reasonable prices. For illustrated literature, write E. J. Hoddy, General Development Agent, Dept. B-94, Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., Louisville, Ky.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. White for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. Agricultural Development Department, Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

Week Days or Sunday WHICH?

Any day is a good time to start a Post-Dispatch want ad to bring profitable results.

Post-Dispatch want ads bring competent help for business or the household. They bring tenants for flats and apartments, suburban homes or that farm down state with equal success. They bring buyers with cash for personal property or real estate. They restore lost articles.

Place your need or proposition before the great circle of Post-Dispatch readers and have the want filled—quickly, economically, satisfactorily. Phone MAin 1111, for an adtaker.

Chaperone

THIS WORD IS FRENCH AND ORIGINALLY MEANT "HOOD", DIMINUTIVE OF CHAPE, (FRENCH FOR CAPE). IN ITS PRESENT MEANING A CHAPERONE SHELTERS AND SHIELDS A DEBUTANTE AS A HOOD SHIELDS THE FACE

If a woman should avail herself of the BUSINESS CHAPERONAGE of an automobile expert he would tell her that the USED CARS we are offering at such low prices are Good Buys—EVERY ONE OF THEM.

He's a College Star but He Still Wants Advice of Home Town Coach

And Charles Flachmann of Illinois Draws a Dividend When Karl Bauer Says "He's a Safe Bet for the Olympic Swimming Team."

By Harold Tuthill.

Charles "Chuck" Flachmann was puzzled. The 21-year-old St. Louis boy who is captain of the University of Illinois swimming team had several problems plaguing him. So he turned to his old friend, Karl O. Bauer, athletic director at the Missouri Athletic Association, for guidance.

As Flachmann sat at the desk in the Chicago Athletic Association he wrote to the man who had tutored him for 11 years about the problems that a senior in a university can have. As Bauer put it, "Here's a boy who is sure to be a member of the Olympic team because he knows he's not too old to learn. It should be a great lesson for other boys, particularly those learning to swim."

What were Flachmann's troubles? Well, here are parts of the letter:

> The swimming season has kept me pretty busy.
> We've won our first three meets by fairly good scores, but the teams weren't so good—Minnesota, Wisconsin and Chicago. We also are undefeated in water polo—although it looked pretty bad for awhile Saturday. We beat Chicago, 3 to 2, in an overtime period then. (March 2.)
>
> Last Saturday, I hit off a good 50—in 22.9, but the 440 didn't give me enough time to rest before the 100, and as a result I tied up. How can I train so that I can recuperate in time to swim the hundred? Try it in practice? Swim distance, or what?
> You recall your trying to get into my thick head the principle of vaulting—of double contact. Well I think I finally have it. The other day in practice, it just came to me in a flash. Mr. Hazelhurst said today that it looks very good, and not as exaggerated as he expected, and it really feels swell! I'm going to keep on using it in practice and meets.
> As this is my last year, I intend to swim in the National A. A. U.'s for Lake Shore Athletic Club here in Chicago. Art Highland is swimming for them, as is this high school backstroke sensation, Kiefer. The A. A. U.'s are in New York, and this is probably the only way I'll be able to get up there. They say that it will mean only that I cannot swim for anyone else for three months after the A. A. U. Do you think this is O. K.?
> Wish us luck in the rest of our meets, and I'll see you all Easter vacation.
>
> Sincerely,
> CHUCK FLACHMANN.

Now that you know so much about Flachmann's problems, let's consider Coach Bauer's answers. It should be explained that Flachmann is not the only swimmer to turn to this kindly instructor for advice. During his 18 years at M. A. A. and his six-year tenure at Washington University he has met many boys, all of whom call him "Coach" and whose concerns are his concern.

"Mr. Hazelhurst" referred to in the letter was Harry Hazelhurst, coach at the Chicago Athletic Association.

Bauer Tells the Story.

Then in a rich Germanic accent Bauer told the story of "vaulting" and of "double contact," which he says has become known as the Japanese stroke. The origin of that, according to Bauer, is that the Japanese imported Johnny Weismueller to teach them how to swim. As a teacher, Weismueller was a flop, but the Japanese took thousands of pictures of him in action and finally saw that unconsciously he was using the "double contact." In other words, Johnny's forward action was such that he looked as if he had his hands together in the water for a fraction of a second.

It would take an artist and several illustrations to picture the double contact, but this is the idea in back of it. When a swimmer's hand breaks the water it is up to the swimmer to bring the other hand around and into the groove, so to speak, created by the drawing back of the first hand. There is a slight suction there, too, that tends to keep the swimmer in a straight path.

For swift action this double contact business is repeated on every stroke and also is accompanied by "vaulting." Bauer coined that name from the action of a pole vaulter when he gives the last effort to straighten out his body and skim over the pole. In the water, the swimmer hunches his body so as to go down into the water and to receive the full force of gravity. Bauer stated that in that manner a swimmer's progress was always kept forward.

It Takes Time to Learn.

Flachmann has had those principles shouted at him for 11 years. Yet during all the time that he was winning Big Ten dash championship and Municipal titles here in St. Louis, he was not sure that he had grasped "double contacting." And then it came to him, as he wrote, "in a flash." So don't be disappointed if when you get into a swimming pool, "double contacting" doesn't come quickly.

Bauer said that if Flachmann remembers the double contact and continually adds to his knowledge there is nothing that will keep him off the Olympic team. So he advised him to try out for the National A. A. U. championships.

As for the problem of recuperating after the 440, Bauer advised him to forget about the quarter mile. In Bauer's opinion, Flachmann has not been trained to swim the 50, 440 and 100, in rotation.

This Dream Came True.

Speaking of training, Bauer told a story. During his stay at Washington, Bauer was lenient with the boys in the matter of what to eat and what to drink and had his own training formula. Briefly, the boys could not drink beer or hard liuqor, smoke or go to a dance before a swimming meet. Afterwards, drinking beer within reason was permitted. Usually, the night before a meet, the coach allowed the boys a light snack—cocoa and pie a la mode.

If the boys didn't have a light lunch, they were apt to roll and toss all night long. On one of the trips, a swimmer was so excited over the coming meet that when the train lurched around a corner, this particular boy rolled out of his bunk onto the floor of the Pullman. Immediately he began stroking his arms and kicking his feet for all he was worth. In his dream he was winning his race, but when the other boys became aware of what was going on, they had a loud laugh. However, he wasn't dreaming the next night, when he won his race, using the same crawl he did on the Pullman floor.

Benefited by Bauer's Coaching.

All of that may seem far away from Flachmanns' problems, but it isn't, because the Illinois captain has benefited by Bauer's teachings. The M. A. A. coach, who is 40 years old, said that in addition to Flachmann and Weissmueller, he knows of only one other swimmer who uses the "double contact" and this is Bud Shields of Utah. Since Bauer coached several of the few Olympic swimmers from St. Louis and since he worked with Roland Baer to make him the only junior 220-yard champion ever produced in St. Louis, Flachmann will do well to continue heeding the advice of Bauer.

FAVORITES WIN IN U. S. INDOOR TENNIS TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—In a perfunctory manner all but one of the seeded players coasted through the first round of the men's national indoor singles tennis championships today as an opening field of 64 starters was cut in half in a protracted session lasting almost eight hours.

The lone seeded player extended to win was Eugene McCauliff of Yonkers, who was hard-pressed by Ernest Koslan of New York University, 6—4, 9—11, 7—5.

Gregory S. Mangin, twice former indoor champion, and Berkeley Bell, seeded No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, encouraged their supporters, who anticipate a final featuring Bell and Mangin, by virtue of their opening round triumphs. Mangin accounted for Harry Pagel of New York, 6—2, 6—3, and Bell scored a straight-set victory, 6—0, 6—2, over the veteran Stephen V. Brubans of Hoboken, N. J.

The other seeded players, J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., Frank J. Bowden, Dr. Lawrence Kurzrok, Edward E. Jenkins Jr. and Herbert L. Bowman also gained the second round. Hall conquered young Joe Abrams, 6—0, 6—4; Bowden defeated Irving Pratt, 6—2, 6—1; Kurzrok overcame Sydney L. Berger, 6—1, 11—9; Jenkins defeated William Lurie, 6—3, 6—4, and Bowman defeated Lincoln Halberstadt, 6—0, 6—2.

PATRONS ALLIANCE VOLLEYBALL TEAMS TO PLAY IN TITLE GAME

Fathers of the Long School district and those from the Oak Hill School district, of group A in the South Side division of the St. Louis Public Schools Patrons' Alliance Association, are scheduled to play for the group volleyball title tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the gymnasium of the Cleveland High School.

March 20, the Mount Pleasant School team, which captured the Group B title of the South Side, will play the winner of Monday night's contest. On March 27, Waldbridge School, winner of the North Side division is scheduled to play the winner of the South Side honors for the city title at the Roosevelt High School gymnasium.

The Association is composed of 70 teams and is sponsored by the St. Lonis Public Schools Patrons' Alliance. A. J. Hampe has been appointed as athletic chairman of the association.

KARL HODGE TO DEFEND INDOOR TENNIS CROWN

By Davison Obear.

Karl Hodge, Triple A Club player, will defend his title in the ninth annual St. Louis District indoor tennis championships which will open at the Washington University Field House March 23. Hodge holds two legs on the S. Roy Culbertson trophy and a third victory would give him permanent possession of the coveted prize.

At its recent monthly meeting the District Executive Committee adopted a set of rules and regulations to govern this year's indoor event. In addition to the men's singles there will be men's doubles and women's singles. A mixed doubles event will be added if eight teams enter.

Russell C. Hadden, president of the district body, announced that the tournament would open on Saturday afternoon, March 23, and close on Saturday night, March 30. There will be no matches on Sunday. Matches will be played at night, beginning Monday, March 25.

The men's singles will be limited to a total of 48 players. Entry in the men's doubles will be limited to 16 teams. The women's singles entry is not expected to exceed 18 players. The entry in all classes is expected to show an increase this year. There is more public interest in the indoor play judging from the advance sale of season tickets exceeding any previous tournament.

Players may enter at the sporting goods stores, 911 Locust, 915 Pine street, 1102 Locust and 409 North Broadway. Entries may also be made at the district tennis headquarters at 514 Franklin-American Building, 315 North Seventh street.

The entry fees are $1.50 per player in singles and $3 a team in doubles. No entries will be accepted unless entry fee is paid. Player's tickets, good for admission to all matches, are given out upon payment of entry fee.

Favorites Win In Ozark A. A. U. Handball Play

Jack Srenco and other seeded stars in the Ozark A. A. U. handball tournament advanced in first-round play yesterday afternoon at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Srenco, who recently retained the Downtown Y. M. C. A. title and is favored to win the District A. A. U. event, defeated J. F. McDonald of St. Louis University, 21—5, 21—1.

Other seeded players who advanced were S. Wolff, Downtown Y, who defeated J. Raymond of the same organization, 16—21, 21—11, 21—9, and B. Littman of the Y. M. H. A., who won from R. Franks of the Downtown Y. 21—8, 21—9. Lou Blocher, the fourth seeded entrant, gained the second round on a bye.

Second round matches will be played on the same courts tomorrow night.

Yesterday's results:

St. Louis' first all figure skating carnival is taking shape at the Winter garden. The show will be held Wednesday and Thursday, March 27 and 28. It is being presented by the St. Louis Skating Club under the direction of Norval Baptie and Gladys Lamb, international pair skating champions.

Colored ice will be used for the first time here. A toboggan slide will be built in the south end of the Winter Garden, starting from the balcony, and some of the performers will enter the rink on the slide.

The show will be called the "Winter Olympics." Special lighting arrangements are planned.

The grand march of the contestants representing some 20 countries in costumes, will have more than 100 skaters in a skating drill.

DISPUTE OVER STATUE GOING TO COMMONS

Jacob Epstein in Trouble Again, This Time Over Figure of Christ.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 9.—A controversy over the thorn-crowned sixton figure of Christ chiseled by Jacob Epstein, New York-born sculptor, will be taken into the House of Commons Monday.

Sir Cooper Rawson, Conservative, has given notice that he will ask the Home Secretary to "instruct police to remove or confiscate" the statue, which "offends against the public decency." The statue is now on exhibition at the Leicester Galleries.

Epstein, who has been unable to lay hand to mallet or chisel in England for nearly two decades without stirring up a dispute, has refused to be drawn into the present one, saying, "I've made the statue and I've nothing to say about it—except what I've already said in the statue."

Christ With Squat Nose.

The 11-foot high white stone creation, entitled "Behold the Man," gives Christ a squat nose and a square-cut chin. The wrists, crossed on the knees, are bound by rope hanging to the feet.

While Dr. Walter Matthews, successor to Dean Inge, sees "an expression of great power" and "an interpretation of one who can't be defeated" in the statue, the Catholic Times castigates Epstein's work with "we see only a distorted reminiscence of a man, the debased, sensuous flat features of an Asiatic monstrosity."

Epstein's sale price for the statue is £3150 (around $15,000).

Previous Controversies.

Fifteen years ago Epstein's "Figure of Christ" brought a storm of criticism when it was placed on exhibition at the Leicester Galleries.

The first international furore over Epstein came with his Oscar Wilde tomb in Paris. Objection was so violent that the Paris police finally put a sheet over it, and there were threats it would be removed unless modified.

Epstein's "Rima" memorial to W. H. Hudson, the naturalist, in Hyde Park, London, in 1925 brought indignation. A painter took one entire day in Trafalgar Square denouncing it.

After the Hudson memorial there came "Day" and "Night" and, in 1931, "Genesis," which set off the objectors with fresh fury. Whatever the critics thought, the public was interested. As many as 40,000 persons went to see the work in a single day.

His most recent trouble maker prior to the current one was his "Venus" last year, protests being made that it was derogatory symbolism of womanhood.

"TREND" SAID TO INDICATE RE-EMPLOYMENT OF 700,000

Chamber of Commerce of U. S. Points to "Definitely Ascending" 3-Month Record.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9. — The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today that a continuance of early March business trends would mean re-employment of 700,000 workers in manufacturing industry between Jan. 1 and March 31.

In its "Washington Review," the chamber said March production was "definitely ascending" and that, "if the trends of the first week persist, the results for the month will demonstrate a continuation of substantial improvement over a four-month period."

The chamber's estimate was supported by the survey of current business published monthly by the Department of Commerce. The survey found that: "Industrial production expanded during January by more than the usual seasonal amount, the adjusted index rising to 90 per cent of the 1923-25 average, the highest point reached since August, 1933, when the pre-code rush of activity terminated. . . . Production in the first two months of the year has been the highest for this period since 1930."

The chamber report pointed out that price levels, except for agricultural products, have been steady; that the level of all farm prices as a group is now higher in relation to prices of industrial products as a group than in 1926.

STOMACH BACK IN PLACE, GIRL EATS CHICKEN WING

Broth and Cereal Also for Alyce Jane McHenry; "Progress Satisfactory," Hospital Says.

By the Associated Press.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 9.—Ten-year-old Alyce Jane McHenry, whose inverted stomach and other displaced organs were put in proper position last Monday in a difficult operation, nibbled a chicken wing today. She had not been able for many months to partake of solid food without extreme discomfort. Today she also sipped beef broth and ate cereal.

"Progress satisfactory" was the hospital report on her condition.

The child's mother, Mrs. Louella McHenry of Omaha, Neb., and her aunt, Mrs. Loren Nelson, opened her many presents and showed them to her. She showed keen interest in her mail. The postoffice has been forced to use a truck to deliver messages of encouragement and good wishes and presents which are pouring in from all sections of the country and Canada.

The girl is being encouraged to chew gum to strengthen the muscles in her jaws, grown weak through lack of use.

CHOICE OF SALES TAX BILLS BEFORE CITY BOARD TOMORROW

Counselor Hay Considers House Measure Would Better Satusfy St. Louis Taxpayers.

The City Board of Estimate and Apportionment, at its meeting tomorrow will be asked by City Counselor Hay to express a preference between the two sales tax proposals now before the two houses of the State Legislature.

Both the Senate and the House sales tax bills provide for a 2 per cent levy, which is estimated to yield the State $20,000,000 annual revenue. They differ in the allocation of this revenue, and Hay considers the House bill more likely to be in the interest of St. Louis taxpayers.

Hay has asked John G. Burkhardt, tax attorney in his office, to prepare an analysis of the two bills for the information of the Board of Estimate.

"It is my understanding," the gCity Counselor said, "that the House bill would allocate $6,000,000 to relief, $2,000,000 to care of inmates of State institutions, $2,000,000 to old-age pensions, and $10,000,000 for schools to be paid to school boards on the basis of $20 a year for each pupil in elementary grades and $30 for each high school pupil. This would make it possible to reduce our school tax rate, now 85 cents on $100 valuation, possibly to 65 or 60 cents. This would be o considerable relief to taxpayers.

"The Senate bill allocates the rfevenue in percentages, 40 per cent to the State school fund, 35 per cent to relief, 10 per cent to old-age pensions and 15 per cent to care of inmates of State institutions."

$125,761 FOR DEPOSITORS IN THREE CLOSED BANKS HERE

RFC Loans Will Permit Distribution to 6400, Deputy Finance Commissioner Announces.

Payment of $125,761 to 6400 depositors in three closed St. Louis banks will be made soon as the result of loans on slow assets by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it is announced by Creighton B. Calfee, special deputy State Finance Commissioner in charge of the banks.

Checks for $24,433, representing a 20 per cent disbursement, will be mailed this week to 1000 depositors of the Sarah-Olive Bank which obtained a $39,700 loan. The RFC will receive $9434 owed it by the bank and the rest will be held in reserve for claims pending against the bank. This will be the second disbursement to depositors, bringing the total to 50 per cent.

After formal approval by the Circuit Court, the Chouteau Trust Co. will pay $70,129, or 12½ per cent to 2600 depositors. As a reserve for pending claims, $86,801 from the $162,000 loan will be held in reserve, the rest being used for miscellaneous bills. The payments will bring the total returned to depositors to 37½ per cent.

The Park Savings Trust Co. has obtained an $68,458 loan, making possible a first payment of 10 per cent to 2800 depositors, amounting to $31,189. The St. Louis County Bankers' Association will receive $28,296, the RFC, $4490, and the rest will be held for contingencies.

FLOWER SHOW PROGRAMS

Music to Be Heard Daily at Arena March 30 to April 7.

Musical programs will be played daily as part of the Greater St. Louis Flower and Garden Show to be held at the Arena, March 30 to April 7. Selections will be given on a large pipe organ to be installed.

Vocal and instrumental solos will be included in the program. An orchestra will play special concerts, and other musical selections will be presented by public school musical organizations. The Alton Symphony Orchestra will play April 7.

British Fascist Defends Royalty.

BLACKBURN, England, March 9.—An attack on the British royal family at a Fascist meeting tonight brought a sharp rebuke from Sir Oswald Mosley, Blackshirt leader. After a heckler who made derogatory remarks about the royal family had been ejected, Mosley said: "We do not mind insults to ourselves but anyone who insults the royal family will not be allowed to remain in a Fascist meeting."

MEXICAN ARCHBISHOP PROTESTS AT ARREST

Freed After 24 Hours in Jail — Likens Seizure to Kidnaping.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., March 9.—Archbishop Pascual Diaz, primate of Mexico, in a letter to President Lazago Cardenas tonight protested against his recent 24-hour-arrest as "having all the characteristics of a kidnaping."

After admitting that he might involuntarily have been guilty of one infraction of the religious laws, the Archbishop complained that in the jail where he was held all Thursday night "we were not given even the most indispensible elements that even criminals are furnished in civilized countries."

"A chair and a small broken bench were all that there were in that place, where so many priests have been imprisoned lately for the crime of saying a mass, helping a dying person or pronouncing the word of Christ," the Archbishop continued. "They did not give us food and it was necessary for me to send outside to buy a little black coffee, which I paid for, for my companions and myself. This I had to do again in the morning."

The Archbishop said he made the protest because his rights as a citizen had been violated and because the agents of the Ministry of the Interior had infringed the Federal Constitution and the laws of the State by arresting him in La Visitacion, State of Mexico. He denied that he or his companions had worn ecclesiastical clothing in public or violated the law by taking collections at confirmation service.

The Archbishop assured the President he would "never offer material resistance" to the religious laws, after stating numerous Catholics had charged him with weakness because he had refused repeatedly to contribute to any steps which would alter public peace and result in bloodshed.

"The agents of the Ministry of Interior feared, so they said, that I had a Thompson machine gun in my car," the Archbishop concluded, "but I do not carry with me other arms than the truth of Christ on my lips and a deep Christian love for my friends and my enemies."

The Archbishop paid a fine of 100 pesos (about $28) before his release from jail with four companions, all charged with violation of the country's religious laws.

FRAUD CONVICTIONS UPHELD

Officers of Mortgage Firm Had Appealed at Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 10.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed today the conviction of Wilbur Mansfield and Frank Mansfield, former officers of the Universal Bond & Mortgage Co., on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The Mansfields were convicted in Federal Court here Sept. 29, 1933, and sentenced to serve six years and a day each and fined $23,000 each. They obtained a review before the Court of Appeals, alleging 29 errors and denying they had received a fair trial. "We have carefully examined the record and are satisfied that the appellants were accorded a fair and impartial trial and, no substantial error appearing, the judgment is affirmed" the Court of Appeals said in the opinion.

GOLD CAMPS ROBBED IN CHILE

Government to Employ More Guards to Protect Miners.

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 9.—Lawlessness, which always has followed gold camps, has brought a call for help from the Government's gold washing department.

Additional carabineros are needed to patrol the remote regions where Chile's unemployed are picking a living from the streams and the hillsides. Robberies and brutal attacks on lone travelers have become frequent occurrences. Often there are desperate sallies upon centers where the gold has been brought by the Government to await transportation to the coast.

SECRETARY DERN'S SON WEDS

Bricklayer's Daughter Is Bride in Washington Ceremony.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The Secretary of War Dern's son today married a bricklayer's daughter in ceremonies at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. Helen McCollam, RFC employe, became the bride of her former co-worker in statistics, William B. Dern.

A large crowd waited outside for the bridal pair. Secretary Dern's big moment came when photographers were snapping the family party after the ceremony, when a photographer asked him to kiss the bride, which he did. The wedding service was attended by the immediate family and closest friends.

FORMER LIBBY HOLMAN ENTERS FIGHT FOR REYNOLDS ESTATE

In Brief Denies Assertion of Millionaire's First Wife That Second Marriage Was Invalid.

By the Associated Press.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., March 9.—Libby Holman Reynolds, widow of Smith Reynolds, who was married to him six days after his divorce from Anne Cannon, tonight became a litigant in the fight over the tobacco heir's $30,000,000 estate. She filed a brief in the case, which will be heard by Judge Clayton Moore in Superior Court Monday. In the brief she denies the assertion of Reynolds' first wife that the tobacco heir's Reno divorce was illegal and his subsequent marriage invalid. She agreed to accept the settlement plan offered by the Reynolds family. The first Mrs. Reynolds seeks to exclude the former Miss Holman and her infant son from sharing in the estate.

In another brief filed today R. K. Wittenburg, Smith Reynolds' Reno attorney, denied the assertion that Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds-Smith was ill and under the influence of a narcotic when she agreed to obtain a divorce.

Wittenburg, who said he was present when Mrs. Reynolds-Smith made the deposition in question, asserted he had been advised at the time by her physician that she was "in full possession of her mental faculties."

Previously J. F. Cannon, father of the first Mrs. Reynolds, filed an affidavit by Anna R. Reilley, a nurse, which said his daughter had been too ill to appear in court for the divorce proceedings, and that Mrs. Reynolds, in asking for the divorce, made an affidavit while she was so completely under the influence of morphine that she was unaware of the answers she gave.

HUSBAND KNIFES CALLER VISITING ESTRANGED WIFE

Cook Wounds Painter Four Times on Face in Fight in University City.

William F. DuFour Jr., a painter, 1383 Clara avenue, suffered four knife cuts on the face last night in a fight with Ralph Smith, a cook, 715 Pine street.

The fight occurred at the home of Roy Hamner, 611 Westgate avenue, University City, where Smith's estranged wife lives. DuFour, who was calling on Mrs. Smith, was taken to County Hospital.

WILL OF RICHARD A. JONES

Specific Bequests of $2100; No Estimate of Value of Estate.

The will of Richard A. Jones, an attorney, 5121 Kensington avenue, who died Feb. 24, was filed in Probate Court yesterday. Distributing an estate of unestimated value, he made specific bequests totaling $2100 to relatives, household employes and two religious organizations. The residue will go to two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Lewis, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Evelyn J. Merriam, Hollywood, Cal., and to Mrs. Kate Pollard Hafner.

Execution of the will is in charge of the Public Administrator, no executor having been named.

APARTMENT LOAN PROVISION CAUSES HOLC BILL CLASH

House Action on Measure Tied Up by Fight; Amendment Barring Politics Rejected.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—A dispute that got out of control of the Banking Committee in charge of the measure forced the House to adjourn in an uproar late today and defer until Monday final action on the Home Owners' Loan Corporation expansion bill.

The clash centered around a provision in the bill that would permit the Federal Housing Administration to make loans up to $25,000 to finance alterations, repairs and improvements to apartments, hotels and commercial plants of all types.

One element wanted to remove the provision entirely; another held out for boosting the maximum limit on loans to $50,000.

Administration forces were forced to compromise yesterday on a $1,750,000,000 increase in the HOLC fund, $250,000,000 more than had been originally proposed.

Representative Ramspeck (Dem.), Georgia, obtained adoption of an amendment to forbid the corporation to employ anyone connected with a business organization having dealings with the HOLC.

A proposal for elimination of any political considerations in promoting employes of the HOLC was rejected by a vote of 52 to 118. It was offered by Representative Andrews (Rep.), New York.

MOSCOW TO BE BEAUTIFIED

New Resources Available After Most Pressing Work Is Done.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 9.—Spring in Russia will bring concentration of efforts to speed up beautification and modernization of Moscow, according to Dictator Joseph Stalin's plans approved by the Moscow Communist party committee last night.

The most pressing work for industrialization of the capital has been completed, it was announced, and hence increasing quantities of materials and labor can now be devoted to city improvement. The plan, which provides mainly for razing of some dilapidated buildings and repair of others, includes also paving of streets and speeding up of street car service.

Torso Found in Lime.

By the Associated Press.

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn., March 9—A human torso was found encased in lime on the banks of the forked Deer River, 13 miles east of here, late today. Sheriff R. C. Hawkins said the head, arms and legs were missing. He said he would notify officers at Laurel, Miss., on the theory that the body might be that of Mrs. Daisy Keeton whose daughter now is on trial for her murder.

The Sheriff said a physician at Bells, Tenn., identified the bones as those of a woman.

THREE CHARGED WITHM URDER IN COLUMBUS, O., TRAIN WRECK

Accused of Opening Switch to Discredit Rail Employe; 3 Killed 16 Injured.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—The wrecking of a speeding Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train here Dec. 27, when three trainmen were killed and 16 passengers injured, resulted today in first degree murder charges against three Columbus men.

The train, bound from Cleveland to Columbus, crashed through an open switch and plunged into a string of empty box cars on a siding.

Hubert Lindsey, 53 years old; Victor Tomlinson, his stepson-in-law, and Hugh Brockman are specifically charged with "unlawfully and maliciously tampering with a certain railroad switch . . . with intent to endanger passage of a locomotive and occasion the death of three persons."

The charges were filed by Lieut. H. S. Lyons of the Pennsylvania Railroad police, after attorneys for Lindsey sought his release on a writ of habeas corpus. Chief of Detectives Ebright of Columbus expressed the belief the switch was tampered with in an effort to injure the reputation of another railroad employe in the hope that Tomlinson would get the man's job. Ebright said Lindsey and Brockman were former convicts.

OFFICER DENIES KENNAMER HAD ACCOMPLICE IN KILLING

Tulsa (Ok.) Detective Sergeant Says There Is No Evidence to Connect Wilcox Youth With Case.

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., March 9.—Detective Sergeant Henry B. Maddux announced today "there positively is no evidence" to connect Homer Wilcox Jr., with the killing of John F. Gorrell Jr., a crime for which 19-year-old Phil Kennamer has started serving a 25-year prison sentence on a manslaughter conviction.

W. F. Gilmer Jr., assistant county prosecutor, reopened the case yesterday "to end these rumors of a supposed accomplice." Wilcox, 17, heir to oil wealth, had admitted he shot out street lights near where the dental student was found dead of two bullet wounds in the head last Thanksgiving.

CULBERTSON SYSTEM CHANGES IN BIDDING

One No Trump Must Mean 4 or 5 Honor Tricks With 4-3-3-3 Distribution.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Changes in the Culbertson system of bidding at contract bridge were announced today.

Requirements for opening bids of one no trump are increased to four or five honor tricks with 4-3-3-3 distribution except in rare cases where tenace hands of other distribution make a no trump bid preferable to a suit opening.

A new void-showing bid is created. A double jump shift by the responding hand, three spades over partner's opening bid of one club, for instance, shows a void in spades and a strong fit in clubs with slam possibilities.

Three honor tricks are required for an opening bid in any position except when a suit is rebiddable two and a half honor tricks are sufficient. Any five-card suit headed by ace-king or three honors is rebiddable. A six-card suit is always rebiddable.

A one-over-one bid or a takeout of two in a lower ranking suit is forcing for one round. The requirements for a takeout of one no trump after an intervening pass have been lowered to one plus honor tricks. A two no trump takeout is forcing to game and requires at least two and a half honor tricks.

Original bids of two no trump require five or more honor tricks with eight honor cards and all suits stopped.

A double raise of partner's original suit is forcing to game and requires at least four trumps, two honor tricks and a singleton, two and a half honor tricks with a doubleton and three with balanced distribution.

A raise from one to four is preemptive and may be given with five trumps and strong distributional advantages.

A defensive overcall of one more than necessary indicates eight winners with a two-suiter or a strong rebiddable suit.

WARNS KENTUCKY AGAINST MINE WAR LIKE ONE IN ILLINOIS

Union Officer Says Operators Are Bringing Progressive Group Into Field to Create Dissension.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 9.—Witnesses for the United Mine Workers of America told Gov. Ruby Laffoon's investigating commission today that operators sought to split the ranks of miners in Southeastern Kentucky coal fields by bringing in a rival union that "has left a trail of riot and bloodshed in Illinois."

William Turnblazer, president of the district union, testified "the power of the Sheriff's office" was invoked by the operators against the United Mine Workers and in favor of the Progressive Miners' Union. Turnblazer expressed belief the operators intended to create dissension among the miners so as to prevent either union from organizing the field.

The testimony of Turnblazer and other witnesses followed charges made at the first two days of the hearing that union organizers were intimidated in Harlan County and that the American flag had been defiled at Lynch, Ky., with the encouragement of peace officers.

WOMAN DIES OF POISON SHE TOOK BY MISTAKE

Mrs. Henry Flier, 52, Thought Tablets Were Headache Medicine, Husband Says.

Mrs. Henry Flier, 52 years old, died at City Hospital last night from the effects of poison taken by mistake last Wednesday in her home at 7733 Ivory avenue.

Her husband told police she got up early that day with the expressed intention of taking headache medicine. After she returned to bed, complaining that she felt worse, he found two tablets of poison missing from a box on the medicine shelf, he said.

St. Louis Masons Get Wage Scale.

An agreement between mason contractors and employes in the St. Louis area on wage scale and working conditions was signed Friday by President Roosevelt, it was announced yesterday by James A. Keithly, of the code authority. The agreement, which will be effective March 18, establishes an eight-hour day and provides minimum wages ranging from $1.37 an hour for foremen to 87 cents an hour for helpers.

CARD OF THANKS

I WISH to extend my sincere thanks to my relatives, to the many friends and all who stood by me in my sad bereavement, the loss of my dear son, our dear nephew and cousin John (Van) Anderson, especial thanks to the clergy of St. Liborius, St. Joseph and St. Vincent churches, to the pallbearers, the Fourth Ward Democratic Club members, the Eagles, the Maccabees and to employees of State Auto License Office. Many thanks for the beautiful floral offerings and spiritual bouquets, also the Brockland Undertaking Co. for their kind and efficient services.
MRS. ANNA JARVIS (Mother).

CARDS OF THANKS

TO all our relatives and friends we wish to extend our sincerest thanks for their kindness and sympathy tendered us in the time of sadness and bereavement caused by the death of our beloved wife, mother, daughter, daughter-in-law, sister and sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen V. Ficke. Especially do we wish to thank Rev. U. S. Randall for his prayers and kind words of consolation, also Miss Mable Kraus and the pallbearers for their assistance.
MR. LESTER FICKE AND FAMILY.

TO all our relatives and friends we wish to extend our sincere thanks for their kindness and sympathy as well as the beautiful floral offerings tendered us in the time of sadness and bereavement caused by the death of our beloved mother and especially do we wish to thank the Rev. George M. Poth, the pallbearers, Mr. Frank Spahn and the Kron Undertaking Co.
THE MERETO FAMILY.

I WISH to thank our friends for their kind sympathy and beautiful floral offerings in the death of my dear son, Joseph W. Norton, especially do I wish to thank the Rev. Father Joseph Sullivan of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Peetz Bros. Funeral Directors and the pallbearers for their service.
MRS. ELIZABETH NORTON.

WE wish to thank our friends and Rev. Rashe for their sympathy shown us in the loss of our sister.
MRS. MINNIE THIEMER, MRS. CLARA SLINGMAN AND WM. KAMPS.

IN MEMORIAM

CHALMERS, LAURA R.—In memory of, who passed away Feb. 28, 1934. Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by daughters, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren.
MARIE HUFKER.

DE HAS, GERTRUDE—In memory of mother, who departed this life two years ago, March 8, 1933. Sadly missed by daughter, MRS. RUTH BELFI.

DIPPEL, ANNA—In loving memory of our darling mother, who departed this life March 11, 1934.
One year has passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
Sadly missed by her CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

DOHRMANN, HERMAN—Our beloved father, who died March 7, 1934.
The month of March again is here,
To us the saddest of the year.
Because the good Lord whom we fear
Saw fit to take our father dear.
From his loving children.

GAZZOLO, TERESA—In loving memory of my dear wife, our dear mother and sister, who passed away March 13, 1934.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND, SONS AND SISTERS.

HANLEY—In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, Daniel A. Hanley, who passed away seven years ago, March 12, 1928. Requiem High Mass St. Alphonsus (Rock Church) Wednesday, March 13, 7 a. m.
Sad and sudden was the call
To our dear father, loved by all.
And while he lies in peaceful sleep,
His memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by WIFE and FAMILY.

IN LOVING MEMORY
GEORGE N. HOFFMANN
March 8, 1934.

HOFFMANN, FRANK—In loving memory of my dear husband, who departed this life two years ago, March 9, 1933. Sadly missed by WIFE.

INDERMARK, EDWIN—In loving memory of our dear husband and daddy, who departed this life March 8, 1931.
Sadly missed by WIFE and BABY.

MERSMAN, HENRY—In loving memory of my dear father, who departed this life March 11, 1932.
Sadly missed by DAUGHTER and all who loved him. Mrs. E. W. Sherman.

NUFER, DR. F. M.—In loving memory of my dear husband who went home on March 8, 1932.
There is someone who thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face I loved so dear,
Silent the voice I loved to hear.
With a smile on my face
In my heart there is an ache,
Longing for you, dear.
Sadly missed by WIFE.

POTTHOFF—In memory of our dear parents, John, who died May 10, 1913; Elizabeth, who died March 8, 1933. Sadly missed by FAMILY.

VONDERBRUEGGE, ANNIE—In loving memory of dear mother, who passed away on March 12, 1934. Sadly missed by MARGUERITE, GARRED AND BUNNY.

VOSS, ANNA—In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away one year ago, March 3, 1934.
Dearest mother how we miss you,
Since from earth you passed away,
And our hearts are filled with sorrow
As we think of you today.
DAUGHTERS, ANNA SCHALLER, LILLIAN BOESEWETTER.

WEIDIG, HELEN—In loving memory, who departed this life March 8, 1932:
Dear Helen, can it be true,
Three years have passed since God called you?
The call was short, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
Sadly missed by FAMILY.

WHALEN, ELIZABETH BURNS—Who departed this life nine years ago, March 9, 1926.
In 1894 God called our dad,
In 1898 and 1924 He took two wonderful brothers whom we had,
1926 He made His saddest call,
He took our dear little mother, how we miss her, we miss them all.
SON, DAUGHTER AND GRANDSONS.

REQUIEM MASS—First anniversary for repose of the soul of Marie E. Morlan, St. Francis de Sales Church, Thurs., March 14, 7 o'clock.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

WE WILL TAKE ON 7 ADDITIONAL MEN WHO WISH TO TRY TO LEARN TO DO THIS WORK AND WHO CAN GET ALONG ON EARNINGS OF $30.00 A WEEK WHILE STUDYING AND PRACTICING. WE WILL TRAIN SUCH MEN FREE. WE WILL FURNISH FULL EQUIPMENT WITH NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED. THERE IS NO EXPENSE.

No previous experience in any kind of selling is necessary. If you are capable of understanding and following instructions, if yo uare one who likes to practice to gain skill and judgment in what he does, and if you are a worker, willing to pay a working price for success, then we will give you a chance. We cannot guarantee you will be a star, but we do guarantee you opportunity with sincere, earnest, practical instruction and guidance.

This is a large national institution, operating from coast to coast. The world sales of our product lead all others. We are now introducing this extraordinary product and it already has a greater sale than any product in the world ever attempting any of its services (no device ever having attempted to render all of its services.)

For example, in our St. Louis branch, E. Brookfield, a former business man, earned well over $250 for his latest week reported; while A. Amos, formerly a politician, made around $135. E. B. Rea, a former grocery clerk, earned $90 for the week; Hugh Murphy $63; C. Roberts, a former insurance salesman, $45; H. Cosart, in a nearby town, made $89; R. Pearson $88; Paul Kelly earned well over $200 for the week.

Do not misunderstand. This is no get-rich-quick scheme. You cannot make money here unless you earn it, and some men who apply to us fail to fulfill the requirements. But we have found also, that many men who never previously even thought they could do work of this kind have found it to be just the opportunity they sought for years, and are now making more money than they ever previously dreamed of making.

This is a genuine opportunity. It costs nothing to try. The training is free. If you can do the job you can make real money and have the assurance of its permanence, together with splendid future possibilities.

In March and April, our men will make more cash money than at any previous time. The coming year will be of unlimited possibilities to those who get at this business successfully now.

If you are of good reputation, active, alert, willing to learn and to work hard every day to make a genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you get started and to get along, make your application Monday morning.

We have tried to state the facts and requirements clearly. This is a straightforward offer if sincere intent to worthy men who are in need of good, substantial positions. Please do not apply for these positions unless you feel you can meet the requirements. Applications will be personally interviewed, Monday morning, between 9:15 and 1:15 only, at 512 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive Sts.

BLACK HELEN WINS $15,600 FLORIDA DERBY FOR BRADLEY

Hornsby Expects to Be in Browns' Opening Day Lineup

HOPES HE'LL BE ABLE TO PLAY HALF OF CLUB GAMES

By John E. Wray
Sports Editor, Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 9.—For the first time since he has been in camp, Rogers Hornsby has voiced the thought that he would be in the opening day lineup and that he might be able to play as much as half of the season's schedule.

"I've heard so much about these old guys thinking they could come back when they're through that I don't like to go on record about myself," Hornsby commented. "But it does look like I'm going pretty good. What do you honestly think about it after watching me?" he asked.

We told him truthfully that he was so far ahead of his showing last year that there was no comparison.

"I don't know," he pondered. "I hate to say I'm all right and then have it turn out all wrong. But right now I'm better than I have been since I broke my ankle playing for the Cubs. And maybe I'll be in there right along this season. In any case, it looks like I will be in the spring series and the opening game of the regular season, although that depends on a lot of other things.

Must Have More Hitting.

"I'm figuring on the team hitting. There isn't any way of getting around the fact that we've got a ball club, if we can hit in a run or two more a game than we did last year. If I can play and bring hitting to the aid of the club I'm going to be in there, if I can stand the gaff. My arm is good, my legs are fine and I can still hit—tell me why I shouldn't play, if one of my infielders falls down?"

What position did he figure on playing?

That was easy for Rogers—anything but shortstop.

"I don't kid myself," Hornsby said. "I can't cover enough ground for that shortstop job. But I can play second, third or even substitute at first base."

And in one of those positions we'll see the great Hornsby this year, unless all of the men in the infield jobs come through with more base hits than they did last year.

Batted .304 Last Season.

In 1934, the club probably had the weakest major league hitting infield. There was Burns with .257, Melillo with .241, Strange with .233 and Clift with .260. Hornsby himself, with a record of .304 as a pinch hitter, was the only infielder who reached the magic circle. Not another regular infielder came

First Game of Season: Bartell Begins Early to Earn Big Salary With Giants

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics pried the lid off the exhibition game season Friday with a contest at Miami Beach, Fla., which the Giants won by 5 to 0. In this picture, Dick Bartell, the $14,500 shortstop who is expected to put the Giants in front in the coming National League campagin, cracks out a hit his first time at bat.

$2 mutuels paid: Black Helen $6.90 win, $4 place, $2.90 show; Montagna $11.60 place, $5.50 show; Roman Soldier $3.60 show.

Black Helen got away well, was kept well up under restraint finally raced Brannon into defeat and then drew away and was only galloping at finish. Mantagna was mean at the gate. He was finally placed on the outside and got away slow, but quickly ran up on the outside and rated along to stretch, finished fast. Roman Soldier, slow to get into his stride, came around field the last half mile and was running very fast at finish. Hardware worked his way up on the inside, made a determined bid entering stretch but tired badly. St. Moritz was well up from the start but was not good enough. Sun Fairplay was unable to keep up and never was a factor. Bloodroot trailed far back all the way. Brannon had plenty of speed for six furlongs, then tired. Morpluck was outrun from the start and never threatened any par t of the race.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—Black Helen, bay filly, added fresh lustre to the legendary "Derby luck" of Col. E. R. Bradley this afternoon by capturing the seventh annual Florida Derby at Hialeah Park and enriching the Kentuckian by $15,600.

This finale to the 1935 season at Hialeah was won without a struggle, Black Helen galloping past the judges' stand four lengths ahead of Mantagna, from Dewitt Page's Maemere Farm. Elwood Sachsenmaier's Roman Soldier, cofavorite with Black Helen, was third by another length.

Jockey Don Meade superbly guided the undersized thoroughbred home ahead of nine other choice three-year-olds in 1:51 for the mile and eighth of fast but damp track. Today's time was one and four-fifths second over the fastest Derby mark, established last year by Mrs. Isobel Dodge Sloane's Time Clock.

Coupled with her stablemate, Bloodroot, which finished seventh, the diminutive Black Helen repaid backers $6.90 in the $2 straight mutuels, $4 for place and $2.90 to show. Mantagna returned $11.60 and $5.50 and Roman Soldier $3.60.

More than 20,000 racegoers saw the race.

Mantagna's second was worth $2500 to his owner, Sachsenmaier gained $1500 through Roman Soldier's third position and Hardware, owned by Mrs. W. R. Fleming, finished fourth for $750.

Winning seven straight races last year, Black Helen, not eligible for the Kentucky Derby, failed dismally in Maryland stake competition in the fall.

The Derby's biggest disappointment came in the miserable showing of Morpluck, J. H. Louchheim's Maryland star. Morpluck, brought here for the Derby from winter quarters at Columbia, S. C., was last.

The Everglades Farm-H. H. Hector entry, Wise Duke and Deliberator, finished in one-two order in the Hialeah Park Juvenile Championship, raced over the three-furlong nursery course.

Third place in the juvenile classic, which carried a $2500 purse, went to Bright Light, Shannon Farm entry. The time was :33 4-5. Robertson was up on the winner. Wise Duke paid $2.70 for $2 mutuel tickets.

$13,795,904 Bet at Miami's 45-Day Meeting

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.

THE crowd of 20,000 at Hialeah Park this afternoon wagered $94,753 on the Florida Derby. The State Racing Commission reported the day's play on the eight races totaled $483,381, a new Florida Park record.

The previous high was $375,622, wagered on Feb. 24, 1934.

The Racing Commission's statisticians reported the wagering public fed $13,795,904 into Hialeah's totalisator during the 45-day meeting, as compared with $11,692,641 last year and $8,038,643 in 1933.

The average daily play this year was $306,553, compared with 1934's $259,835, and the meeting turned $506,208.91 into the State's treasury, the taxes on the mutuels, admissions and occupational licenses.

Last year Florida collected $432,267.98 from Hialeah Park. In 1933 the State's "take" was $318,991.16.

Medwick and Breadon Confer but Joe Fails To Sign His Contract

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 9.—Frankie Frisch's Cardinals are advancing so rapidly in their preparation for the 1935 pennant race that "John McGraw Jr." will give them a half holiday tomorrow afternoon. Thus far there have been two workouts a day with Frank cracking the whip like a Simon Legree from start to finish; but the weather has been so good and the drilling so strenuous that he fears some of the boys may go stale, so after they finish the morning session he will tell them to play golf, go fishing, bathing or whatever they want.

Dizzy and Paul Dean, Pat Malone and Ripper Collins were ordered to take this afternoon off. The Deans had worked hard at Hot Springs, Pat Malone had been toiling like a horse here and Collins, who reported early after being ill for a month during the winter, needed a rest.

Too Much Ice Water.

Seven of the Cardinals were recovering today from illness attributed to the drinking of too much ice water. Frisch, Malone, Terry Moore, Bud Tinning, Bill Hallahan, Norbert Gleinke and Henry Pippen were too sick to eat their dinners last evening and Frisch issued orders today for everybody to wait at least half an hour after a workout before driking ice water or cold milk.

Joe Medwick, slugging left fielder, spent his first day in camp without signing his contract or reaching an agreement with Sam Breadon. After a conference this morning Breadon announced that the New Jersey Hungarian wanted to "think it over."

"It looks funny to me," was all Joe would say after the conference when asked if he and Breadon were very far apart on the question of salary. Joe said he would play golf for a few days to get his legs in condition. He is wearing a fine "cabaret tan," after a winter of idleness at Carteret, N. J., and also is recuperating from a tonsil operation.

Breadon declined to discuss the conference with Medwick, but the general impression is that Medwick has been told that the club will not better its offer of $7500 for his 1935 services. He received $5000 last year and wants $10,000 in his new document.

Burgess Whitehead, utility infielder, who reported two days late, explained that he had been con-

IF PROSPECTIVE purchasers of the St. Louis Browns today were told that the price was more than $1,750,000 they probably would collapse in a faint. The largest offer for the players and franchise received since the club came under control of the estate of the late Phil Ball was $325,000, with the administrators demanding $425,000. That, of course, is exclusive of the real estate.

And yet Phil Ball in the winter of 1922 refused the offer of a Baltimore syndicate to buy him out for one and three-quarter millions, according to E. A. Steininger, former president of the Cardinals, who has held stock in both St. Louis clubs and has been identified with THREE major league clubs, representing the Mound City in the past. Steininger twice rebuilt the stands of the National League club at Vandeventer and Natural Bridge road, and also rebuilt Sportsman's Park, under the direction of Phil Ball.

Steininger.

Passed Up a Big Profit.

MR. BALL could have retired with a profit, despite all the money he put into it, had he accepted an offer made him in 1922," said Steininger, who has been here for several days watching the Browns work out. "A syndicate of Baltimore capitalists wanted to buy out the Browns after the season of 1922, when the St. Louis club almost won the flag, losing by a single game.

"At that time Mr. Ball had not put in the $600,000 he invested in improvements later, and the offer of $1,750,000 would have represented a handsome profit. But Mr. Ball's reply was:

"'Hell, no. I'm going to stick with the club until I win a pennant.'

"Had he sold out then, he would have saved himself many thousands of dollars which he subsequently lost trying to give St. Louis a winner."

At that, the Browns haven't shrunk so much in value. Including the real estate and the club's own valuation on the players and franchise, the property today figures to be worth more

TABLE TENNIS BODY WIPES OUT 'AMATEUR' CLASS DISTINCTION

NO longer shall there be any distinction between "amateur" and "professional" players in the table tennis game, it was announced here last night by William R. Stewart, president of the United States Table Tennis Association.

"At our international meeting in London, on Feb. 16, in connection with the world championship tournament, we voted to abolish the absurd and impractical ostracization of professional players," said Stewart. "Henceforth, in our tournament play in this country, there will be no such division. There are about 40 players in the United States who might come under the old 'professional' classification."

Stewart is attending the national intercity team championship tournament here.

BOUCHER STARS AS N. Y. RANGERS BEAT EAGLES, 5-1

By W. J. McGoogan.

Frank Boucher, center of the first forward line of the New York Rangers, may be a gentleman hockey player in the eyes of the public as he has suffered only one two-minute penalty this season, but he is anathema to his brother, Buck Boucher, coach of the St. Louis Eagles. For, Frank was largely responsible for the 5 to 1 victory which the Rangers scored over the Eagles at the Arena last night before a crowd announced by the local hockey club as 7600.

The victory snapped the Rangers' losing streak of four games and virtually assured the New Yorkers of a place in the playoffs for the world hockey title.

Frank Boucher aided in scoring the first Ranger score for he passed to Earl Seibert for the initial New York tally a little more than three minutes after the start of the contest.

Then he handed the puck to Bill Cook for another goal three minutes after the start of the second period and he added another to the Ranger total with a goal himself

JESSE OWENS WINS, BETTERS WORLD RECORD; J. OWEN FOURTH

CHICAGO, March 9.—The flashing spikes of Jesse Owens, spectacular Ohio State sophomore Negro sprinter, cut down one of the most stubborn of records—for 60 yards—as Michigan scored an overwhelming team triumph in the Silver Anniversary Western Conference indoor track meet tonight in the University of Chicago Field House.

The defending champion Wolverines, collecting points in every event except the shot-put, established a new meet record total of 49½ points, 27 points better than their nearest rival, Ohio State.

Summaries:

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Clayton Brelsord, Michigan; Harvey Smith, Michigan, second; Claude Moore, Purdue, third; John Moore, Ohio State, fourth; Harry O'Connell, Michigan, fifth. Time, 4 minutes, 25.7 seconds.

Dog Teams Race in Alaska Today; 80-Mile Course

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 9.

TOMORROW'S "Derby day" in Fairbanks.

This home of the farthest North carnival and dog derby, close to the Arctic Circle, is aswarm with visitors today from all parts of Alaska and the Yukon Territory.

Some mushed in, some rode the cushions on the Alaska Railroad, many flew here in airplanes.

The latter included Ernie Buckmaster, who with his 11 black Siberian dogs came 350 miles from Koyukuk.

Doc Braaafladt, another widely known dog derbyist, mushed his 18-dog team all the way from Nome on the Bering Sea.

The dog race, over an 80-mile course, will be the piece de re sistance tomorrow, with skiing, hockey and curling tournament play for dessert.

FLYERS DEFEAT TULSA, 2-0; PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Ok., March 9.—The St. Louis Flyers, leaders in the American Hockey Association, only scored two goals, both in the second period, but they were enough to defeat the Tulsa Oilers, 2 to 0, here tonight. The teams will resume play in St. Louis tomorrow night.

The lineups and summary:

ST. LOUIS.	POS.	TULSA
Murray	G.	Christello
Carbol	L.D.	Halderson
J. Matte	R.D.	Headley
Teel	C.	Chouinard
Depaul	L.W.	Kinsella

St. Louis spares—Paddon, McPherson, Scott, Radley. Tulsa spares—Hughes, Powley, Kucher, Wakeford, Bailey, Desjardins.

Referee—Paddy Farrell.

First period: Scoring—None. Penalties—Foxowrthy, Slashing; Radley, Tripping.

Flyers Only Have One More Game on Road.

The only out-of-town game left on the St. Louis schedule is against Kansas City Tuesday night, after which the Flyers return here to play Kansas City the following Sunday then finish the regular season against Tulsa, March 20. Then come the playoffs.

Browns and Cardinals to Use Loud Speaker System for All Games at Sportsman's Park

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 9.—Sportsman's Park baseball fans, who have for years been straining their hearing faculties in the effort to learn what the announcer megaphoned, will this season be able to learn all that is going on about the game without former aggravations.

General Manager L. C. McEvoy today announced that arrangements had been made for the installation of an amplifying system, over which announcements reaching all stands in the park will be made. The Western Electric Co., which has been given the contract, has guaranteed satisfaction.

Previous attempts have been made at Sportsman's Park to install an effective announcing system, but they were failures, and both clubs fell back on the primitive megaphone system. The system will be used by both clubs.

"Everything of an official nature will be broadcast over the system," McEvoy said, "and unusual rulings or plays will be explained."

Whether the announcer will give the public the official on hits and errors or not is still in doubt. Nearly all major league managers are opposed to advising the baseball player on this subject, while the game is in progress, contending that he will be worrying about his average and giving less attention to the game.

The other side of the argument is that the fan who pays $1.10 to see a game is entitled to know as much about the game as a radio fan, who hears a complete story of the play without paying a cent.

BABE RUTH GETS ONE HIT AS REDS LOSE TO BRAVES

TAMPA, Fla., March 9.—Babe Ruth made his first competitive appearance in a National League uniform today and drove in a run with a single his first time at the plate as the Boston Braves defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 3, before a crowd of 3500.

The Babe, playing first base, was at bat four times during the five and one-half innings he played but his single in the first, scoring Bill Urbanski, who had doubled, was his only safe blow. He grounded out twice and sent a high foul to Catcher Erickson the last time at the plate. His it was off Danny MacFayden, who was Ruth's teammate with the Yankees.

MEDWICK AND BREADON CONFER BUT NO CONTRACT IS SIGNED

DIZZY TO START CARDS' OPENING SPRING CONTEST WITH THE PHILS

fined to his home with an influenza attack and was 10 pounds underweight. He took part in the two workouts today.

First Game Tuesday.

The first exhibition game will be played Tuesday and the boys are eager for action. Manager Frisch announced today that he would start his regular lineup, and keep the regulars in the game for six or seven innings. Terry Moore, who batted .328 last year at Columbus, where he was considered the best outfielder in the minor leagues, will be the Cardinal center fielder until somebody takes the job away from him. Rothrock and Gene Moore probably will be the other starting outfielders until Medwick signs and is ready to take over his left field duties.

Rip Collins will be at first base, Frisch at second, Durocher at short and Pepper Martin at third. While Charley Gelbert is making great progress in his effort to come back after being out of uniform for two years, Durocher is Frisch's choice for the regular job. Gelbert will see duty at short, but the job is Durocher's until somebody takes it away from him.

Gelbert, who is an outstanding candidate for a utility infield job, will be tried at third base as well as short, so he can be used in case of injury to Martin or Durocher. Whitehead, of course, will be No. 1 relief man at second base.

"Third base looks like a breeze," said Gelbert this afternoon, when asked how he liked that position. "But I'd like to find I can't play short satisfactorily before thinking of third seriously. My arm is good and I am sure I can play third, but I also think I can cover enough ground to play short. As far as my legs are concerned, if I can play one position, I can play the other. I feel fine. Naturally there is a little soreness in all my muscles, but that is being worked out, and I am encouraged by the fact that my injured leg has stood up under the strain of more than a week's hard work. I believe my batting eye is as good as it ever was, and I seem to be hitting the ball harder than I ever did before. Side-armed pitchers formerly bothered me, even in batting practice, but I'm hitting them now with encouraging ease. Of course, it may be different when we get into games. They will be the real test of my ability to start and stop and pivot and do all the things an infielder has to do. But I feel that I'm back."

Winsett at First.

John Winsett has taken practice at first base for three days, but he still looks best with a bat in his hands. However, Frisch will persevere with him, as he would like to have a hard-hitting understudy for the first base job. Collins went through last season without missing a game, but that doesn't happen very often.

Dizzy Dean will be one of the pitchers in the game with the Phillies Tuesday, Frisch announced definitely today. He was planning to finish up with Jerome Herman, but the great man wants to start against his old friend, Jimmy Wilson, and it won't hurt at the gate if it can be advertised that Dizzy is going to work. Diz will work three innings, with a couple of the young pitchers finishing the day's work.

Dick Ward, the right-hander obtained with Tinning in the Carleton trade, has been showing well in practice and will get an early trial in an exhibition. He is an overhanded pitcher with a good assortment of curves and excellent speed.

Sam Breadon announced today that an agreement had been reached with the Browns to install a loud speaker at Sportsman's Park for the 1935 season, to announce lineups, battery changes and substitutions. No decision has been reached as to whether the machine will be equipped to play old talking machine records, as is done in several other major league cities.

Pat Ankenman, 5 feet 4 inches tall, is the best looking rookie infielder in camp. He has good style in the field and packs a powerful line-drive punch for a midget.

Unusual Weather.

A strong wind interfered with the workouts today, blowing sand in the players' eyes and fly balls out of reach.

Ernie Orsatti now is the only Cardinal not in camp.

Virgil Davis, usually a weak batter in the spring, is pounding the fences this year. He'll do a share of the catching for the 1935 Redbirds.

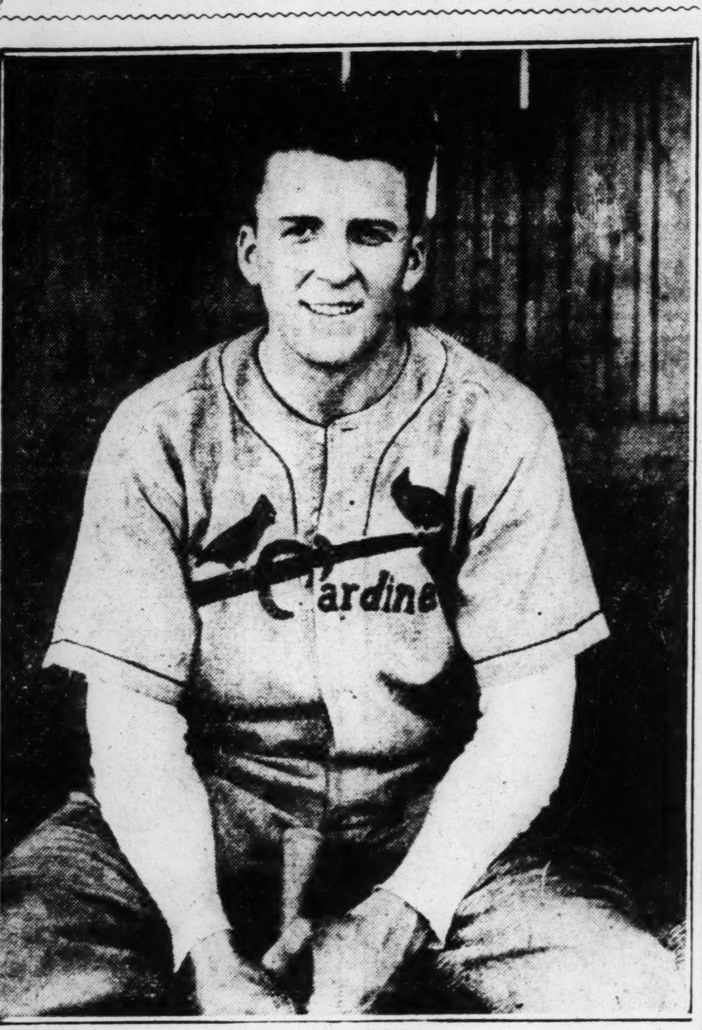
YALE FRESHMAN SETS NEW INTERCOLLEGIATE FREE-STYLE SWIM MARK

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 9.—A new intercollegiate record for the 440-yard free style swim was set today by Johnny Macionis, Yale freshman star, as his team beat the Princeton yearlings, 38-31.

Macionis swam the distance in 4 minutes 45 2-5 seconds to shatter the previous mark of 4 minutes 46 8-10 seconds, made last year by Jack Medica of the University of Washington at the national intercollegiate championships at Ohio State University.

Ex-St. Louis Muny Leaguer Who Wins Job With World Champions



TERRY MOORE,

St. Louis boy, who formerly played with teams at Fairground Park, and a product of the Cardinal farm system, who will be the Cardinal center fielder "until someone can take the job away from him," according to Manager Frisch.

Hornsby Hopes to Play in Browns' Opening Day Lineup

within 40 points of batting in the upper class.

The whole concentration of Hornsby's training this year has been to get the infield out of the kindergarten hitting class. If either Strange or Clift falls down, Burnett probably will get a regular berth with the club. He has proved that he can hit solidly and with a little coaching by Hornsby, he will be able to fill any position on the infield except first.

With Hornsby available that puts the infield on the uneasy seat. It's hit or take a place on the bench this year for some of the boys. Manager Hornsby wants runs.

Pitching Is Satisfactory.

"I'm pretty well satisfied that my pitching staff will stand up," Hornsby said today, in summarizing his situation. I have six men I can use as starting pitchers in Blaeholder, Newsom, Coffman, Andrews, Knott and Weiland. They're all experienced men. I don't have to worry about them except as to which may be in the better condition. I look for Fay Thomas to be a real help to the squad and the others as they may develop. I will keep eight or nine pitchers and they will be good enough to carry the club, if we can give them a little better batting support than they had last year.

"Weiland never had a real square chance before and he's going to get it with us. He's a big, strong fellow and I really look to him for some help. Newsom ought to win 20 games for us if he'll keep his mind on his job. He won 16 last year and we're going to give him some more runs this time. Blaeholder is a dependable pitcher. He won 14 games last year and he ought to improve that by several this season. I look for Coffman to show us his real form this year. He's capable of a lot if we can get it out of him. Knott should be a winner.

Better Than Last Year.

"We haven't got nearly such a bad club as they think we have and this two weeks of training down here has shown me that we're better than we were last year. There's going to be a lot of surprised managers when they strike this club.

"You know last year this team was the fightingest outfit in the league. They never quit for a minute. We had some tough breaks near the close but the boys kept on their toes all the way. They had to beat us—and it wasn't any easy job for any of them. Well, it'll be worse for them this year and that's no boast. My players are hustlers. And as far as I know, there isn't a discontented man on the club. Anyway, the least a ball player can do for a club that pays him a salary is to hustle and do his best. My boys all do that."

And of course this led to the inevitable question: "Where do you think your club will finish this year?"

Manager Hornsby didn't think. But he did conjecture. "The Cleveland and the Detroit clubs have the most power," he said. "The Yankees and Washington clubs ought to be good—better than last year. The rest of the teams are just a guess. It will be a scramble and the best hustlers will get the call. That will be the Browns. They're going to hustle. And if any of the first division teams slow up, they may find themselves out of the first four—you can't tell about this game."

To read the roster of the Browns and look at their 1934 figures you wouldn't bet a dime on them at 200 to 1. But after Hornsby gets through telling you, somehow you feel as though the league leaders had better look out; that there's a dark man coming with a bundle.

First Real Test Monday.

Monday will see the first real test of the Browns. They travel to Miami Beach to face the Giants of Bill Terry and that it will not be so easy this year as last, is certain. In 1934 the Browns and the Giants played five games and the Browns won three of them. In one of the games at West Palm Beach, Harland Clift, then a rookie, hit a home run with the bases full, off Carl Hubbell, making the afternoon a 100 per cent perfect madhouse. In one inning seven runs were made off the mighty Hubbell—a record, we believe.

This time Terry and his men will not look upon the Browns as a bunch of minor leaguers. They have been in training one day longer than the Browns so Hornsby's men will have no edge on them in condition.

Manager Hornsby announced his batting order for the Giants' game today as follows:

Clift, 3b; West, cf; Burns, 1b; Pepper, lf; Bell, rf; Melillo, 2b; Grube-Heath, c; Strange, ss; Andrews, Coffman, Weiland, p.

"Of course, I expect to use substitutes. Burnett, Bejma, Garms, myself and others will probably get a workout for part of the time," Hornsby said. "Monday night I will send the three pitchers used in the first game home and bring down three others for the second game on Tuesday. We ought to be in good shape for the event. Newsom won't be able to pitch, but maybe I'll use Hemsley in one of the games."

Players Take a Day Off.

The Browns today enjoyed their first day off since reaching training camp nearly two weeks ago, but, weather permitting, tomorrow will resume a schedule even more strenuous than last week's.

Weather conditions here tonight were very threatening, but, conditions being favorable, the Browns will play the second practice game between the Hartleys and the O'Learys tomorrow.

The day off gave the men a rest, although the rainy and windy weather prevented bathing or pleasure trips. A few of the players went to Miami for the Derby.

Miss Orcutt Is Tourney Victor

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 9.—Playing in a drenching rain, Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., today won her third Florida East Coast women's golf championship and took permanent possession of the Mrs. William R. Kenan trophy as she defeated Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., 4 and 2 in the final round.

Miss Bauer's putter pulled her out of several difficult spots on the outgoing nine and she went to the tenth one up. The putting touch left her coming home, however, and she missed several short ones.

Miss Orcutt would have had a card of 77 had she played the last two holes in par, while Miss Bauer would have marked up 81. They quit on the sixteenth, however.

KANSAS STATE WINS BIG SIX TRACK MEET

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 9.—Kansas State College won the Big Six indoor track and field championship tonight for the first time in conference history by scoring 33 points to 31½ for Oklahoma, the runner-up.

only 10 seconds before the close of the contest.

Lyn Patrick, son of Lester Coach of the Rangers, helped the head of the family by counting twice, once in the second period on a pass from Cecil Dillon and again in the third on a pass from Bun Cook.

The Rangers, playing a very fine game, were in command of the situation throughout and it was not until the third period that the Eagles were able to count their one and only goal. That came when Joe Lamb, took a pass from Irvin Frew and beat Dave Kerr with a vicious shot.

There were only six penalties called in the game, five of them against the Rangers and only one against the Eagles. But with the New Yorkers short-handed the Eagles were able to do nothing. The Rangers merely tightened their defense and had it not been for the stellar goal keeping of Bill Beveridge the margin would have been much worse than it was.

The game was the preultimate here for the Eagles. They close their home season against the Detroit Red Wings at the Arena Tuesday night then go to Toronto to finish the schedule March 19.

MELILLO AND HEMSLEY HAVE ROUGH VOYAGE ON AIRPLANE TRIP

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 9.—Even the birds don't fly during storms. But Oscar Melillo and Rollie Hemsley tried to fly to the racetrack for the Derby today, with the winds howling, the clouds low and gusty showers of rain adding to the excitement.

They took off in a private plane with one other passenger and after an extremely bumpy voyage, ran into fogs. Pilot Whitehead decided that the going was too risky and he turned around and headed back for West Palm Beach, after being within 10 miles of his destination.

"That probably saved our lives and a few dollars we might have bet on the wrong horse," Melillo grinned. "The next time I want to take a flyer on the Derby I'll take it on the ground. That return journey was really tough. Our fellow passenger was so badly affected that he had to sit looking at his shoes, instead of outside, to keep from being ill. I'll take my air riding by proxy next time."

GOLUBS DEFEAT PABS AND EVEN OZARK SERIES

By Reno Hahn.

The Golubs finally managed to win a game from the Pabs. As a result of its 33 to 21 victory over the Pabs, the first in four meetings, the Golubs last night squared the series for the Ozark A. A. U. basketball championship. The game was played at Sherman Park.

The deciding contest will be played tomorrow night at Sherman, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

After losing three times to the Pabs, two games of which were in the Municipal League championship series, the Golubs unleashed a scoring attack last night that saw them take a 21 to 10 lead at the half.

The Pabs started off by running up a 10 to 4 count early in the first half, but then the Golubs began hitting their shots and overhauled the Municipal champions. During the time that the Golubs counted 17 points, the Pabs were held scoreless.

Near the close of the half, play became exceedingly rough and the players of both teams were warned by the officials. The Golubs were the worst offenders, being charged with 14 personal fouls to only six for the Pabs. In spite of the greater number of shots from the free throw line, the Pabs only made five of their chances good, which was as many as the Golubs made.

Al Alvis, with five field goals, paced the Golubs' attack, with Babe Ferke a close second with eight points. Fred Pralle secured three field goals and two free throws, eight points, to lead the Pabs.

The box score:

St. Louis Girls Train for U. S. Indoor Track Meet

St. Louis girls who participate in track and field events are working out daily for the National A. A. U. women's indoor track and field meet, scheduled at the Arena the night of March 22.

Catherine Maguire, of Pacific, Mo., and Gertrude Webb of St. Louis are the most prominent girl athletes entered thus far. Miss Maguire will compete in the high jump, an event in which she represented the United States in the Olympic games of 1928, and Miss Webb will run in the 200-meter dash. Miss Webb will also be a member of the St. Louis relay team.

According to track observers, Miss Webb is being clocked in the best time of her career, her form showing an improvement over last season when she ran in the Women's World Games, at London, and the International Games, in Holland.

Other leading St. Louis girl athletes working out for the meet include Harriett Bland, Mae Brady, Helen and Hilda Hunning, Thresa Wiesler, and Ruth Riley.

WRAY'S COLUMN

than $1,400,000! The real estate today earns $85,000 annually, which is 8½ per cent on one million dollars. Ball's losses on the club in the last seven years under his direction are believed to have totaled more than $600,000.

$42,500 for the Cards!

BUT if the low bid of $325,000 for the Browns shocks fans, what would they say to the price of $42,500, which was once paid for the St. Louis National League club, now known as the Cardinals?

Steininger remembers the time when it happened, because he was a creditor of the club. That goes back to the days when Chris Von Der Ahe, "Der Poss Bresident," was still active. Chris's grandstand had burned and Steininger rebuilt the park. But the club was doing badly, got into debt, could not pay Steininger and was finally sold on the east steps of the old courthouse. It was bought in by E. C. Becker for $42,500 and subsequently disposed of to the Robisons, when they brought the Cleveland franchise here.

"The Robinsons were only here a short time when the stands burned again, six days after the season opened," commented Steininger, "and I rebuilt them within eight days. But even then the club was having its troubles and later went into debt more than $100,000.

"I got into baseball merely as a contractor and I have never been able to get out of it since—and I'm still in it," Steininger grinned. "Baseball clubs then didn't represent such remarkable values as they do now. I remember that Charley Murphy and Charles Taft bought the Chicago Cubs—franchise, players and grounds—for $105,000. Murphy afterwards sold out his interest for something like $1,500,000."

Helped Organize the Feds.

STEININGER, active in local baseball affairs for nearly 40 years, has kept himself behind the scenes most of the time. It was Steininger who got Phil Ball into the Federal League and afterwards was instrumental in getting him back into Organized Baseball as owner of the Browns.

He induced Ball to join him and other local men in the old United States League, organized by James Powers and later rechristened the Federal League, with an investment of $2000.

"That $2000 launched Ball into an expanding series of baseball investments that eventually involved him in a $2,000,000 risk," observed Steininger. "The first year, the league was a joke. Ball got mad. Pretty soon he had Harry Sinclair in at Newark and the league enlisted the capital of Charley Weeghman of Chicago, the Ward brothers of Brooklyn and other real wealthy men. There was no lack of money and we went in to build parks, stands and form real clubs by taking the playing talent under reserve to the National and American leagues. We signed many famous stars and Mr. Ball really had a fine club.

"But in the end it did not pay. I then helped Ball contact Ban Johnson, the greatest baseball man of all time, and it wasn't long before Ball bought out Hedges and got himself into the American League as owner of the St. Louis club. He became a member of Organized Baseball and no longer an outlaw.

"In the meantime the $2000 original investment had resulted in a net loss to Ball of $182,000 through his Federal League team!"

Losses Largely Paper.

PHIL BALL did not fare so badly in baseball, however, Steininger pointed out. He bought the Browns from Robert Lee Hedges for $600,000, land and everything. Today, as figured above on rental value and club assets, it is worth about $1,400,000.

The club paid a huge dividend in 1922 and minor dividends in five or six other years, taking care of the $600,000 improvements made by the club in the stands about ten years ago. That should leave $800,000 to take care of the $600,000 losses, in recent years.

Roughly, in 20 years the club is about $200,000 better off, in spite of all red ink years.

One of the peculiarities of the Browns organization is the division of the baseball property into two companies, the St. Louis American League Baseball Club and the Dodier Realty Company. Stranger still is the fact that the Realty Company charges the Browns $50,000 a year rental and the Cardinals only $35,000.

In "The Duke's" Day.

STEININGER was president of the Cardinals in the day of the "first lady club owner," Mrs. Schuyler P. Britton, who inherited the property as part of the estate of Stanley Robinson.

It was Steininger who got Roger Bresnahan here as manager and "the Duke" turned the losing club into a money-maker. Steininger signed Bresnahan to a contract that was considered the marvel of the day. Bresnahan received $10,000 a year and ten per cent of the profits.

"Bresnahan might have established himself for life here," commented Steininger," but he became obstinate and refused to work with Mrs. Britton. Eventually I obtained for him his unconditional release and he sold himself to the Cubs for $25,000. He went downhill thereafter and is broke today.

"Had he remained with the Cardinals he might have built up the club long before Breadon took hold of it. Incidentally, in 1924 Bresnahan wanted to know if there was a chance for him to get back with the Cardinals. 'You know,' he said, 'that club should win the pennat but it is dead on its feet. I could made a winner out of it.'

"I had nothing to say about the Cardinals then, but I told Breadon about it. Two years later under Hornsby it won the flag with the same men."

WOLF IS FORCED OUT OF SPRING FOOTBALL WORK AT WASHINGTON

By James M. Gould.

Bill Wolf, veteran Washington University backfield man, was lost to the Bears through the spring football practice period yesterday when an eye infection developed so alarmingly that physicians forbade further play. Another veteran temporarily out is Nathan Tutinsky, also a backfielder. Hitler or not, he has the German measles. However, "Tut" is not seriously ill and probably will return to the workouts this week.

It took a combination hail and rain storm to stop the Bears from playing their regular practice game. Head Coach Jimmy Conzelman took a long look at the old Mary Institute field and then ordered a "No Game; Wet Grounds" sign put up in the entrance of the gym. The postponement gave the willing members of the squad a chance to rest for two days, but work will be resumed tomorrow, when the game will be played.

Coach Conzelman will hold to his plan for giving the "Reds" and the "Greens" an equal amount of defense and offense strength and let them go to it. With such linemen opposed as Gog, Bertagnolli, Iezzi, Davis and Bentzinger, and Lamb, Konvicka, Martintoni, Londy and Wendt in another group, there is sure to be a rare fight.

On one team the backfield will consist of Zboyovski at quarter, Droke and Blumberg at halves and Bukant at fullback, with the rival ball carriers being directed by Tommy Ozment at quarter, Hudgens and Hunkins at the halves and Don Wimberly at fullback. There is plenty of resistance in the two lines and plenty of speed and punch in the backfields. All of which being true, the practice game tomorrow should be a close affair from the very start.

Present plans call for the extension of spring football work throughout March, with only a slight possibility that the boys will still be going in April.

Tomorrow, candidates will answer the first call for baseball practice. Don White, basketball coach, will have charge of the workouts. Zboyovski plans to go out for baseball and, if he makes the grade, would become a three-letter man. He has earned letters in football and basketball.

Under Head Coach Cecil Muellerleile and his assistants, Carl Pike, Jack Corcoran and Roy Taylor, the Billikens will start their outdoor spring football work Tuesday at Walsh Memorial Stadium. The St. Louis squad of 50 has been conditioning indoors for the past week.

50 AMATEURS TO SEEK TITLES IN OZARK BOXING TOURNEY

LITTLE ROCK TO SEND A SQUAD; PRELIMINARIES IN AFTERNOON

By W. J. McGoogan.

Fifty or more amateur boxers in the eight weight divisions will seek titles in the annual A. A. U. district tournament at the Coliseum Tuesday. This year the division is designated the Ozark A. A. U., whereas it was formerly called the Western.

Only the semifinal and final bouts will be fought in the evening. Preliminaries in all classes, where there are more than four entrants, will be held in the afternoon.

This is a new wrinkle in amateur tournaments here and should prove a popular one with the fans for it means that the final fight should be completed about 11 o'clock instead of at one or two in the morning as has been the case in some previous tournaments.

Winners of titles will receive first consideration in the makeup of the team to represent the district in the National A. A. U. tournament which is to be held at The Arena, April 10-11-12, although the victors will not necessarily be chosen.

It's Up to the Officials.

The Ozark Boxing Committee of which Benny Kessler is chairman, may use its discretion in the selection of the team for the national, but it is hardly likely that any of the district champions will be left off the squad. Each district is permitted to enter as many as 16 men in the national.

The lighter weight classes have drawn the largest entry for the Ozark tourney, with nine bantamweights, six featherweights, seven welterweights, 12 lightweights and seven middleweights, in the competition.

There has been but one entry thus far in the 175-pound (light heavyweight) division. He is Herman West, Buckner, Ill., but it is likely that more will enter before Tuesday.

Three heavyweights have filed entries. They are Irwin Striebel of the South Broadway A. C., Dallas Long, Little Rock, Ark., and Richard Philpot, Sherman A. C.

Striebel Is Heavy Favorite.

Striebel is favored to retain the title which he won last year. He is likely to go far in the national tournament. In 1934, he reached the final in the national, but lost a point decision to Stanley Evans, Detroit Negro, for the championship.

Irwin has been boxing better since that time and has been showing more push and punch in recent bouts. It was his lack of aggressiveness which cost him the national title.

Striebel is a big boy, more than 6 feet tall and weighing about 230 pounds. Despite the fact that a great part of that weight is in his legs he steps around lightly and quickly for a lad of his poundage.

Irwin helps his father in his South Side butcher shop every day, cutting meat, filling orders and delivering them. His work helps to keep him in condition and in addition he is very earnest in his efforts to get into the best possible shape for his fights.

When in training he takes to the road in Carondelet Park every morning building up his lung capacity and he boxes frequently at the South Broadway under the eyes of his instructor, Joe Weber.

Not a Killing Puncher.

He is not a killing puncher and not many of his victories are scored by knockouts. For this reason, Striebel has not been as popular with boxing fans as his work deserves.

Irwin apparently has little desire to become a professional boxer but stays in the game for the physical benefits he derives.

Not much is known of Long, who figures to meet Striebel in the Ozark final, but he is said to be a member of the Centre College football squad.

There are some other Little Rock boys entered. Among them Raymond Medlock, who won the featherweight title in 1934. The Little Rock team is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow.

150 Already in National.

Kessler, who will manage the National tournament as he did last year, said yesterday that 150 entries already have been filed for the meet, including one team of 16 from Portland, Ore.

J. E. Hoch, chairman of the Hawaiian Island Committee, has sent word that he will bring a team of six boys here next month and would like to bring eight if the Tournament Committee could help him with the finances. It requires a considerable sum of money to bring a team this far but Roy Davis, Chicago, who is acting secretary of the tournament, already has allocated the money for the various districts.

William Kenny, Boston, chairman of the National Boxing Committee, and Jeremiah Mahoney, president of the National A. A. U., have sent word that they would attend the event.

Girls' Muny Basketball.

Games scheduled for the Tuesday night division of the girls' Municipal Basketball League are: Varsity vs. P. R. C. U. at 7:30 o'clock; Schorr-Kolkschneider vs. Bachelor Club at 8:15 o'clock, and White Waves vs. Hellrung-Grimms at 9 o'clock.

Chicago	1	11	.083	354	473

EVANSTON, Ill., March 9.—Purdue gained a share of the Big Ten basketball championship with Illinois and Wisconsin tonight, winding up its campaign with a 38 to 24 triumph over Northwestern.

Bob Kessler, star Boilermaker forward, failed to pass Bill Haarlow of Chicago in the race for individual scoring honors, getting only four points in the game for a season's total of 150, to Haarlow's 156.

WALNUT PARK AND GAFFNEYS TIE, 1-1

Two extra periods failed to break a 1-1 score and the first game of the series between the Walnut Park Lions and the Gaffneys, Community Center junior soccer finalists, resulted in a tie. The game was played at Sherman Park on a slow field. The second game will be played on the same grounds next Saturday afternoon.

Center Forward Jim McWilliams scored the opening goal of the game about half way in the first half, and Center Spica tied the count five minutes later. Tight defense play was a feature of the game, the goaltender on each side coming off with some fine saves.

The lineups:

Walnut Park Lions: Powers; Lowes and Joyce; Pettit, Hein and Drieske; Leahy, R. McWilliams, J. McWilliams, Weir and Kuehner. Substitutes: Overall for Drieske.

Gaffneys: O. Windermiller; Calame and Johnson; Mike, Jankowski and Hecke; Fister, Laurent, Spica, Leonard and G. Windermiller. Substitutes: Gerard for Jankowski, O'Brien for Fister, Kinsella for Leonard. Referees: Art Newman and Vic Cromer.

Alpen Braus Can Win Second Straight Muny Soccer Title With Victory in Game Today

By Dent McSkimming.

Elmer Dowling's Alpen Brau scoccer club can take its place among outstanding teams in the 22-year history of the Municipal Soccer League by winning from the Irish Village club at Fairgrounds Park this afternoon. Victory today would give the Alpen Braus the championship for the second straight year, a feat few clubs have accomplished.

There is some question whether the champions will be at full strength, for John Macken, center halfback, was taken off the field a week ago with an injured ankle. If Macken is unable to play, Jim Rabbitt probably will be at the pivot position, necessitating a recasting of the forward line. Center Forward Rudloff has been under treatment for an aggravated appendix and may not be able to play the full game, a situation which would cause considerable shaking up in the Alpen Brau lineup.

The Village team displayed enough skill against the champions last Sunday in the first game of the series to lead their followers to hold out hopes for victory today. Whether the Alpan Braus are at full strength or not, it should be an even battle.

The Spanish Caballeros will meet Holy Rosary in the second game of the Junior championship series, starting at 1:30 p. m.

PAWTUCKET RANGERS BEAT CELTIC, 5 TO 2, IN SOCCER CUP GAME

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 9.—Pawtucket Rangers defeated Pawtucket Celtics, 5-2, second-round national cup match at Cotes Field this afternoon. The field was heavy but overhead weather conditions were ideal. The score was tied, 1-1, at half time and again at 2-2 during the second half.

Goals by Harvey, Dick and McIntyre clinched the decision for the Eastern champions.

Summary:

RANGERS.	Pos	CELTIC.

VASHON HIGH WINS BASKETBALL TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 9.—Vashon High School of St. Louis tonight won the State Negro interscholastic basketball championship by defeating Lincoln High of Kansas City, 27 to 19.

The tournament was held this week-end at Lincoln University here.

In the semifinals this afternoon Vashon won from Douglass of Webster Groves, 26 to 21, and Lincoln defeated Sumner of St. Louis, 26 to 24.

Centrals Oppose Marre Eleven in Practice Contest

FORCED to mark time while waiting for Chicago and Pittsburgh to play off their western semifinal cup match, the Central soccer club will oppose the Marres in an exhibition match at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. There will be a preliminary game between Spanish Sport Club and the Meyer Barbecue teams.

Several experimental shifts will be attempted in the Central lineup, Manager Frederick has announced. The team has scored 15 goals in three cup games as against one goal by the opposition. Their opponents of today, the Marres, won their first round game, 2-1, and lost the second, 2 to 0, at Pittsburgh last Sunday.

JOE GHNOULY BOXES EDDIE COOL THURSDAY IN KANSAS CITY RING

Joe Ghnouly, South St. Louis lightweight boxer, has departed for Kansas City to finish his training for his match with Eddie Cool, clever Philadelphia lightweight Thursday evening.

Cool is near the top of the division. He has had 30 fights, winning 20 on decisions, four on knockouts, losing four and drawing two.

Among his knockout victims is Eddie Ran, Polish boxer, who fought here a couple of times.

He has defeated such men as Harry Dublinsky, Lew Massey and Frankie Klick.

HADLEY RIFLE TEAM WINS MATCH WITH 688

The Hadley Vocational School rifle team scored 688 points to defeat nine other schools in a match yesterday afternoon on the Washington University range. University City was second with 679 and Cleveland third with 676.

Lenney of Cleveland had the individual high score with 176. The other schools entered were Country Day, Webster Groves, Burroughs, Christian Brothers, Beaumont and Blewett.

Trojans Win Title.

The Trojans won the championship of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Employed Boys' League last night by defeating the Stix, Baer & Fuller quintet, 29 to 24. In a preliminary, the Monarch A. C. won from the Aces, 25-19.

5 RECORDS SET AS PITTSBURGH WINS CENTRAL TRACK TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 9.—Five conference records were smashed today as Pittsburgh captured team honors in the annual Central Intercollegiate indoor track and field meet. The Panthers clinched their victory by winning the mile relay in the record-shattering time of 3:21.5 or 2 4-5 seconds faster than the old mark set by Pitt last year.

Other record-breaking performances were: The pole vault by Floyd Siebert, North Central College of Naperville, Ill., who cleared the bar at 13 feet 5¾ inches as against the oud mark of 13 feet 4½ inches; the two-mile run by Bill Zepp, Michigan Normal, who clipped 3.2 seconds off the record by running it in 9:21.2, and the half mile by Abie Rosenkrantz, Michigan Normal, who ran the distance in 1:55.2 or 1 8-10 seconds better than the record.

Pittsburgh scored 23 1-6 points to beat out Notre Dame, which finished second with 20 1-6. Michigan Normal was third with 15 1-6 points. The new conference records were established in the 880-yard run, two-mile run, pole vault, one-mile relay and high jump.

Edwin Waite, Washington University's sprint star, who recently won the Missouri Valley Conference 60-yard dash, finished second to Fleming of Pittsburgh U. in the finals today.

ROY MARTINTONI IS CHOSEN FOR VALLEY ALL-STAR

By the Associated Press.

Creighton's co-championship basketball team was honored with two selections on the official Missouri Valley all-star quintet announced by A. E. Eilers of Washington University, conference secretary, yesterday.

The other first team places went to Drake, which tied with the Bluejays for the title, Grinnell and Washington, third and fourth place teams, respectively.

Creighton's representatives were Emil Engelbretson, the sparkling junior forward, and George Busch, the young sophomore guard.

Roy Martintoni of Washington, the league's leading scorer, was awarded the center position in a close battle with Washburn's bespectacled Don Dittemore. Martintoni was the big scoring punch in Washington's offense and counted 115 points in 12 games.

Drake dominated the second team, Billy McCloud, the junior forward, was the choice for a forward job, and Wayne Xanders, the husky guard, finished in a tie with Glenn Moller of Washington for a guard post.

SPORT SALAD
by L. C. Davis

With Apologies to Wynken, Blynken and Nod.

Accompanying Manager Frisch were four farm club pitchers, Leslie Dunkle, Tom Slats, Tom Sunkle and Nelson Potter, who will be used as practice pitchers.—News Item.

DUNKLE, Sunkle and Slats one night
Set off in a flivver for two,
Down a highway headed South,
Toward the Florida blue.

"Where are you going and what do you wish?"
Branch Rickey asked the three.
"We have come to pitch for Manager Frisch,
Who needs such men as we;
Arms of rubber and steel have we."
Said Dunkle,
Sunkle
and Slats.

—G. L. Short.

ALL day long their curves they threw
To the stars of the Redbird clan,
Till their tongues hung out a yard or two,
As they zinged 'em across the pan.
They pitched such wonderful ball it seemed
They were pointing for banner years;
And some folk thought 'twas a dream they dreamed
Of major league careers;
But keep your eye on those Three Musketeers:
Dunkle,
Sunkle
And Slats.

Too True.

Don't sell Dunkle, Sunkle and Slat short. All in the bullpen are not bum steers.

Can He Get the Range?

RUTH'S SHOES

Those rookies who are rattling around in Babe Ruth's old shirt and pants are going to have a tough time filling his shoes.

Branch Rickey is one of, if not the greatest, after dinner and between meals speakers in the National League. He is even better than Dizzy Dean, who confines himself to one subject.

Of course, when Dizzy is on his favorite topic, he is good. He'll tell you so himself.

The early bird catches the worm, but all the early harbinger of spring catches is a cold. Ask Cock Robin, he knows.

Youth will be served, but what we are anxious to see is what will happen when old Babe Ruth stacks up against old Jess Haines.

Dazzy Vance, another veteran of many campaigns, may get a chance to test his speed against the aging Ruth's punch.

The watch word of the United Air Lines is "Safety First." Accordingly they hired two stewardesses named Doris Gillette and Alice Razor.

It is rumored that Earl Coombs, the well-known dollar-a-year man of the Yankees, will soon receive a new contract calling for a substantial raise.

Detroit Tigers Celebrate "Pitchers' Week"—Carl Reynolds Signs With Red Sox—Lopez, Dodger Catcher, Gets a Rest—Charley Root Looks Impressive.

By the Associated Press.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 9.—The Detroit Tigers were preparing today to swing into strenuous spring practice routine next week. Mickey Cochrane will call out the entire squad for the first time this season.

The past week has been pitchers' week with the Bengals. Next week infielders and outfielders are to report and will get their first "grapefruit league" competition against the Phillies on Saturday.

Life for the infielders won't be made easy by the presence of Herman (Flea) Clifton. The "Flea" was scheduled for Hollywood in the Coast League, but he won President Navin's permission to train with the Tigers.

"One of those other infielders may not be up to form and I will have a chance to take his job," said Clifton.

Joe Is Satisfied.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Manager Joe McCarthy expressed himself as being satisfied with the condition of the Yankees today as they rounded out their first week of training with the usual batting, bunting and running exercises.

A number of arrivals, including Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri, Frank Crosetti and Ben Chapman, are expected tomorrow, when the players get their last Sunday off of the spring season.

All Red Sox are Present.

SARASOTA, Fla.—Every Boston Red Sox player was present and accounted for today when Outfielder Carl Reynolds came to terms.

Manager Joe Cronin drove his entire squad through a long batting drill before subjecting his infielders to an hour's fielding workout. The new Sox pilot called a Sunday practice session.

Lopez Gets Rest.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Al Lopez, the Cuban catcher, was the only Dodger regular of last season who wasn't picked for the first team today when Manager Casey Stengel picked his lineups for the first intra-camp game of the season tomorrow. Lopez was told to take a rest while Gordon (Blimp) Phelps, who still is considerably overweight, was chosen to work behind the plate. The Dodgers had only one practice session today.

Root in Form.

AVALON, Cal. — Charley Root, Cub pitching veteran, again demonstrated serious signs of a big comeback today as the regulars beat the Yannigans, 5 to 0, in a nine-inning practice game. Root worked three innings, struck out five men and allowed only one hit.

White Sox to Cut Squad.

PASADENA, Cal.—Manager Jimmy Dykes will start pruning his overloaded pitching staff Monday. The White Sox have 16 hurlers in camp and Dykes plans to get rid of seven. Right now his pitching hopes are centered on George Earnshaw, Sad Sam Jones, Ted Lyons, Leslie Tietje, Lee Stine, Joe Vance, Johnny Whitehead, Vernon Kennedy and Babe Phelps to produce a good pitching staff.

Indians Are Idle.

NEW ORLEANS. — A steady downpour prevented the Cleveland Indians from engaging the New Orleans Pelicans in their first exhibition game here today.

Manager Walter Johnson said if weather permits a tiff tomorrow he will follow his original plan and have Al Milnar, Denny Galehouse and Steve Sundra occupy the mound for the Tribe.

The rain did not prevent the Indians from exercise. They repaired to an athletic club and engaged in handball, volley ball and swimming.

Senators Get Going.

BILOXI, Miss.—Continued rains which have kept the Senators off the baseball diamond for five days let up late today and Manager Buck Harris sent his young hopefuls into batting practice.

Despite the soggy infield which prevented playing, Sington and Bolton showed up well in the batting set-to.

FRANK BOEHM ROLLS PERFECT 300 GAME IN BOWLING MATCH

After just missing a perfect game in the tenth frame, Frank Boehm came back to bowl a 300 game in a tenpin match yesterday afternoon at Delmar Recreation. Boehm finished with a three-game total of 824.

Boehm was paired with Rip Johnson, both of the J. R. Kearney No. 1 team. He rolled 245 in the first game and then hit nine strikes in the second. His tenth ball was a pocket hit, but the No. 10 pin refused to fall. He also missed the pin on his second try to chalk up 279. With Johnson, Boehm had a team total of 1345 to best James R. Kearney Jr. and U. C. Dunaway of the J. R. Kearney No. 2 team's total of 1153 by 192 pins. Kearney rolled 567 and Dunaway 586.

U. City Soccer Final.

The Stuarts will try to clinch the University City Municipal Soccer League championship at Heman Park this afternoon. They have only to win one game from the Zeltmans to take the series, for they won last Sunday, 2 to 1, on Casey's two goals. The only tally for Zeltmans was made by Gibbons from the penalty spot. Les Slattery and Andy Meagher, two former stars, will referee the game, which starts at 2:30 p. m.

NEW YORK AND ST. LOUIS LEAD NATIONAL TABLE TENNIS TOURNEY

St. Louis and New York became the outstanding contenders for the national intercity team table tennis championship when they came through with three victories and no defeats in the opening day's matches at St. Louis University, yesterday. The tournament will be concluded with afternoon and evening sessions today.

The surprising strength of the comparatively unheard-of William Price gave St. Louis a somewhat unexpected victory over Chicago last night. Price defeated Chicago's champion, Aronson, and another star, Condy, ranked No. 2 nationally. Mark Schlude also came through with two victories in this set and Richard Tindall also beat Condy.

About 300 persons witnessed last night's play.

One of the outstanding individuals appearing here is Solomon Schiff, United States champion of 1934 and No. 1 ranking player. He won both his matches from Detroit players although 17-year-old John Cash extended him in two fast games.

The tournament, conducted under the direction of the St. Louis District Table Tennis Association, is played on a round-robin plan, each of the six contesting cities meeting each rival squad once in a five-out-of-nine game series. In the opening session of five matches yesterday afternoon, the winning team in each case shut out the losers without a victory.

GIANTS WIN SECOND GAME FROM MACKMEN; DICK BARTELL IS STAR

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—Led by Dick Bartell, their new shortstop, and Joe Moore, the New York Giants turned back the Philadelphia Athletics for the second straight day when they defeated the American League club, 3 to 2, in an exhibition baseball game cut to five and one-half innings by rain today.

Bartell scored two of the Giants' runs after hitting singles. After the first hit in the opening inning, he romped home ahead of Joe Moore, who cracked out the first home run of the Grapefruit League. In the fifth the former Phillies' shortstop connected with his second hit and then raced to the plate when Hank Leiber followed with another one-bagger and Coleman fumbled the ball on the wet grass for an error.

Each team connected with six hits, the Giants getting their blows off Le Roy Mahaffey and Sugar Cain and the Athletics off Fred Fitzsimmons and Leon Chagnon.

Score by innings:
Philadelphia (A.) 010100—2 6 1
New York (N.) 20001*—3 6 2

Batteries: Mahaffey, Cain and Foxx; Fitzsimmons, Chagnon and Danning.

(Called with two out last half of sixth, rain).

45,000 SEE HEAD PLAY WIN $10,000 LOS ANGELES RAC

CLAIM OF FOUL BY JOCKEY ON SECOND HORSE IS DISALLOWED

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—Head Play, owned by Mrs. Silas B. Mason, proved again today that he is a superior mudder by winning the $10,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap.

The five-year-old chestnut son of My Play, after a display of unruly antics at the barrier, which sent him to the outside, broke into the front off the starting gate and never was headed.

A crowd of 45,000 persons, who braved inclement weather to see the final program of the inaugural meeting here, cheered Head Play home, a winner by two lengths, with Top Row second and Ladysman third, five lengths back of the A. A. Baroni horse.

The winner's time for the mile and a furlong, over the track that was a quagmire, was 1 minute, 51 2-5 seconds.

Foul Claim Disallowed.

A foul was claimed immediately after the finish, but the stewards refused to comment after they had disallowed the request. It was understood, however, that Frank Mauro, up on Top Row, had accused Charley Kurtsinger, Head Play's pilot, of striking his mount across the head as Top Row moved up to challenge off the stretch turn.

Kurtsinger said it was accidental.

Head Play paid $5.60, $4 and $3.20 on $2 pari-mutuel tickets, going to the post a favorite. Top Row was worth $4 and $3, and Ladysman $3.60.

Race Worth $9000.

Victory for Head Play was worth $9100 net to the owner. Top Row collected $2000, Ladysman $1000 and Time Supply, fourth, a half-length back of Ladysman, $500.

Head Play moved out in front by a length and a half at the quarter post and held this position until the last third when Top Row, Ladysman and Sun Archer moved up into contention. None was able to get in front of the fast-moving chestnut, although Top Row moved up a neck behind coming into the stretch.

Then Kurtsinger started using the lash and it was one of these blows that Mauro claimed had struck his horse. Top Row lost ground after that and Head Play won going away.

Change in Trout Laws.

MISSOURI'S annual "fish fry" on the State parks, as a group of sportsmen recently referred to the opening of the trout season, March 1, when thousands of anglers lined the banks of the trout streams in their quest for the Ozark rainbows, is due for a change.

State Game and Fish Department officials, confronted by the annual huge take of trout on the opening day, and the congestion of fishermen along the limited trout streams, made it known that the Roaring River plan of greater fly fishing water will be extended to Bennett Spring State Park by next season. Principal reason the fishing was not restricted more to fly fishing this season, it was pointed out, was that construction of a dam and a new four-arch concrete and stone bridge over the spring branch and the mill race did not make it practical to establish the fly-fishing regulations on a great area along the stream.

Plans now under consideration by Dr. G. B. Herndon, chief of hatcheries, include considerable stream improvement work, when the CCC construction is finished some time this year, before establishing special areas for bait and fly fishermen. It is likely that the area from the dam to the spring will be restricted to bank fishing only, with bait fishing permitted. The stream would be deepened somewhat and diversion dams constructed so that the branch would maintain its established depths and create new holes and swift water.

Improvements Are Needed.

It is also proposed to establish a fly-fishing area on the stream from the dam to the Niangua River. With the exception of "Bluff Hole" and "Susie's Eddy," this stretch of water is considered very good fly fishing water, but in need of some improvement. Diversion dams and rocks in the stream are expected to solve much of the problem of putting this among the State's best fly fishing waters.

Some of the best fishing now obtainable at Roaring River State Park in Barry County is on the fly-fishing area which last season was greatly improved. At this place, fly fishermen have been successful, and it is believed that when the Bennett Spring branch is improved and much of it restricted to fly fishing, the fly whippers will have as much success as the bait slingers have been having in seasons past.

Season Changes April 1.

Misouri anglers have until the end of this month in which to fish for all kinds of native fish before the season closes April 1, on everything except trout, until Decoration day. Although trout fishing has been receiving most attention since the season opened the first day of this month, other fish have been striking, those who have been on stream and lake say.

Reynolds Washburn of Morgan County hooked two nice bass, one weighing three and a half pounds and the other two pounds, on the Lake of the Ozarks near Gravois Mills recently. E. R. Edwards of Warsaw took the limit of crappie daily for three successive days this last week. Dr. B. P. Homan also of Warsaw took a four-pound jack salmon the same week.

Lake fishermen say the Lake of the Ozarks is at a good stage for fishing at present and that best catches are being made at points where streams flow into the main body of the lake.

Trapped 1223 Rabbits.

T. A. Dobson of near Tipton, Mo., started trapping wild rabbits for export as a side line during the winter. When the season for trapping closed recently a check-up showed Dobson had trapped 1223 rabbits for which he received $198. The "bunnies" were exported to Pennsylvania and New Jersey where they were used for stocking purposes on State managed shooting areas.

Two Missouri women made perfect shooting scores in meets during the last week. Mrs. Lela Hall of East Lynn, Mo., widely known as a trapshooter, broke 100 successive targets in an interstate shoot at Kansas City. While she was making this record Miss Jean Haire, now a student at Wichita University and a granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Norman of Tipton shot a perfect score in a rifle match at Kemper Military Academy.

Logan Wills, game warden at Linn (Osage County) recently reported to the department that a crippled deer had been found by Herman Neuner of Richfontain who is caring for the injured animal until it can walk. . . . Mrs. E. W. Decker of Jefferson City has been awarded third prize in a national fishing contest for an eight-pound small mouth bass she caught last fall on the Lake of the Ozarks—migrations of many birds are now underway through Missouri and the owls are nesting at this time.

WEIGHT LIFTERS WILL HOLD MEET, MARCH 28

The Ozark A. A. U. senior and junior weight lifting championship meet, under the auspices of the South Side Barbell Club, will be held in the downtown Y. M. C. A. March 28, starting at 8 p. m.

The senior event will be comprised of present and former champions. The juniors will be lifters who have never competed in or won an A. A. U. lifting meet.

The event will be contested on the five international lifts.

The championship awards will go to the lifters in each of the two classes, lifting the most pounds per body weight.

All Ozark A. A. U. registered lifters and those eligible for register, are invited to take part in this meet. Entry blanks may be obtained from Ed Routt, 3445 Miami street, or the downtown Y. M. C. A.

RICH PREAKNESS RACE AT PIMLICO SET FOR MAY 11

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, March 9.—Scheduling the $25,000 added Preakness for Saturday, May 11, the Maryland Jockey Club today opened the gates of the Pimlico race track to geldings for the three-year-old classic for the first time in its 62 years.

Matthias L. Daiger, secretary of the club, said this action was taken "simply because the majority were in favor of it." Previously the entry had been limited to colts and fillies. The entries for the Preakness will close April 15.

The Preakness, named in honor of a great race horse, was started in 1873 and run annually at Pimlico except from 1889 to 1909. This year's race will be its forty-fifth running. The stake of $25,000 added is the same as last year.

The club's announcement followed a meeting of the representatives of Maryland's four large tracks to select the dates of the spring meets. The managements had delayed arranging the dates pending action by the State Legislature on a plea for tax relief. The Maryland Racing Commission, however, ordered that the dates be submitted before next Saturday.

Thirty-five days of racing were scheduled by the representatives, opening on April 2 at Bowie and closing with the Preakness card at Pimlico. The dates, submitted to the commission, are: Bowie, April 2 to 13; Havre de Grace, April 15 to 27; Pimlico, April 29 to May 11.

The half mile track at Hagerstown has asked for 10 days late in May.

No dates were picked for the fall. The tracks have threatened to remain closed if the Mullikin bill in the State Legislature, providing for reduction from $6000 to $500 in the daily tax, a 15 per cent levy on net revenue and a pari mutuel take of 7½ per cent is not passed.

Field Trials At Warrenton To Be Completed Today

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WARRENTON, Mo., March 9.—Only six pointers and setters belonging to members of the St. Louis Pointers and Setters Field Trial Association were tested this afternoon in the fifth annual trials held on a farm near here. The start of the trials was delayed by rain. No birds were found by any of the dogs.

Five heats have been announced for tomorrow the first one starting at 9 a. m.

A number of St. Louisans arrived this evening and a much larger contingent is expected tomorrow.

Dan owned by Dr. E. H. Jacobemeyer of Clayton, Bing owned by Wade T. Childress, Richmond Heights, undaunted Proctor Jud owned by Asa B. Wallace of Clayton, president of the association, and last year's winner Czard Lad, a male setter owned by Clark McAdams of St. Louis, are among the entries that received favorable comment.

Last night the sportsmen were entertained by a motion picture of hunting prairie chickens and quail from Manitoba to the Gulf of Mexico by McAdams, which was shown in the Warrenton County Court House.

Midget Autos to Race Thursday

Two dirt-track drivers, well known to local racing fans, have recently turned to the midget driving field and have entered cars in the program of indoor races to be held at the Arena Thursday night. Dick Glover and Bud Holvey, both of Springfield, Ill., the two new entries, were prominent in races at Ramona and Creve Coeur for the past few years.

These two will be joined by Matt McCoy, also of Springfield, who has raced on two programs at the Arena in the past and will form a three-man team from the Illinois capital.

With the entry of these three and further entries announced from Chicago by Earl Reflow of Roscoe Hough and Gale Lower, both of Fort Wayne, Ind., the list of signed drivers for Thursday night's program late yesterday reached 21, with four days still remaining before the race is to be run.

STUART AND ZELTMAN ELEVENS IN 2ND GAME OF SOCCER TITLE PLAY

The Stuarts and Zeltmans are scheduled to play the second of the three-game series to decide the championship of the University City Soccer League at Heman Park this afternoon. Play begins at 2:30 o'clock. The Stuarts won the series opener, 2 to 1. Andy Meagher and Les Slattery will referee.

Runs "100" in 9.5 Seconds.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., March 9.—In an amazing early season challenge to the rest of the nation's sprinters, George Anderson, University of California sophomore, won the hundred in 9.5 seconds today in a track and field meet that saw the Bears overwhelm University of San Francisco, 113 to 18.

SHAW-STEPHENS GIRLS TO MEET TULSA STENOS

The Shaw-Stephens American Legion girls' basketball team will conclude its series of three games with the National A. A. U. champion Tulsa Stenos this afternoon in the feature battle of a triple-header at the Maplewood Senior High School Gymnasium. In their two previous meetings, each club scored a victory and suffered a defeat.

The Tulsa Stenos, who drew the largest turnout of the season several weeks ago, will show such stars as Frances Dunlap, generally recognized as America's greatest girl basketball player; Francis Williams, captain of the 1934 all-America (girls' rules) team, and Lillian Justice, full-blooded Cherokee Indian forward.

The probable lineups:

SHAW-STEPHENS	Pos.	TULSA STENOS.
Andersen (12)	R. F.	Dunlap (10)
M. Dueker (2)	L. F.	Justice (88)
Rudis (6)	C.	Williams (11)
Collins (5)	R. G.	Hickman (55)
Moon (13)	L. G.	Barham (22)

Reserves: Shaw-Stephens—Wadlow (11), C. Dueker (7), Uebel (8), Rogers (9), Madison (4), Mertensmeyer (3), Frillman (10); Tulsa—Wilke (22), Hawks (44). Referee—Riegert.

All-Stars to Oppose Champions.

This champion club of the Pacific Coast League will again meet a team of all-stars picked from the other seven clubs at the season's close.

RING FANS POUR INTO HAMBURG FOR SCHMELING AND HAMAS BOUT

How Boxers Compare

By the Associated Press.

HAMBURG, March 9.—Physical measurements of Max Schmeling and Steve Hamas follows:

HAMAS.		SCHMELING.
195 pounds	Weight	197 pounds
72.4 inches	Height	73.2 inches
75 inches	Reach	77 inches
36 inches	Chest (normal)	42 inches
40.7 inches	Chest (expanded)	45.4 inches
13.4 inches	Biceps	15 inches
11.8 inches	Forearm	13 inches
21.6 inches	Thigh	26 inches
15.3 inches	Calf	15 inches

By the Associated Press.

HAMBURG, March 9.—This ice-crusted shipping city had worked itself into the proper pitch tonight over the impending Sabbath duel between Max Schmeling and Steve Hamas, two young men equally determined to sample Champion Max Baer's explosive right next June.

Twenty-three special trains, including the famous 120-mile-an-hour "Flying Hamburger" from Berlin, poured fans into Hamburg's biting air.

Government officials were secretive, but it was learned some of the highest officials in the Nazi regime would be on hand when the rivals for Baer's right open their 12-round tussle in the sprawling sports shed about noon Eastern Standard Time.

It was reported that even Adolph Hitler, a great admirer of Schmeling, would have been at the ringside but for the fact that he developed a cold.

Hotels are Packed.

Practically every hotel is filled to capacity and the lobbies overrun like an Elks' convention. Promoter Walter Rotherberg believes a capacity crowd of 25,000 is assured.

Among other problems on the mind of the smart, cool Rothenberg today was trying to placate Charlie Harvey, manager of Hamas. He continued hot under the collar because boxing officials from Berlin failed to keep an appointment at noon and advise who will serve as judges and referee. Apparently everyone has been told who is to officiate except Harvey.

"All I can find out in this country is what you fellows tell me," Harvey said.

Hamas, accompanied by his wife, spent the day quietly at his hotel and despite all the stories about his dizzy training routine looked fit and said he felt the same way. He will scale about 195 at the weighing-in ceremonies tomorrow.

Schmeling hit exactly 190 when he finished his final workout. Germany's hope remained at his camp far from the city and took the first opportunity he has had to visit the Bismarck Museum, possibly drawing his inspiration from the Iron Chancellor's battle trophies.

Schmeling Big Favorite.

Neither fighter is willing to make any predictions, each contenting himself with the demure statement he intends to do his dead level best. Schmeling remained such a firm favorite that not a single fan in the last two days has been heard to give Hamas even an outside chance of winning.

Whether it means anything or not, Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, received a cable from Ancil Hoffman, manager of Baer, promising the German a title bout next June provided he knocks out Hamas.

"If Schmeling knocks out Steve will take title fight in June," read the message from San Francisco. Harvey had not received a similar promise late tonight.

Revolta-Picard, Smith-Runyan In Golf Final

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—Johnny Revolta, Michigan flash, and Henry Picard of Charleston, making a strong comeback in the international four-ball championship, defeated the Ghezzi-Willie Klein combination, 1 up.

Revolta and Picard, who Friday set a new best ball record of 61 over the Miami Country Club course and eliminated the veterans Bobby Cruickshank and Tommy Armour, trailed Ghezzi and Klein by two holes at the end of the morning 18. With nerves of steel they set out in the afternoon, overcame their handicap and won out.

Tomorrow they will meet two other members of the ranks of golf's youthdom in Horton Smith and Paul Runyan, in the tournament final.

Smith and Runyan today defeated Gene Sarazen and Harold McSpaden, 5 and 4.

SOCIETY NEWS SECTION

PART SEVEN ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 10, 1935. PAGES 1—12G

"Booing Section" at The Arena For Amateurs' Hockey Game

Stars of Watch and Warders Will Join With Octopuses Against Winter Garden Team Tomorrow Night.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY members of the Watch and Ward Society, social organization composed of young men of social prominence and debutantes of this and other seasons with a flair for the unusual in entertaining, have been notified to fill the "special booing section" — the West boxes of the Arena — tomorrow night, to watch their team, combined with Octopus Sextet, play ice-hockey against the Winter Garden six. To help their team along, the same Watch and Warders are urged to have "catcalls, duck calls, cowbells, or to just grow hoarse hooting."

It all started earlier in the winter when E. Lansing Ray Jr., with several others, all of whom had once starred for their respective alma maters, decided to organize an amateur ice hockey club, now known as the Octopus Sextet, donned uniforms and played. Competition started when the Watch and Ward Society organized its own team, also of former university players.

Meanwhile there were skating parties, with both squads gaining much needed practice. One night about two months ago the Watch and Ward Society rented the Arena for an evening which began with cocktails and dancing in one of the towers and ended with hot dogs and coffee in a room adjoining the ice rink after skating. Guests, in response to invitations, appeared in costumes varying from fur-trimmed Russian tunics to football uniforms borrowed from obliging friends and worn by girls as well as boys.

The first inter-club game was played early in December, before an audience limited to invited friends of the players, with Miss Jane Wells, Veiled Prophet Queen, throwing in the puck for the face-off. More amateurs have been added until now there are four teams, and an informal league formed between the Watch and Ward, Octopus, Missouri Skating Union and Winter Garden. Colors have been chosen, red, white and blue for the Octopus and blue, orange and white for the Watch and Ward; professional-looking uniforms purchased, and even coaches selected, some from big league ranks. Competition is not so keen, however, as to prevent two teams combining on occasion to play a third. Friday night the Arena six, combining the strength of the Watch and Ward and the Octopus, opposed the Winter Garden in the first game of a short schedule to end Saturday, March 16, if present plans hold, with the Watch and Ward and Octopus, to be known as St. Louis, opposing intramural all-stars of the University of Illinois, at Champaign.

One of the most important events on the schedule will be the Ice Carnival of the St. Louis Figure Skating Club, to be held Wednesday and Thursday, March 27 and 28, at the Winter Garden. Planned along lines used by the Madison Square Garden for their carnival, there will be orchid-tinted ice, colored lighting effects and a full orchestra playing for skating. Well-known skaters, including Ruth English and Leonard Fogassey, Midwestern pair champions, and Jeanne Schulte and Ollie Haupt Jr., national junior figure skating champions, will appear. Ice hockey games between the Watch and

Hillary Boogher Engaged to Wed R. D. Shewmaker

DR. AND MRS. FRANK BOOGHER, 6200 Pershing avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hillary Boogher, and Richard Dudley Shewmaker of St. Louis, son of Dr. and Mrs. William O. Shewmaker of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Boogher is a graduate of Mary Institute and Vassar College, and last year was secretary of the Vassar Club of St. Louis. She has traveled extensively both in this country and in Europe. During her debut year Miss Boogher served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. She is an active member of the Junior League and has taken part in many of the league's plays for children. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boogher and Mrs. Nathaniel L. Moffitt are an uncle and aunt of the prospective bride.

Mr. Shewmaker is a graduate of the University of Missouri, and the law school of Harvard University, class of 1930.

Plans for the wedding have not been announced.

Laura Todd Wed To Boston Man

THE wedding of Miss Laura Durkee Todd, daughter of Mrs. George Davidson Todd of Brookline, Mass., formerly of Louisville, Ky., and the late Mr. Todd, to Howell De Witt Stevens, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Morris D Stevens of Boston, took place Friday morning in the Little Church Around the Corner, New York. The Rev. Randolph Ray, rector, performed the ceremony, which was attended only by members of the immediate families, including the bride's aunt, Mrs. Hudson E. Bridge, Price and Edgewood roads. A small reception followed at the Prince George Hotel.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Theodore Weld Sterling of Buckingham Valley, Pa., formerly Miss Marion Bridge, and wore a jacket gown of sea green crepe with three-quarter length sleeves, trimmed with taupe fur. A brown hat and brown accessories completed her costume, and her

Mrs. O. P. J. Falk Is Junior League Follies Chairman

COMMITTEES for the Junior League Follies, to be presented in the opera house of the Municipal Auditorium, May 10 and 11, have begun to function under the general chairmanship of Mrs. O. P. Joseph Falk, assisted by the League president, Mrs. Donaldson L. Lambert.

Auxiliary chairmen, announced this week, are: Miss Christine Jones, tickets; Mrs. Ralph Foster Bixby, boxes; Mrs. Henry T. Brinckwirth, treasurer; Mrs. David Randolph Calhoun and Mrs. Thomas Wright Pettus, program; Mrs. Leicester Faust, patrons and patronesses; Miss Roccena Baldwin and Miss Helen Heissler, publicity; Mrs. John Kennard Wallace, cast; Mrs. Reginald Mortimer Cross Ormrod and Mrs. Thomas K. Niedringhaus Jr., rehearsals; Mrs. Henry Haarstick Whittemore and Mrs. William O. Shock, costumes; Mrs. Francis Linton Gross, make-up, and Mrs. Carl J. Koehler, fashion show.

Miss Christine Jones expects to start advance sale of seats this week, although the tickets will not be put on sale at the boxoffice until after the first of May. Each member of the Junior League will be made responsible for a minimum number of tickets, and the member disposing of the greatest number will be rewarded. Mrs. Ralph Bixby is accepting reservations for boxes now.

In the absence of Mrs. Calhoun, Mrs. Pettus has taken charge of the work of the program committee, which has been soliciting advertisements for the program during the last week.

The publicity committe, whose members are Mrs. Richard Baldwin, Miss Dorcas Taylor and Miss Jaquelin Chapman, will meet tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Miss Baldwin, 23 Westmoreland place, to discuss the use of various mediums, including radio, billboards, posters, and newspaper advertisements, in the advance campaign.

Tryouts and rehearsals for the benefit production, the first of its kind in St. Louis since 1922, will begin shortly after the arrival of the professional director from New York the first of April.

Gilbert-Schmidt Church Wedding

THE marriage of Miss Grace Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. L. Schmidt, 460 Belleview avenue, to Philip Gilbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert, 425 Oakwood avenue, took place Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves, the Rev. George M. Gibson officiating. The chancel was decorated with ferns and palms and lighted by two slanting tiers of white candles.

The bride was gowned in an afternoon ensemble of gray crepe with a knee-length fitted coat. Her accessories were navy blue, and she carried a bouquet of white lilacs. Miss Sue Gilbert, sister of the bridegroom, who was her only attendant, wore a suit of green sheer wool with a short full jacket. She wore brown accessories and carried a bouquet of spring flowers in which yellow predominated. Mrs. Schmidt was gowned in navy blue crepe with hat to match, and Mrs. Gilbert wore black lace and a small black hat.

Edgar Denison was Mr. Gilbert's best man, and his ushers were Robert Schmidt, brother of the bride, and his brother-in-law, John Voorhees.

After the ceremony the young couple and the wedding party received the guests in the narthex of the church and dinner for the wedding party and the two families followed at the Schmidt home which was decorated with spring flowers. Following a honeymoon, Mr. Gilbert and his bride will reside at 561 South Clay avenue, Kirkwood.

The bride attended Washington University and the University of Wisconsin and was a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Gilbert, who attended Washington University, Rutger College and Columbia University, belongs to Pi Kappa Alpha.

Miss Klinefelter Mardi Gras Queen

IN an appropriate ceremony, patterned after the New Orleans carnival, Miss Cornelia Klinefelter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marion L. Klinefelter, 38 Broadview drive, Clayton, was crowned Mardi Gras queen at the annual King Ptolemy ball given Monday night by the senior class of Maryville College. The identity of the successful candidate for queen is kept secret until her coronation.

Miss Klinefelter is a junior in the college and is a member of the varsity basketball team. She is the second of her family to be chosen queen of the Maryville prom. Her sister, Mrs. Frank B. McMahon, formerly Miss Rosemary Klinefelter, reigned in 1932.

The maids of honor were: Miss Helen Coy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Coy, 3204 Hawthorne boulevard; Miss Dorothea Wanner, New Orleans, La.; Miss Mary Schwing, New Iberia, La.; Miss Judith Meiser, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Meiser, 7137 Delmar boulevard; Miss Anne Snooks, St. Joseph, Mo., and Miss Mary Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Woods, 526 Lake avenue, Webster Groves.

Other students taking part in the ceremonies were: "King Ptolemy," for whom this ball is named, Miss Betty Anne Witte, Peoria, Ill.; Miss Nancy McAuley, Miss Rosemary Reher, St. Louis; Miss Mary Widmer, Miss Mary Margaret Kelly, Webster Groves; Miss Christine Griesedieck, Belleville, Ill.; Miss Eleanor Marron, Albuquerque, N. M.; dukes of the court. Miss Mary Meade O'Callaghan, Lafayette, La., was captain.

The King Ptolemy ball is the last campus social affair until Easter and one of the most outstanding of the college year at Maryville. It is patterned after the balls given at this season in New Orleans and is always arranged by New Orleans students. This year Miss Marie Louise Martinez of that city was chairman of the arrangements.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS

Social Items From the Army Post

COL. AND MRS. WALTER C. SHORT entertained at dinner Wednesday evening. Mrs. John J. Harden of Oklahoma City, Ok., is visiting them on her way to New York, where she will meet her daughter, who has been on a world cruise.

A tea dance was given yesterday afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock, at the post gymnasium by Capt. and Mrs. James C. Reed and Lieut. and Mrs. John D. Frederick. The long tea table was covered with a Philippine pina cloth, embroidered with small yellow flowers and green leaves, and having a wide yellow border. Yellow candles in low crystal holders and a crystal bowl filled with spring flowers occupied the center of the table. The post orchestra furnished the music for dancing. Mrs. Walter C. Short, Mrs. Mabel C. Burney, Mrs. Paul A. Brickey and Mrs. Ida Hurlbut, Mrs. Lill Rackerby of Kirkwood and Mrs. Rufus A. Byers presided at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Smith, Mrs. Walden B. Coffey, Miss Carol Sims and Miss Betty Chappell.

The guests included: Col. and Mrs. Walter C. Short, Capt. and Mrs. Paul A. Brickey, Capt. and Mrs. Rufus A. Byers, Capt. W. D. Candler, Capt. J. H. Cochran, Lieut. and Mrs. W. B. Coffey, Capt. and Mrs. J. D. Eason, Maj. and Mrs. C. H. Glascock, Capt. and Mrs. Roland S. Henderson, Capt. and Mrs. Robert L. Hostetler, Lieut. Roscoe C. Huggins, Lieut. Charles A. Carrell, Mrs. Ida Hurlbut, Capt. and Mrs. William H. Irvine, Lieut. J. W. Jenna, Lieut. Herman J. Kaesser, Maj. Floyd V. Kilgore, Capt. and Mrs. Harry Kirsner, Capt. and Mrs. Le Roy McGraw, Lieut. and Mrs. John D. O'Connell, Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Phillips, Maj. and Mrs. Thomas H. Reagan, Lieut. and Mrs. A. J. Regnier, Lieut. J. B. Richardson, Capt. and Mrs. Leonard Sims, Maj. and Mrs. W. A. Smith, Lieut. and Mrs. Wayne C. Smith, Capt. and Mrs. Nels L. Soderholm, Lieut. and Mrs. A. D. Stephenson, Maj. and Mrs. James A. Summersett, Lieut. and Mrs. Louis W. Truman, Capt. and Mrs. James R. Urquhart, Lieut. Lawrence K. White, Capt. and Mrs. T. E. Winstead, Maj. and Mrs. W. B. Zimmerman, Lieut. and Mrs. C. C. Ellison, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Poston, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gillespie, R. A. Frederick and Benson Robinson.

Capt. and Mrs. John D. Eason entertained Maj. and Mrs. James A. Summersett and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Pollack at dinner Friday.

Lieut. and Mrs. John D. Frederick have as their guests this week-end, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Poston, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gillespie, R. A. Frederick and Benson Robinson, all of Springfield, Ill.

Capt. and Mrs. Edwin T. Wheatley, who have been stationed at Jefferson Barracks for the last five years, departed Wednesday for Lawrence, Kan., and Joplin, Mo., to visit friends before going to Los Angeles, Cal., to visit Capt. Wheatley's father. They will sail June 4 from San Francisco, Cal., for Capt. Wheatley's new station in the Philippine Islands.

Lieut. and Mrs. George Van Zee arrived Tuesday from Macomb, Ill.

Mrs. Harry Kirsner entertained at a bridge luncheon Friday afternoon, honoring Mrs. John D. Eason, who with Capt. Eason will leave for a station in the Hawaiian Islands. Those invited were: Mrs. Walter C. Short, Mrs. W. C. Phillips, Mrs. A. J. Regnier, Mrs. Wayne C. Smith, Mrs. T. E. Winstead, Mrs. Roland S. Henderson, Mrs. C. H. Glascock, Mrs. W. B. Zimmerman, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Henry Miller, Mrs. James A. Summersett, Mrs. Glassburn, Mrs. Ralph Murrell, Mrs. Andrew D. Stephenson, Mrs. Mabel C. Burney, Mrs. Frank Sharples, Mrs. Charles Henry and Miss Anita Ehlen.

Miss Adele Kirsner entertained several members of the younger set at a birthday dinner and theater party Saturday evening. Those present were: Helene Grossman, Marion Furnish, Marjorie Seegar, Margaret Davis, Joyce Miller, Dean Short, Bobbie Reagan, Louis Soderholm, Leonard Sims, Timothy Murphy, Harold Thomas, Jimmie Grossman and Sally Kirsner.

Capt. and Mrs. Roland S. Henderson gave a dinner Tuesday evening in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Edwin T. Wheatley. The other guests were Col. and Mrs. Walter C. Short and Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Phillips.

Capt. and Mrs. Rufus A. Byers entertained Mrs. William H. Keech of St. Louis, Col. and Mrs. Walter C. Short, Dr. and Mrs. Willard Bartlett, Louis Hall and Robert McCurdy at luncheon last Sunday.

Mrs. Ida Hurlbut had as her luncheon guests Tuesday Lieut. and Mrs. Daniel Hundley and Mrs. Elizabeth Hundley of Springfield, Ill.

DRY CLEANERS
SANITONE

a New way to Dress better for Less
LICENSED SANITONE CLEANER

YOUR NICEST DRESSES, the children's things, your husband's suits, your overdrapes and other fabrics—all can now be kept clean, fresh and bright . . . and for a longer time.

Sanitone dry cleaning is a new method which expert cleaners use to supplement their own skill and care. It enables them not only to clean fabrics more thoroughly, but also to restore their original freshness and life. The original "feel" of the cloth is recaptured. More important, its original resistance to soiling is restored.

MAKE THIS SIMPLE TEST

You actually can see the improvement in a Sanitoned garment. Here's convincing proof: Send the trousers of one of your husband's suits to be cleaned in the usual way. Send the coat and vest of the same suit to a cleaner using Sanitone. Then compare the results . . . in lustre, in cleanliness, in freedom from spots. If you don't see a difference in Sanitone's favor, send us the sales slips from both cleaners, and we will refund the full amount the cleaning cost you.

QUALITY CLEANING SAVES YOU MONEY

Only quality dry cleaners are licensed to use Sanitone. You can save money by patronizing quality dry cleaners. The difference in price between ordinary and quality dry-cleaning is never more than dimes, whereas quality cleaning makes fabrics last longer and thus saves you many dollars.

For further information about Sanitone consult your quality cleaner or write Emery Industries, Incorporated, Cincinnati, Ohio.

WHAT SANITONE IS

SANITONE is a discovery from the laboratories of a great chemical company which for years has been identified with the manufacture and processing of fine textiles. Dry-cleaners have long used a naphtha solvent, which is the most effective means for removing fat stains and soils from clothes. To naphtha, the patented SANITONE method adds an ingredient which is equally effective in removing stains caused by perspiration, fruit juices, sugar, rain drops, and plain everyday dust. Quality dry cleaners have adopted SANITONE as the latest scientific addition to their facilities for serving you.

ALREADY AVAILABLE TO OUR PATRONS

● It is a fixed policy of this establishment to give our patrons "everything that is best" in quality and service. We have spared no pains . . . not only to give you the best of our own experience and craftsmanship in dealing with everyday dry cleaning problems; but also to seek out the best practice of others and to keep abreast of technological progress in the art of dry cleaning. That is why we have pioneered SANITONE in this community and now use it regularly in our plant.

FRISCO FINANCING INQUIRY TRANSFERRED TO NEW YORK

St. Louis Hearings Before Special Master Harding Concluded, Temporarily at Least.

Inquiry into the financial management of the Frisco Railroad, prior to bankruptcy, was transferred to New York yesterday by an order obtained from Federal Judge Faris appointing Van Vechten Vieder as Special Master to conduct hearings there before March 21.

The St. Louis proceedings before Special Master Harding, in the Friscao building, were concluded, temporarily at least, at the close Friday of the examination of James M. Kurn, operating head of the railroad.

Kurn testified that E. N. Brown, chairman of the Frisco Board, who guided the railroad's financial policy, seemed to "rely greatly on advice from the Frisco's New York bankers, Speyer & Co. and Seligman & Co.

At the New York hearings Wall street bankers, and former officers and directors of the Frisco in the East, will be asked whether any bankers or individuals profited privately through the Frisco financing, and about the Frisco's large purchases of stock in the Rock Island and the Gulf, Mobile & Northern. Both transactions were handled by Brown through Speyer & Co. and both now show heavy paper losses to the Frisco.

INTERMEDIATE LANDING FIELDS ON NEW ORLEANS ROUTE OPEN

Rotating Beacons That Operate Automatically Are Spaced Every 13 Miles Apart.

Rotating beacons and four intermediate landing fields on the St. Louis-New Orleans airway are in operation, the Bureau of Air Commerce announced last week.

The lights are 24-inch beacons flashing six times a minute, and equipped with course lights to show the direction of the airway and the presence, or absence, of landing facilities. The beacons are spaced approximately 13 miles apart and turn on and off automatically.

Fully lighted intermediate landing fields, equipped with beacon, boundary, obstruction and approach lights are in operation at the following locations: half a mile Southeast of Prairie du Rocher, Ill.; one and a half miles East of Rockport, Miss.; 10 miles North of Tylertown, Miss.; five miles North of Covington, La. Other intermediate fields are being conditioned at Advance, Mo., Malden, Mo., Luxora, Ark., and Batesville and Zeiglerville, Miss.

Radio facilities include the full powered range and weather broadcast stations at St. Louis, Memphis, Tenn., Jackson, Miss., and New Orleans. Medium power stations will be established at Advance, Mo., and Tylertown and Greenwood, Miss. Chicago & Southern Air Lines, Inc., operates passenger and mail service over the route.

FAVORS NEW BRIDGE ACROSS MISSISSIPPI

Planning Association Prefers Downtown Site—Discusses Other Locations.

Need of a new bridge over the Mississippi to connect the central districts of St. Louis and East St. Louis was discussed in a report of the Regional Planning Association issued yesterday. The report was based on a traffic count and study on the five vehicular bridges in the region, made between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m., Jan. 30, under good weather conditions.

Pending a more detailed inquiry, the report declared, it appeared that the most advantageous site for a new bridge would be between Cass avenue, St. Louis, and St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, although there was a possibility between Delmar boulevard or Franklin avenue, St. Louis, and Missouri avenue, East St. Louis. There was a prospect that eventually crossings might be needed at both places, but only one seemed practical now, the report added.

For some time the city of East St. Louis has been seeking a $3,400,000 PWA loan and grant for a toll bridge at the Delmar-Franklin-Missouri site. The War Department approved the plans last summer. The city desired to repay the loan out of tolls.

Advantage of Site.

There would be less danger of traffic congestion in St. Louis if the Cass-St. Clair site were adopted, the Regional Planning Association asserted. The new bridge, said the report, "should helieve traffic conditions on Municipal Bridge and accommodate some of the movement between the eastern communities and the central portion of St. Louis. The eastern territory now unserved by a bridge connecting with the central section of St. Louis is the northern portion of East St. Louis, National City, Brooklyn and the area served by U. S. Highways 40 and 50.

"A bridge in this general neighborhood would connect two heavy traffic areas, afford direct entrance to the St. Louis business district for traffic from the northeast, and at the same time enable certain truck and passenger vehicular traffic to by-pass the most congested part of St. Louis. Other studies have indicated that additional population can be expected in this area, which would further increase the volume of traffic served by the bridge."

A new bridge in South St. Louis would provide direct service for considerable local traffic and for some through traffic, the report went on, and another bridge to connect the Missouri and Illinois belt highways, near Jefferson Barracks, would be desirable eventually, but neither was needed as urgently as the downtown structure. It was pointed out that a large increase in population in Illinois opposite the South Side, to swell local traffic on a southern bridge, was not anticipated.

For several years there has been congressional authority for a bridge near Cherokee street, but the plan has not materialized.

Municipal Bridge Congestion.

Congestion on the Municipal Bridge, said the report, was "due to its use by traffic which does not logically belong upon it and which could be better served by more direct crossings."

"This report," it was continued, "is not concerned with the question of tolls, yet it appears they could be so adjusted that each bridge would carry a normal amount of traffic. Drivers are as much interested in traveling directly and conveniently as they are in securing low toll rates. While no detailed study has been made regarding the financial possibilities of a new bridge, data have been examined which indicate that a new crossing could be readily financed without adversely affecting the income on existing crossings."

The predominating movement over the Lewis and Clark bridges was between Alton and the St. Louis business district, the report related, but the prospective lake and recreation areas above Alton would attract new traffic. Movement over McKinley Bridge was primarily between the Tri-Cities and that section of St. Louis north of Chouteau avenue, and this crossing served practically no traffic to and from the Illinois section south and east of National City.

Figures on Traffic.

Eads Bridge, it was found, was used primarily by traffic between East St. Louis and the St. Louis business district, plus considerable movement to west-central St. Louis, with practically nothing coming from north of East St. Louis. Chain of Rocks Bridge, like the Lewis and Clark pair, served the Wood River industrial area and traffic coming south over U. S. highways 66 and 67, also traffic by-passing St. Louis.

Municipal Bridge, the study showed, was used by vehicles from virtually all parts of the region, with more than 20 per cent of its traffic running between the St. Louis business district and East St. Louis and much traffic from Belleville and from U. S. Highway 40 and 50 in Illinois. At peak hours Municipal Bridge was used "almost to capacity," with some delay for motorists, but there was room for more travel on the other crossings, although a large increase in rush hour business would congest Eads and McKinley bridges, the report asserted.

Total traffic in the 12-hour period of the check on Jan. 30 was reported as follows: Municipal Bridge, 16,354 vehicles; McKinley, 3500; Eads, 2750; Lewis and Clark, 1500; Chain of Rocks, 825.

AUTOS HIT TWO AND GO ON

One Pedestrian Hit at Corner and Other in Alley.

Two men were injured early yesterday by motorists who did not stop.

Everett Lutmann, 38 years old, 5700 Water street, was struck by an automobile while waiting for a street car at Broadway and Chouteau avenue. He suffered internal injuries and a compound fracture of the right leg. Henry Wessler, 49, a cigar maker, was run down by a machine while walking through an alley back of his home, 4544 Laclede avenue. He suffered a fractured arm and internal hurts.

TO BUILD NEW TOWERS AT MUNICIPAL OPERA

Association Announces Plans for $25,000 in Improvements This Year.

A complete rebuilding of the superstructure of the stage in the open air theater in Forest Park, with a view of providing a distinctive setting for the 12 productions of the seventeenth season of Municipal Opera opening June 3, will be started at once.

The improvements to be made will represent the first unit of a series designed to weld the theater into a permanent architectural whole and to equip it with every device for facilitating productions known to theatrical authorities.

Architectural designs for the improvements have been completed by Hugo K. Graf. He has been working on the plan since the close of the 1933 opera season and has included every facility for stage productions he has been able to find in a study of indoor and outdoor theaters ranging from Rockefeller Center, New York, to Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles.

Details of Two Towers.

In place of the buildings at the far front corners of the stage, which have been referred to in the past as "light towers," there will now rise real towers in the form of permanent structures, 45 feet high, 25 feet wide. These will be finished at the top with decorative figures of aluminum. The tower at the right, as the audience faces the stage, will house the switchboard and other electrical apparatus. The one at the left will be used for housing the amplifying system of the theater.

The towers are primarily designed to give an opportunity for lighting from a more acute angle—that is to throw the rays of light more directly on the players—and to counterbalance the great oak trees which hitherto have been permitted to frame in what might be called the proscenium of the Municipal Opera's stage. They are to be architectural shafts, of abstract shape, but not so high as the trees, and not covering so great an area.

The towers will be finished with steel lath and plaster on a permanent concrete frame. The surface will be finished in light, reflective colors—to give an impression of architectural shapes—but, toward the top, and just beneath the aluminum pieces, will be a decorative inset of colored glass brick, through which, during the intermissions and before the opera, the towers will give a glow of light.

From present buildings a wall curves in to the inner boundaries of the stage proper, and is finished off with a cubicle. This will be done away with in the Graf plans. Instead of a curving wall there will be a succession of cubicle shapes on either side, extending back from the outward light towers, to present an abstract picture of shapes and planes, recessed back to the 110-foot width of the acting stage. Each of these cubicles on either side matches that opposite, and each step back lowers the top of the shape, to an average of about 19 feet. The surface of each cubicle, as it fronts the audience, is a reflecting surface for indirect lighting which plays over it from the shape in front.

Poles, Cables to Be Eliminated.

The plan does away with the amplifier poles and cables which have been an unsightly fixture of the opera setting in the past, and also the top flood lights. The amplifier horns and such lights as are necessary will be carried on a permanent cable-bridge stretched between the two outer light towers and made a part of the decorative picture.

The Municipal Opera Association's improvement plan also contemplates an overhauling of the revolving stage installed in 1930. The turntable is to play a prominent part in unfolding the action of the operettas to be produced this summer, according to Laurence Schwab, the opera's new producing director. Previously the stage turned on a series of casters placed near its center. A second series of casters will be installed along the outer edge with a view of speeding up the movement of the turntable. The entire stage of the theater is to be refloored. It is also the association's intention to purchase and install the most modern theatrical electrical equipment with a view of greatly enhancing the lighting effects of the 1935 productions.

The improvement program and new equipment will cost about $25,000.

FOR FABIUS RIVER SURVEY

House Flood Control Group Approves Romjue's Proposal

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The Flood Control Committee agreed today to report favorably a bill by Representative Romjue (Dem.), Missouri, authorizing a survey of the North Fabius River in Lewis County, Missouri, with a view to developing a flood control program.

Romjue told the committee that the extremely crooked tributary of the Mississippi now renders valueless large areas of rich bottom land because of periodic overflows.

CLEAN YOUR TEETH... as your dentist does

USE POWDER

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER
- 100% Cleansing Properties
  Twice that of tooth paste
- Contains No Grit or Pumice
  Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
- Lasts Longer—Costs Less
  Outlasts tooth paste 2 to 1

POWDER CLEANS AND WHITENS TEETH—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

KSD Programs.

THE story of Gideon, who, while the other Israelites prayed to the false god, Baal, to deliver them from the Midianites and Amalekites, destroyed Baal's altar and led his people out of their seven-year captivity, will be told in the Immortal Drama broadcast at 1 o'clock today on KSD.

Rudy Vallee, whose present radio contract runs to the end of the year, has signed another for 1936 with his sponsor. It provides for options by which the sponsor might extend it until 1941. Vallee's radio run began Oct. 24, 1929.

Joan Kay, the 22-year-old actress who has played in numerous NBC chain programs since 1930, has been engaged as a member of Tony Wons' dramatic cast for his Sunday afternoon programs on KSD.

Campanelli's "Bersagliere March," the "Prize Song" from "Die Meistersinger," and Hubay's "Hejre Kati" are among music programmed for Sigmond Romberg's program next Saturday night on KSD.

The oldtime team of Bernie and Baker will recall memories Tuesday night on KSD of the vaudeville days when Ben Bernie's fiddling and Phil Baker's work on the accordion and their exchanges created merriment everywhere they went.

Jack Dempsey Tonight.

JACK DEMPSEY is billed for behind-the-scenes stories of his ring experiences, in KSD's Manhattan Merry-Go-Round period at 8 o'clock tonight.

Seven amateur acts that have been rated high by listeners' votes will be featured in Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight at 8 o'clock next Wednesday night on KSD.

Conclusion of the Sunday night operas in English series with a performance March 17 of "Il Trovatore," with Giovanni Martinelli heading the cast, will leave this period on the following Sunday night free as a starting date for Maj. Edward Bowes' amateur broadcasts.

WOR Using 50,000 Watts Power.

WOR, Newark, N. J., has begun broadcasting with 50,000 watts power on 710 kilocycles. Its new transmission aerial is designed to radiate with full power toward New York and Philadelphia, and to radiate with only about 6000 watts power in other directions.

HIS PROGRAM SLATED TO SUCCEED KSD'S OPERAS IN ENGLISH

MAJOR EDWARD BOWES

WHOSE amateur's night program is to succeed the Opera Guild's grand opera in English series on KSD and the WEAF network Sunday nights beginning March 24. Maj. Bowes, whose Capitol Family programs have been a radio feature for more than 10 years, conducts an amateur program on WHN, New York, which ranks among the most popular in the New York district. He will continue his Capitol Family broadcasts. It was announced recently that the grand opera in English series would be continued, but, evidently, listeners who like these broadcasts have not written in sufficient numbers to the radio stations to impress the sponsor.

New Saturday Night KSD Show Planned.

STARTING April 6, a new Saturday night series will be carried by KSD and the WEAF chain. It will be of the "big name" revue type. Probabilities are that it will occupy the hour now used for the Gibson Family musical comedy program, which will be shifted to another night. The cast and orchestra for the series have not been definitely selected, but it is said that they will be so well known as to attract the immediate attention of listeners.

First Broadcast From Egypt Today.

THE first broadcast in this country from Egypt is set for 11:45 this morning on the CBS net. It will open with a reading from the Koran by the Sheikh Sayed Sultan. This will be followed by a potpourri of characteristic Egyptian music, including a solo on the kanoun, a native instrument, by Mustapha Bey Rida, president of the Royal Institute of Arabic Music, and several selections by the Oriental Radio Orchestra, climaxed by an authentic rendition of the Egyptian national anthem. A feature will be a description of a street scene in old Cairo. Cairo's site covers the remains of cities that had fallen into ruins long before the founding of the present city in 968 A. D. It is the largest city in Africa, is situated on the River Nile about 100 miles from its outlet into the Mediterranean Sea, and has a population of about 1,064,500.

Radio Sets in U. S. Number 25,551,569.

THE number of radio sets in this country has increased by nearly 10,000 million since the United States census five years ago to a total of 25,551,569, according to a survey just completed for the CBS network. Of these sets, 21,455,799 are single sets in homes, while more than 1,800,000 are in automobiles and the remainder are in homes having two or more sets.

Of 100 homes an average of 69.4 per cent have radio sets. In Missouri there are 649,040 homes with radios, a percentage of 68.8. Illinois has 1,647,283 sets, or 81.6 per cent. The total radio audience is now figured at about 70,000,000.

New York has the most sets—2,928,870. Pennsylvania is second with 1,913,319. Illinois ranks third. The District of Columbia leads in the percentage of homes having sets—95.6 per cent. In New York, 89.7 per cent of the homes have sets; in New Jersey, 86.8; in Rhode Island, 86.7; in Massachusets, 85.5; in Connecticut, 84.2, and in Pennsylvania, 83.7.

Foreign Short Wave Programs

Concerts, Lectures and Dance Music Scheduled From Italy, Spain, England and Germany—Day by Day Schedule.

BERTHA BELGADO IGLESIAS.

WHOSE gay, young voice is heard by North American short-wave listeners who have been tuning in HJIABB, Columbia, on 6.45 megacycles. She is just 16 years old. In addition to her solo singing she frequently sings duets with her 14-year-old brother, Gilberto, who strums a guitar.

PROGRAMS of special interest on foreign short waves stations, together with the time in St. Louis time are announced as follows: (There is some variation in the calibration of dials on short wave sets. So if a station sought does not come in at the indicated dial reading, one should dial carefully and slowly on either side of the kilocycle or megacycle mark.)

TODAY.

8:15-9:15 a. m.—GSB, 9.51 meg.; GSE, 11.86 meg.; England, Belfast concert orchestra.

5:00-6:00 p. m.—GSA, 6.05 meg.; GSC, 9.58 meg., England, Empire orchestra.

5:30-6:30 p. m.—EAQ, 9.87 meg., Madrid concert, choral singers.

7:15-9:30 p. m.—DJC, 6.02 meg., Berlin, news in English, and light concert.

MONDAY, MARCH 11.

3:00-3:45 p. m.—GSB, 9.51 meg.; GSD, 11.75 meg., England, Birmingham Philharmonic.

5:00-6:30 p. m.—2RO, 6.08 meg., Rome, "American Hour"; folklore concert and lecture.

TUESDAY, MARCH 12.

2:30-4:45 p. m.—GSB, 9.51 meg., England, B. B. C. Symphony Orchestra.

6:00-6:30 p. m.—BAQ, 9.87 meg., Madrid, concert.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13.

1:30-2:15 p. m.—GSB, 9.51 meg.; GSD, 11.75 meg., England, continental dance program.

5:00-6:30 p. m.—2RO, 6.08 meg., Rome, "American Hour," opera "Framme," from La Scala, Milan.

THURSDAY, MARCH 14.

5:45-6:45 p. m.—GSA, 6.05 meg.; GSC, 9.58 meg., Empire orchestra, in "Dances of All Nations."

6:00-6:30 p. m.—EAQ, 9.87 meg., Madrid concert.

FRIDAY, MARCH 15.

2:50-3:45 p. m.—GSB, 9.51 meg., England, "Barber of Seville."

5:00-6:30 p. m.—2RO, 6.08 meg., Rome, "American Hour."

Information from Paris explains why listeners have trouble receiving FYA. The French station now uses the North American directional antenna only between 10 p. m. and 12 midnight on 25.60 meters (11.72 meg). The station uses an antenna pointed at South America.

Loose electric light bulbs and floor lamp cords that permit swinging, often cause interference with short wave reception. Connections in and to a radio set should be frequently checked as these are sometimes a source of trouble. One faulty tube in a set will dim the distant stations.

YV6RC, 6.03 megacycles, Valencia, Venezuela, continues to be one of the best received of the South American broadcasters. Nearby is YV3RC, 6.66 megacycles, broadcasting from 6 to 8:30 p. m.

Most American-made radio sets are now marked in megacycles on the short wave side, but some log books still stick to meters in listing stations. The fan who wants to convert these listings should divide the number of meters into 300,000. The result is kilocycles. A megacycle is one-thousandth of a kilocycle. Thus, 30 meters would be 10 megacycles.

The most recent announcement from VK2ME, Sydney, Australia, lists 4 to 8 a. m. as its hours of operation March 10 and March 17, and 8:30 to 10:30 a. m. March 24—this on 9.59 megacycles. The Melbourne station, VK3ME, 9.51 kilcycles, still schedules Wednesdays and Saturdays as broadcasting days, from 4 to 5:30 a. m.

Worldwide Dial Club members report regular reception the past week from FZS, Indo-China, between 7:30 and 8 a. m. on 11.99 megacycles. The same group reports the best reception of YDA, Java, 6.12 megacycles, before 6:45 a. m. This station will soon shift to 6.05 megacycles.

Theatrical Producers Planning Programs.

INDICATIONS are that the legitimate theater will be much more in evidence in radio. Among theatrical organizations planning country-wide broadcasts on a regular basis are the Theater Guild, the Group Theater, the Belasco Estate and Eva Le Gallienne, according to Variety Magazine. The Theater Guild can offer to broadcasters plays by Eugene O'Neill and George Bernard Shaw and such actors as George M. Cohan, Lunt and Fontanne, Helen Mencken and Judith Anderson. The Group Theater has a plan to present new plays on the air on a weekly basis. Miss Le Gallienne is proposing a repertory theater of the air with special scripts. The success of the Sunday Radio Theater broadcasts is having a definite influence on the legitimate theater producers. So, too, is the success of Mary Pickford and her radio stock company.

ABS Chain Loses Midwest Stations.

GEORGE B. STORER'S American Broadcasting Co., in whose network WIL has been the St. Louis link, has failed as a country-wide proposition, and is now only an Atlantic seaboard chain, including WNEW, New York, and stations in Trenton, N. J.; Wilmington, Del.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Waterbury, Conn.; Providence, R. I.; Washington, D. C., and Boston. Most of these stations were in Ed Wynn's ill-fated network, then affiliated with Storer's American Broadcasting System, which for a time had WMCA, New York, as key station and extended westward to St. Louis, later losing WMCA and effecting an agreement with WNEW, New York, to act as key. Storer retains his title as president of the chain, but is to spend his time in Detroit managing a factory in which he is heavily interested.

Chevrolet Executives Made Members Here of Honorary Body

O'Meara Installed by Doran as Member of All-America Selling Team.

Felix Doran Jr., assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., came to St. Louis Thursday in his official capacity and also as vice-president of the All-America Selling Team, an honor organization, legally incorporated in Michigan, with objectives and membership requirements unique in the annals of business.

The organization was founded by William E. Holler, general sales manager of the Chevrolet company, a year ago. Its first honorary members were Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors Corporation; William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president; Richard H. Grant, vice-president of the corporation, and M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

Purposes of "Team."

This "organization within an organization" was founded by Holler to give recognition to men in the sales organization of Chevrolet for meritorious service and outstanding performance and salesmanship over and above the call of regular duty.

The All-America Selling Team is chartered under the laws of Michigan as a non-profit corporation, and its certificates, emblems and procedure are copyrighted and patented. The organization has a three-fold purpose set forth as follows in the articles of incorporation and the by-laws:

"To promote and foster the principles of good salesmanship, both wholesale and retail, in the United States. To promote good fellowship and to provide additional incentive among members. To reward distinguished achievement in the field of salesmanship.

The officers of the association for 1935 are Holler, president; Doran, vice-president; H. B. Hatch, vice-president; C. P. Fisken, secretary, and M. D. Douglas, treasurer.

The board of directors consists of the principal regional sales executives operating in nine regions. This board consists of H. L. Horton, New York City; A. F. Young, Flint, Mich.; L. S. Costley, Atlanta, Ga., R. F. Hicks, Buffalo, N. Y.; T. H. Keating, St. Louis; G. I. Smith, Janesville, Wis.; J. E. Johnson, Dallas, Tex., and H. K. Bragle, Boston, Mass.

Although only slightly more than 1 year old, the All-America Selling Team now has a membership of more than 50 of the principal sales executives of Chevrolet and General Motors.

Honor for O'Meara.

Doran's visit here was to vest membership in the association in C. E. O'Meara, St. Louis zone manager, and other sales executives in the St. Louis territory.

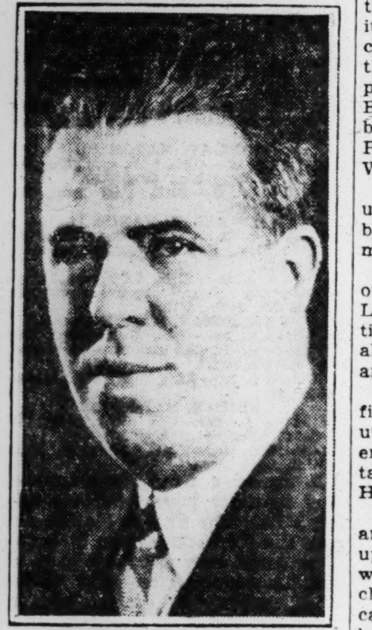
"Following the St. Louis installation," is was stated, "visiting zone managers will return to their headquarters with authority delegated by Holler and Doran to vest membership in department heads and district managers of Chevrolet who distinguished themselves in contributing to Chevrolet's leadership in passenger car sales as well as truck sales in 1934.

"The All-America Selling Team Association was formed with the sole purpose of honoring outstanding sales ability," Doran told the Midwestern Chevrolet executives at a meeting at the Park Plaza Hotel. "Originating with Mr. Holler, its first members were selected from the Chevrolet organization and the General Motors family. Membership was vested here today in Zone Manager O'Meara for untiring efforts in furthering the sale of Chevrolet Motor Co. products and for the excellence of the many aggressive selling and merchandising policies inaugurated and carried out the past year.

Honorary awards were conferred here on F. X. Miller, F. T. LePage, W. V. Tomlinson, T. M. McCaul, C. C. Schelp, F. S. Black, D. F. Riley, W. G. Cannon and F. C. Doggett of the Chevrolet sales organization.

VISITS ST. LOUIS FOR CHEVROLET CEREMONY

FELIX DORAN JR.



T. H. KEATING.

Executives of the Chevrolet Motor Co. who attended a meeting here Thursday to install Zone Manager C. E. O'Meara as members of the "All-America Selling Team" included Felix Doran Jr., assistant general sales manager, and T. H. Keating, St. Louis regional manager. Doran is vice-president of the "All-America Selling Team," which was founded more than a year ago by W. E. Holler, general sales manager, to give recognition to men in the Chevrolet sales organization for outstanding service beyond the bounds of regular duty.

The World on Wheels.

Out of the world's 34,600,000 motor vehicles, approximately 24,840,000 are registered in the United States. The ratio is one for every five persons. The least motorized country is Liberia with 53 automobiles registered, one for every 28,301 persons. Second in cars per population is Hawaii, followed by New Zealand, with seven and eight persons per automobile, respectively.

Head of Cardinals Renames Auto Firm Sam Breadon, Inc.

Has Been Ford V-8 Dealer Since Last Fall—In Car Business Since 1903.

The Western Automobile Co., Euclid avenue and Washington boulevard, which last fall became an authorized Ford dealer, has changed its name to Sam Breadon, Inc. The change is in name, the officers of the firm and its sales and service personnel remaining the same. Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals' baseball team, is president; Ashley Papin, vice-president, and William Walsingham, secretary.

The firm will open tomorrow a used car branch at 6038 Delmar boulevard, with Vernon Wellman as manager.

Breadon, who is known throughout the country as head of the St. Louis Cardinals, also has a reputation among automobile men generally as an authority on the selling and servicing of quality cars.

He recently completed his thirty-first year as an automobile distributer and dealer in St. Louis, having entered the business almost simultaneously with the introduction by Henry Ford of the Model T.

Automobile dealers then were few and far between, but Breadon made up his mind to enter the business when visiting Detroit in 1903. Purchasing two of the first cars that came out of the Ford factory, he had them shipped to St. Louis and opened a temporary sales room at Boyle and Olive streets—somewhat timidly, he says, because the auto business at that time was not considered a very good investment.

However, within a short time the cars were sold and Breadon took larger quarters, this time on Walton avenue, where he remained six months before moving to Walton and Washington avenues. After 10 years, the increase in his business forced him again to look for a larger building, and he constructed the present sales and service plant of the Western Automobile Co., where he has been located for 20 years.

During this time, Breadon has represented leading companies in the industry—Buick, Reo, Columbia, Winton, Northern and Pierce Arrow. Soon after he started in business, he was appointed a Pierce Arrow dealer and for years has represented that organization in St. Louis. For Buick and Reo, he was the first local dealer.

He now represents only the Ford company, although he continues to service Pierce-Arrow cars.

"Life Guard" Tube Said to Take Danger Out of Tire "Blowout"

"One of the most important contributions to the safety of motoring in a decade," says C. M. Van Epps, manager of Goodyear Service, "is the opinion of police and fire department officials and heads of safety organizations who have witnessed demonstrations of the new 'Life Guard' tube for auto tires developed by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"The tube eliminates danger of a serious accident when a tire blowout occurs on an automobile traveling at high speed. It was developed after several years of research by Goodyear engineers.

"Of radically different construction than anything previously attempted, the development consists of a 'double tube,' one inside the other, joined together at the base, with a single small vent hole connecting the two air chambers.

"The outside tube is similar in function and appearance to a regular tube, and fits against the inside of the casing. The inside tube, built of two plies of fabric, floats free without chafing. Inflation is in the usual manner, the vent hole permitting air to pass from the inner chamber to the outer chamber, so that in ordinary service the inner carcass is under no strain, but simply floats free inside the tube.

"When a blowout occurs, the air escapes from the outer chamber instantly, but can escape from the inner chamber only through the single small vent hole. Thus only part of the air is lost in the blowout, and the tire drops down to ride on the inner fabric carcass, which loses its air very slowly. This permits car to continue under perfect control, giving the driver ample time to pull off the road without endangering himself, his car or the lives of other motorists. In effect, the new tube converts a sudden blowout into a slow leak.

"It is a fact that a blowout at 60 miles per hour is twice as dangerous as at 40 miles per hour, and at 80 miles per hour it is four times as dangerous. With cars being placed on the market having an extremely high top speed the need for a tube providing safety in event of a blowout is vital."

Pontiac Salesmen Here Made Members Of '1000 Point Club'

Salesmen for Pontiac dealers have been awaiting the outcome of business for 1934 so they might determine their standings with the dealers and as compared with other salesmen. This standing is determined on the basis of points earned by the sale of new Pontiac cars and used cars.

The Pontiac Motor Co. maintains this record, which lists all salesmen eligible for membership in the "1000 Point Club." At the end of the year, every producer who has accumulated enough points from these sales to have earned 1000 points is declared a member of the "1000 Point Club." He is awarded a citation and an emblem indicative of his accomplishment. In the event he makes the same record a second year, the emblem which he has received has a diamond setting placed in it, indicating that he is a two-year "1000 Point Club" man, which is regarded as quite a distinction.

In the St. Louis Metropolitan District four Pontiac salesmen qualified for this distinction for 1934. They are George F. Nicter, Willcockson Motors; Paul D. Reintges, Granite City Motor Co.; Irvin F. Weber, Travis Service Co., and C. A. White, White Bros. Auto Co.

Nicter and Weber are second-year members.

Wedge Motor Service Appointed Pontiac Dealer at Normandy

W. P. Winslow, zone manager for the Pontiac Motor Co., has appointed the Wedge Motor Service, Normandy, an authorized Pontiac dealer.

The Wedge Motor Service is at 7308 Natural Bridge road, occupying a one-story brick building of modern construction. The firm is composed of three members, M. P. Kleinkort, W. R. Schreckengast and Al Tegethoff. They have operated at this location for the past four years, specializing mostly on service and repair work, and will serve Ferguson, Pine Lawn and the adjoining neighborhood.

Kleinkort, president of the firm, will have charge of the sales department and Schreckengast will be in charge of service.

Goodrich-Silvertown Plans Features for 10 Days, Starting Mar. 14

Goodrich-Silvertown, Inc., is celebrating the introduction of budget pay plan for motorists with special features in the period from next Thursday, March 14, to March 24. The budget pay plan, according to C. E. Newman, the Goodrich-Silvertown, Inc., manager in St. Louis, has met with unusual acceptance, because of its flexibility.

E. F. Tomlinson has been made manager of the farm service tire division of the B. F. Goodrich Co. sales department.

Tomlinson joined the Goodrich Co. in 1927, and for the past seven years has been in the truck and bus tire department.

Tomlinson will supervise the sale of Goodrich tires for use on farm tractors and auxiliary farm equipment.

"Master Merchandiser" Award to 10 Goodrich Salesmen in This Area

A. J. Appuhn, P. J. Craden, T. H. Damme, J. G. Gleiber, L. J. Grantham, M. B. Johnson, R. S. Lamb, C. S. Mudd, R. W. Nichol Jr. and A. Thompson, tire salesmen for the B. F. Goodrich Co. in the St. Louis district, have been presented with the "master merchandiser" award for 1934, it is announced by L. L. Sowers, St. Louis district manager.

This award, given by the central offices of Goodrich in Akron, O., is for outstanding sales work during the year, and is hotly competed for by members of the company's nation-wide sales organization.

The St. Louis district as a whole also has been presented the award because of its record last year.

DODGE ECONOMY BRINGS ORDER FROM SOUTH POLE

Byrd Expedition Operator Intercepts Broadcast . . . Sends World's Longest-Distance Order 9,000 Miles To Detroit

EVERYWHERE motorists are switching to the economy of the big, powerful, New-Value Dodge. But imagine the surprise when this radio message, from far-off Little America, reached the Dodge factory, from Radio Operator Clay Bailey, aboard Admiral Byrd's flagship. Mr. Bailey wirelessed:

"Picked up radio description last night of new Dodge that does twenty and more miles per gallon of gas. You can place my order now. Please have Coupe awaiting me Boston on our return to States. You can take in and sell my old Dodge now. It was a darned good car. After months of roughing it in this sea and ice that new 'Airglide Ride' will certainly feel swell. Dodge has always been the finest riding and driving and most economical car I have ever driven—and I've handled 'em all." (Signed) Clay Bailey, Radioman U. S. N.

Right back flashed the Dodge answer to the returning explorer: "Will have new Dodge awaiting you."

Throughout big America, too, the sales response to this new Dodge is the most sensational in history. Never before has any car, so low-priced, given such clear-cut supremacy in dollar-for-dollar value. And remember, with all its 95 basic advancements, the big, New-Value Dodge delivers for just a few dollars more than lowest-priced cars.

Shell Movie, Made in City and County, Shown to Dealers

Best Merchandising and Service Methods Illustrated for Station Operators.

The sales distributing department of the St. Louis district of the Shell Petroleum Corporation concluded a series of dealer meetings throughout Illinois, Missouri and Iowa at a session in the Elks' Club ballroom, in St. Louis Monday night.

Approximately 300 St. Louis dealers and their employes attended the meeting to see the talking movie, "Stephen Steps Out." This picture was produced by the Shell Petroleum Corporation in St. Louis and St. Louis County. All of the characters except two or three, are professional actors from Chicago. Scenes showing service station operation were taken on Olive Street road, Hanley and Delmar and at the R. F. Wendell & Son Shell service station on Big Bend road in Webster Groves. An automobile racing scene was taken at the old Creve Coeur race track in St. Louis County.

The picture was produced to give Shell dealers a visual study of proper merchandising and service methods for greater efficiency in service station operation.

Shell Petroleum Corporation executives in attendance were P. C. Wilson, central division manager; D. H. Sheperd, assistant division manager in charge of sales; A. S. Pentland, central division field representative; J. D. Thomas, central division sales promotion-advertising manager; N. M. Bassett, St. Louis district manager, all of St. Louis and E. Lewis, Columbia (Mo.) district manager.

N. M. Bassett acted as chairman of the meeting. P. C. Wilson declared that 1935 was definitely a year for progress. D. H. Sheperd gave a short talk on the Shell Petroleum Corporation's merchandising assistance program for Shell dealers.

J. D. Thomas, sales promotion-advertising manager, reviewed scenes shown in the movie and Shell's routine "seven position service, a demonstration of which appeared in the second episode. He urged the dealers and their employes to follow the suggestions offered by the Shell salesman on the screen and to adhere to those certain fundamentals of service station operation.

Division Manager Wilson stressed the advantages offered by Shell's merchandising assistance plan and encouraged dealers to take advantage of it.

The meetings schedule began the second week in December and the Monday night meeting was the twenty-eighth and final one for the central division dealers of the Shell Petroleum Corporation. The talking movie, "Stephen Steps Out," has been shown to more than 3000 Shell dealers and their employes at these meetings in the central division territory.

At Monday night's meeting, R. F. (Bob) Wendell, Shell dealer at Webster Groves, was introduced. Wendell, a very successful Shell dealer, had a part in the picture, "Stephen Steps Out."

Barnsdall Products Distributer Named For St. Louis District

St. Louis Gasoline and Fuel Co. Takes on Exclusive Contract.

The St. Louis Gasoline and Fuel Co., 4159 North Union boulevard, has taken over the exclusive distribution of Barnsdall products in St. Louis, St. Louis County and St. Clair County, Illinois. This affiliation will bring together St. Louis' oldest independent jobber and the largest independent refiner, incidentally, the world's first refiner.

The Barnsdall Oil Co.'s products include Barnsdall gasoline, a 70 octane ethyl-treated gasoline; Barnsdall super gas ethyl, Barnsdall motor fuel, Barnsdall motor oil, Mona motor oil, Big Heart motor oil and a complete line of Quaker State products.

Representatives of the Barnsdall Oil Co. in effecting the deal was George D. Locke, vice-president, and Joseph Adams, vice-president in charge of sales.

The St. Louis Gasoline and Fuel Co. also will distribute the products of the Barnsdall Products Co., including Barnsdall tires, tubes, batteries, spark plugs, windshield wiper blades, Westinghouse lamp bulbs, Barnsdall Shaler vulcanizing outfits and other automobile accessories.

Officers of the St. Louis Gasoline & Fuel Co. are Walter A. Lone, president; George W. Way Jr., vice-president; William G. Raith Jr., second vice-president; John T. Lone, treasurer, and Ralph E. Grassmuck, secretary.

The St. Louis Gasoline and Fuel Co.'s 27 independent dealers are located at strategic points in St. Louis, St. Louis County and East St. Louis, Ill., and are served by a fleet of trucks.

PIERCE-ARROW PRESIDENT HERE

ARTHUR J. CHANTER.

PRESIDENT of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., Buffalo, N. Y., who was in St. Louis Friday.

Head of Pierce-Arrow Factory Visits St. Louis

Arthur J. Chanter Reports 50 Per Cent Sales Gain for First Two Months.

Arthur J. Chanter, president of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., Buffalo, N. Y., paid a special visit Thursday to the new Pierce-Arrow-St. Louis Co., Inc., distributer in St. Louis of Pierce-Arrow cars. The distribuing firm is headed by George Gruet, president. It is located at 4733 McPherson avenue.

Chanter, who is touring the Southwestern section, was accompanied by T. J. O'Rourke, general sales manager. They arrived from Chicago Thursday afternoon. After leaving St. Louis, they will stop at Kansas City and from there go Southwest.

Chanter said that Pierce-Arrow sales in January and February were 50 per cent larger than in the same period of 1934. Sales in 1934 were slightly better than in 1933. Reports that he recently received from the Eastern section of the United States, Chanter said, indicate that buyers are purchasing higher-priced cars as well as other articles of merchandise that were considered luxuries two or three years ago.

Silent Traffic Planned.

A proposal to give Stockholm noiseless traffic by banning automobile horns will be offered at the next session of the Swedish Parliament. "Racing" of motors while the car is standing still also would be forbidden.

Ford Reports Getting 56 Per Cent of Sales Gain by Auto Industry

Figures on gains in automotive sales in 1934 show the Ford Motor Co. far ahead in actual unit sales gain during the year over registrations in 1933, a statement by the Ford Co. says.

"Of the entire indsutry's gain of 552,780 car and truck sales in 1934 over the previous year, Ford V-8 passenger and commercial cars accounted for approximately 56 per cent, or 285,268 units, the figures showed," the statement says.

"Ford passenger car sales in 1934 showed an increase of 70.5 per cent over Ford registrations in the previous year, while Ford V-8 truck sales gained 105.5 per cent in 1934—the greatest truck gain in the entire industry for the year. A total of 530,528 Ford V-8 passenger cars were registered in 1934, as compared with 311,113 units in 1933. The average gain for Ford, in both passenger and commercial cars, was 76.4 per cent.

"Ford showed a total registration of passenger cars and trucks in 1934 of 658,778 units in the United States alone. This figure does not include Canadian or foreign sales."

Driving Three Years Without Accident Wins 19 Salesmen Medals

Nineteen salesmen of the Wonder Break Bakery here have been awarded gold safety medals for having driven three years as of Jan. 1, 1935, without an accident. In that period each man drove approximately 56,000 miles.

Silver medals are being presented to salesmen who have made two-year no accident records and bronze medals to men who have one year records.

The records of the men are cited as proof that traffic accidents can be prevented when operators of vehicles are taught to think and constantly keep in mind their responsibility and obligation to the public.

The salesmen who received the gold safety medals are: V. V. Moore, H. Kelsey, J. Howard, G. Schiele, J. Hoffschwelle, A. Ludwig, O. Bauer, R. Stuckmeyer, A. Kinker, C. Horstman, L. Oeschner, A. Trommler, H. McMillan, J. Zink, H. Huelskamp, G. Koebbe, F. Koesterer, F. Zeiss, and J. Allen.

Those receiving silver awards are A. Massey, F. Olds, J. Dino and C. Miller.

H. Naumann received a bronze award.

The salesmen use Ford and Dodge trucks.

BUICK EXECUTIVE AT MEETING HERE

THOMAS H. CORPE.

ADVERTISING manager of the Buick Motor Co., who spoke at a meeting of Buick dealers here Friday.

Advertising Manager For Buick Addresses Dealers in St. Louis

Buick dealers in the St. Louis area heard Thomas H. Corpe, director of advertising and sales promotion of the Buick Motor Co., explain details of the factory program for the spring months, at a meeting here Friday.

Corpe spoke from the standpoint of advertising and sales promotion, stressing a number of new projects in the latter connection which now are being inaugurated.

He is on a business trip through the Central and Eastern sections of the country, and will conduct similar meetings at Chicago, Cincinnati and Washington.

C. F. Alexander, zone manager, conducted the meeting at which Corpe spoke.

Airplanes Survey for Roads.

New Packard '120' Car Performs Smoothly in Tests on Rough Going

Exclusive Independent Front Suspension System Gives Easy, Comfortable Ride.

One of the new Packard "120" sedans, first of the lower-priced Packard models to reach St. Louis, was taken on a test drive Tuesday morning by newspaper men and George M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co., the local Packard distributer.

The car, which takes its name from its 120-inch wheelbase, has a straight eight engine of 3¼-inch bore and 3⅞-inch stroke, that develops 110 horsepower. As a result, despite the solidity of the car's construction, it proved exceptionally swift and smooth in acceleration at traffic and highway speeds.

It was especially easily driven and handled, the steering being remarkably light, while its turning radius is only 19½ feet. The servo sealed hydraulic brakes with 12-inch centrifuse drums, proved powerful, smooth in action and equalized at all times. The engine operated noiselessly, and the transmission was silent in all forward speeds and in reverse.

Riding in the rear seat, as well as in the front compartment, was remarkably comfortable, due to the exclusive Packard independent front springing, carefully calculated rear spring action, hydraulic double acting shock absorbers and seven-inch low pressure tires.

The front spring suspension used on the Packard "120" is called "safe-T-flex." It consists of soft coil springs and a torque arm construction that holds the wheels in proper position as to the road surface at all times, provides positive wheel alignment and prevent "gallop" or sidesway. By use of live rubber, the lubrication points for the front springing are reduced to two.

The riding qualities of the car were proved on several very rough cobbled streets and on an alley down which no driver would willingly take an auto. In this alley, deeply rutted and paved with large stones, which had settled into all kinds of bumps, ridges and hollows, Berry drove the Packard while the rear seat passengers rode comfortably and relaxed, at no time being tossed or jolted around.

The car is capable of speed of at least 90 miles an hour and of high sustained highway speed for long distance driving.

It is built complete in the new plant erected and equipped by the Packard Motor Co. especially for the purpose. Its styling, characteristically Packard, yet individual, the careful workmanship evidenced in its every part from engine to springing and body construction and upholstering, are distinctly of the quality type.

Models of this new Packard "120" are now being displayed by the Berry Motor Co. and production in the Detroit plant is well under way, so that deliveries will begin this week. Berry said that his firm had obtained 75 bona fide orders for the new "120" before a single model of the line was shown here.

J. W. Byrne Heads Department for A. A. Guenther Co.

J. W. Byrne has been appointed in charge of the belting and mechanical rubber goods department, of the Arthur A. Guenther Co., Fisk tire distributer, and of tires that the firm took on recently in addition to the Fisk line.

The Guenther Co. has seven stores in St. Louis, its headquarters being at 2747 Olive street.

CHEVROLET

Truck owners know economy

THAT'S WHY THEY BUY CHEVROLET TRUCKS

MEN who study haulage costs know that Chevrolet trucks are as outstanding in economy and durability as they are in price. Chevrolet trucks handle tough hauling jobs day after day at small operating cost, because they are built to Chevrolet's own high standards of quality in every part. The powerful six-cylinder valve-in-head engines are truck motors, especially designed to give sustained pulling power and to keep on working under the hard punishment of road and load. Features that assure stamina and long life are evident in every detail of the precision-engineered chassis. Chevrolet trucks offer maximum capacity, economy and quality—because Chevrolet is the world's largest builder of trucks.

COURT ORDER FREEING PAROLED MAN IS VOIDED

Authority Exceeded in Extradition Proceedings, Says Missouri Supreme Tribunal.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 9.—A ruling of St. Louis Circuit Court which freed Arthur Rosenberg, alias Arthur Morris, alleged Illinois parole violator, and prevented his extradition by Illinois authorities from St. Louis to the Joliet prison, was set aside today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc.

The Supreme Court held the lower court had no authority, in a habeas corpus proceeding, to determine the guilt or innocence of a person held in custody under a valid extradition warrant.

Rosenberg was sent to the Joliet prison from Chicago in December, 1928, on a one-year to life sentence, for armed robbery, and was paroled on Dec. 15, 1932. The parole authorized him to go to St. Louis. He was arrested by St. Louis police in October, 1933, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Illinois authorities then revoked his parole, for violation of its terms, and presented a requisition to Gov. Park for an extradition warrant, which was issued.

His attorney applied to St. Louis Circuit Court for a writ of habeas corpus, which was issued by Judge Hoffmeister. The latter sustained Rosenberg's contention he had not violated his parole, and for that reason was not a fugitive from justice and subject to extradition. The Judge ordered the discharge of Rosenberg.

Supreme Judge Ernest S. Gantt, who wrote the opinion, ordered the proceedings and judgment of the Circuit Court set aside.

"Illinois contends that the courts of an asylum state are without jurisdiction on habeas corpus to determine the question of the guilt or innocence of the person in the custody of the agent of the demanding state," Judge Gantt said. "The contention must be sustained. It has been so ruled by all the authorities." All of the other judges of court en banc concurred.

Rosenberg was arrested Oct. 31, 1933, while in an automobile with two other men in the 4300 block of Washington boulevard. Police reported one of the other men threw a loaded revolver from the car as they approached. Rosenberg was rearrested Nov. 23, 1933, in the 5400 block of St. Louis avenue at the request of Parole Officer M. J. Vogel of Joliet penitentiary.

Rest Camp Mothers' Meeting.

Mothers of children attending the Night and Day Rest Camp, maintained by the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis at 9500 South Broadway, will meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the camp to discuss methods of child care. Dr. Stanley Harrison, medical adviser of the society and camp physician, will speak on "Cultivating the Child's Appetite."

SCOUT TROUP FINDS SKELETONS OF INDIANS

26 Boys Excavate Burial Mound Near Dupo; Bones Six Feet Under Surface.

Skeltons of two Indians, one of a man, the other that of a young boy were found last Saturday under a mound on a farm near Dupo by scouts of Troop 243, St. Stephen's House, 603 Rutger street. Twenty-six boys, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Edward P. Weindel, made the hike on which the mound was excavated.

The skeletons were buried six feet deep, according to the scouts. They observed that the man was about six feet tall, and that his burial had been performed with careful rites, possibly with religious or tribal significance. Over the head was a pile of stones on which a fire was kindled. Clam shells, turned into lime by the heat, had been added to the fire.

Ninety-nine troops have each selected a particular merit badge subject which will be demonstrated by the troop at the Merit Badge Show to be held Nov. 1-2, 1935, it was announced last night by Col. H. D. McBride, Scout Commissioner for the St. Louis Council.

Among the subjects to be demonstrated and the troop assigned are the following: Angling, Troop 63, Oak Hill Presbyterian Church; Bee Keeping, Troop 13, St. John's M. E. Church; Beef Production, Troop 219, St. Marcus Evangelical Church; Reptile Study, Troop 128, Church of the Ascension; Weather, Troop 79, Third Baptist Church.

In addition, special assignments have been made for demonstration of tests for the First Class Scout badge and of other projects for which there are no proficiency tests in scouting, such as modelcraft, toycraft, hobbies and rope work.

M. D. Shippey, camping director, announced yesterday that 517 Scouts have registered for two-week periods at next summer's camp. The number is nearly twice that of a year ago.

Last date for enrollment in the Campers' Savings Club has been extended to March 18, Shippey said.

The first class in the advanced course for mothers of cubs will be held Thursday at 9:30 a. m. in Stix, Baer & Fuller auditorium. The course, designed for those who have completed the elementary training, will afford opportunity for discussion of the home activities of the cub.

Troop 98, St. Roch's Catholic Church, held its seventh annual father and son banquet March 2, with every registered scout in the troop in attendance with his father. Herman Schwarz of the City Court of Honor, presented Eagle badges to Allen Schueneman and James Murphy.

Troop 7, Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, will observe Parents' Night Friday with a program in the meeting rooms at the church. The Standard Troop Award, won by the troop for the fifth consecutive year, will be presented by an officer from Scout Headquarters.

Troop 31, Grace M. E. Church, awarded 75 merit badges, six Star badges, two life insignia and a Bronze Palm for the Eagle Scout badge at a Court of Honor Wednesday evening. A special exhibit, displaying the hobbies of each boy, was arranged.

Troop 156, Brith Sholem Men's Club, is preparing a comprehensive exhibit on the Evolution of Transportation for the Merit Badge Show in November. Metal models of forms of transportation used on land, water, or in the air, will be made.

H. L. Rush, west district executive, will install a new troop tonight at Salvation Army Corps No. 6, Wellston. Louis Grugette will be scoutmaster of the new troop, which will be known as Troop 169. Adjutant O. W. Agre is chairman of the troop committee.

Troop 13, St. John's M. E. Church, made on over-night hike to Creve Coeur Lake last weekend.

Troop 90, Temple Shaare Emeth, held a court of honor Thursday evening at which Arno D. Krause, commissioner of the west district, presented the troop the charter for its fifteenth year. Scouts in the troop were awarded 46 merit badges.

Troop 62, Church of the Holy Communion, held a Father and Son Banquet at the church Tuesday night. F. C. Fischer spoke on "The Flying Carpet of Education."

REAL ESTATE ASSESSED AT $10,000,000 MORE

Increase Is Expected to Add $174,000 to Tax Levy at 1934 Rate.

Assessment of real estate in the city for 1935 taxes will be about $10,000,000 higher than last year, Assessor Coal estimated yesterday. The increase, at last year's tax rates, would add $274,000 to the tax levy, including $127,000 for municipal purposes and $85,000 for the schools.

Coale said the increase in the assessment would be due largely to new building constructio nand alterations in the year elapsing between the two valuations. Building permits for that period were for about $10,000,000. The assessment for 1935 taxes was made as of last June 1.

The assessment on real estate for 1934 taxes was $902,187,100 and on personal property $75,159,800. Coale would not estimate the valuation of personal property for this year.

Books of the Assessor, showing the real estate valuations for 1935, will be open for inspection at his office in City Hall March 18, when the city Board of Equalization will open its annual four-week session to hear appeals from the Assessor's findings.

An effort was made to shape the new assessment on scientific lines, under a new system. The Assessor took a complete record of the size and characetr of all buildings. While this was expected to result in increases or decreases of valuation for individual structures, Coale did not think it would affect the total materially. He asserted that no drastice increases were made.

Closing Time for Foreign Mail.

Parcel post for Germany and Great Britain, and full European mails will close at 9 p. m. tomorrow at the Main Postoffice, Eighteenth and Walnut streets.

RED CROSS ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR LIFE SAVING CAMPAIGN

FASHION SQUARE PRESENTS THE . . .

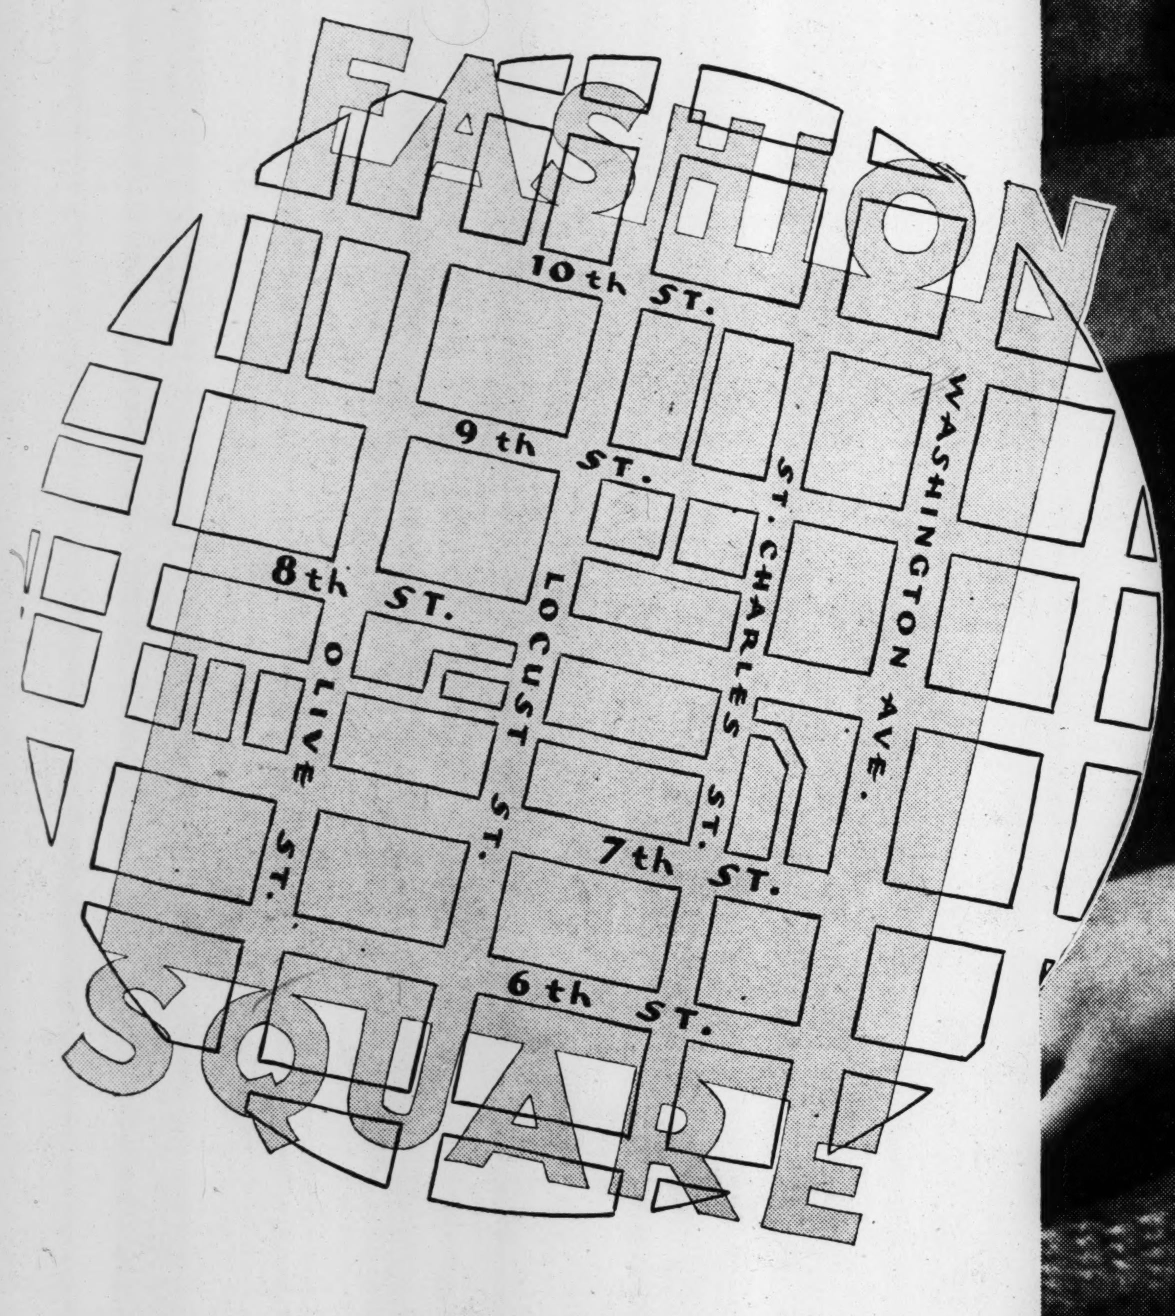
ALL THIS WEEK, in the Fashion Square shops of the Associated Retailers, style holds the stage. Everywhere, everything is new. Winter is gone . . . the March of Fashion is on! Inside these pages, your favorite Fashion Square shops send you their invitation to see what 1935 has done for you, and hint at the exciting things they have culled from the salons of all important American designers.



BE IN FASHION SQUARE MONDAY NIGHT, at 7 o'clock, when the windows of all Fashion Square shops will be unveiled on the most complete and exciting array of new fashions St. Louis has ever known. From Sixth Street to Tenth, from Olive Street to Washington Avenue, the shops of the Associated Retailers establish this, once and for all, as the style center of St. Louis.

Style Showing For Spring in Retail Stores

Unified Fashion Opening for Women, New Event in St. Louis, to Be Held Tomorrow.

St. Louis retailers are planning to make tomorrow a gala day in the history of St. Louis fashion merchandising by launching a unified spring style opening.

When the doors of department stores and women's specialty shops open at 9 a. m. tomorrow morning visitors will view an array of carefully selected spring merchandise which has not been equaled in the city for many seasons.

The decision of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis to sponsor a spring style opening simultaneously in their member stores is regarded as a significant move. Not only have the merchants decided that times are better but that St. Louis women deserve to see the finest creations of leading designers in their most attractive surroundings.

Men's Clothes Not Included.

No attempt is being made to feature men's or children's apparel at this time, the event being directed solely for the approval of feminine customers. However, the man who pays the bills as well as juvenile fashion devotees are expected to be interested in seeing how mother reacts to the tempting costumes that are placed on exhibition. Even though they do not venture into the crowded aisles, they will find it difficult to deafen their ears to the insistent after-dinner cry of "Let's go window shopping."

Easter comes too late this year to be regarded as it often does as the first signal to don new attire. Spring officially starts on March 21, so the retailers will regard that date as the authentic time for women to blossom out in new raiment, their openings being set more than a week in advance in order to give them opportunity for careful and leisurely selection. By Easter Sunday, which is April 21, many will be thinking about summer clothes rather than spring ones.

Special Trips by Buyers.

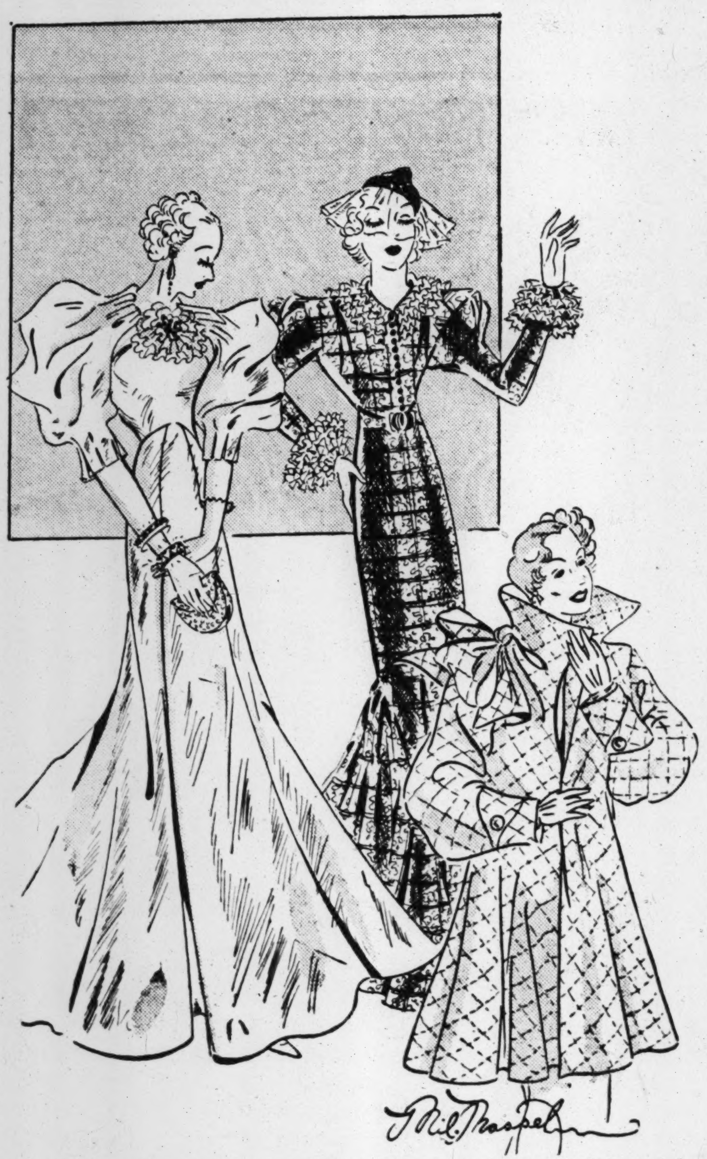
In preparation for tomorrow's opening, store buyers have made special trips to leading style markets. Their collections will include importations and outstanding modes created by foremost American designers.

In assembling merchandise for display in the stores and in the windows the retailers have devoted much thought to emphasis upon the complete costume theme. A coat or suit, for example, will not be exhibited as a garment attractive in itself but in relation to properly chosen accessories. Retailers are endeavoring to convince their patrons that they are more than mere distributers of merchandise and are concerned about the appearance and satisfaction of their clientele.

Navy Hosiery Is Advocated.

What shade of hosiery shall be worn for spring? That depends, as always, upon the choice of a color scheme. But this spring, fashion authorities declare that the wearers of the blue in apparel may be the wearers of blue hosiery, too. A subdued tone created especially for navy costumes is conspicuous on the hosiery counters. Shades of beige that vary from the light suntan tone to neutral brown are featured in greatest numbers. A dusky gray tone also is of interest.

For "Dress-Up" Occasions



Taffeta is used both for the formal evening gown at left and for the quilted swagger wrap. The dinner frock illustrates the manner in which the shirtwaist mode is adapted for after-dark occasions.

White Collar Parade Has Competition

No longer can we speak in terms of white accents for spring costumes because a dash of pink has been added to the neckline. The white collar brigade is meeting with some real competition.

Since one successful accessory often is followed by another, there are pink cuffs, vestees, blouses, hats and various pieces of costume jewelry to rival the chaste appearance of the one-time favorite. Pale blue and tulip yellow also have appeared in the accessory field but their entry did not create the furor of the delicate pink hues.

A glimpse of the neckwear counters in the St. Louis stores is convincing proof that pink is sharing equal attention with white in the decoration of spring costumes. Frilly types of collars, cuffs and vestees predominate among the most recent arrivals but there are tailored linen and pique sets of distinction.

The introduction of the vestee or gilet is the most recent development. Emphasis is placed upon the adornment which may be worn either on the outside of a dress front or with the edges tucked underneath. Organdie and mousseline are the most fashionable of the sheer fabrics and usually are featured in connection with Valenciennes lace and insertion. An interesting type has a gathered frill around the neck which extends down the front in jabot formation. Another attractive style brings back the cascading jabot and has a little turnover collar fastening at the back.

Short Skirt Suggests Flapper Mode Revival

THE introduction of the short, full skirt in some Paris collections has set the fashion world to wondering whether the flapper is returning. Several designers showed daytime skirts that were an inch or two shorter than those of the previous season and most of them indorsed skirt fullness. Pleats and gathers shared attention.

Fluctuating skirt lengths also were a sensation of the evening modes. Ankles appeared again and again. The skirt which was sufficiently short to show footwear at the front frequently was lengthened to touch the floor at the back and sometimes to form a train.

Evening Attire May Be Subtle Or Very Bold

Filmy Fabrics Share Attention With Crisp and Daring Taffetas.

The feminine seeker of evening chic may take either one of two fashion paths this spring and reach the same goal of popularity. One of these is quite subtle and veiled in filmy fabrics. The other is crisp, bold and determined, although some of its daring is hidden behind deep folds and puffings.

Materials which have become recognized as decidedly dainty are concerned with the subtle direction of formal stylings. Chiffon is of revived importance and is rivaled only by lace. Net, tulle, mousseline and organdie also appear to offer their ethereal qualifications in guiding the St. Louis woman to smartness.

In competition to these "clinging vine" exponents of formal costuming, there are those vivacious silks such as taffeta and moire which are creating much commotion with their swishing and their rustling. Designers seem to be entranced with the charm which they offer and are undecided whether to show them as romantically picturesque or as emphatically dashing. The result of this diversion of designing thought is apparent in the scope of collections, some quaint and others very modern.

Skirts and Capes.

Skirts which billow about the feet and capes or intricately draped jackets which gracefully frame the shoulders are characteristics of the spring formality, whether it be subtle or daring. The skirt fullness may start at the waistline and increase as it nears the hemline, or it may begin abruptly at the knees and break into yards of flouncing. Likewise, the capes and puffs that adorn bodices may fall off of the shoulders into quite low decolletages or they may come up modestly to high necklines.

Less formal, but very significant this season are those shirtwaist frocks that solve the problem of the woman who doesn't want to appear overdressed in hotel night clubs or at home bridge and cocktail parties. Sleeves are likely to be long, such as those of the dress sketched, and they may be adorned with contrasting frills. Ruffles at the neckline also are an asset because they relieve the severity of styling. Sheer fabrics especially are popular for this informal evening dress.

Evening Gown Colors.

The color chart for evening follows the trend of fabrics and designs in being either subtle or daring. Delicate tints such as aqua or china blue are important. Mauve and pink have been introduced. In contrast to these are the white and the black costumes, the dullness of the latter sometimes relieved by clips or flowers. Diagonally striped taffetas in bright candy shades, coin dotted sheers, deep red lace and a bright navy blue are the more daring newcomers.

When it comes to evening wraps, you can concentrate on tafefta and be assured you are fashion-wise. The question of length must be decided because there are short bellhop jackets, knee length swaggers and full length wraps as well as some interesting capes. To quilt or not to quilt is another problem.

Handbag Perfume Novelties.

Tiny perfume flasks to carry in a pocketbook have been on the market for some time, but there's a new one that is proving a sensation. It resembles a lipstick and is no bigger than the neatest model. A quantity of a popular fragrance is encased inside. When the top is unscrewed and the end tapped gently, fragrant drops appear. Incidentally, refills may be obtained just as they are for powder cases.

Costume Theme Prevails In Youthfully Styled Modes for Spring Wear

Dashing Silhouettes, Blossom Tints, Frills and Furbelows Insure Gay Season in World of Fashion.

EVERY spring is the season to be gay but this spring is the season to be gayer. How can one be otherwise when youthful, happy fashions characterize the mode?

Silhouettes have a dashing carefree manner. Colors imitate the tint of early blossoms bursting into bloom. Frills and furbelows billow about throats and wrists. Crisp taffetas swish with stacatto precision. Capes swing along the boulevards. Hats adopt an inquisitive air with brims that poke far forward. Shoes cut in one-piece fit like gloves and assure the wearer an elastic step.

If any woman is in doubt as to the choice of her new spring wardrobe, one casual survey of vast collections in the St. Louis stores should convince her that youthfully flattering fashions prevail. She will find that the season pays homage to her, whether she be tall and willowy, short and cherubic or of the pompous, dignified type.

Costume Theme Leads.

The costume theme predominates in all classes of merchandise, whether it comes from the cut-price basement or from the most exclusive French salon. And everyone who has studied clothes knows that an ensemble purchased at one swoop instead of piece-meal is the short cut to smartness and satisfaction.

Whether a woman decides to stake her clothes allowance on a suit or on a coat and frock combination, she will discover that selections are varied and intended to assure her a certain individuality in her ensemble. In either choice, she will find that emphasis is upon the assembled wardrobe, rather than upon any one part, the result assuring her an attractive costuming.

Since suits are so important this season, perhaps they should be considered first in a survey of the fashion situation. The woman who knows that she is the tailored type can start the spring season in a three-piece ensemble consisting of short jacket, separate skirt and either topcoat or enveloping cape. One with tailored topcoat is sketched. Should she prefer to have all three garments of the same material and color, then she will not overlook the importance of adding a contrasting skirt. A utility suit of this type will serve her for many hours of the day and the addition of an extra skirt not only adds practicability but chic.

Two-Piece Suits.

Among two-piece suits, styles range from the model with short, fitted jacket to that with a very boxy knee-length coat. A classic tailleur that is reminiscent of olden suit days has a coat which has rounded fronts, very wide lapels and straight tailored sleeves. The popular fabric is a soft finished twill. Braid binding is a quaint and favorite trimming. One of these suits is sketched third from the left in the group of typical spring daytime fashions.

When a straight hip length jacket is featured, this garment usually is dressed up with a novelty scarf, wide taffeta lapels or an entire tucked or quilted surface. Fur-trimmed suit models are variously styled, some with the boxy coat and others with more fitted lines. Dyed fox is the aristocrat but mole and galyak are appropriate for many of the distinctive dressmaker costumes. A cape frequently replaces the jacket or is added as a detachable feature.

Fur Capes Popular.

Mention of capes brings us to a high style of the spring time, the fur cape. More and more of these striking little wraps are appearing in St. Louis stores. The model sketched at extreme right is typical of the majority, both as to length and shape. A longer cape that has graduated pleats and a circular downward sweep at the back is heralded as an important fashion, while the military cape is a late comer in exclusive circles. Flat furs predominate but fox and marten are too elegant to be overlooked.

Since separate fur pieces are in style, it is not surprising to find many coats devoid of fur trimming Some of them even do without collars by way of giving a cape or stole a greater opportunity. The full length coat of novelty woolen is likely to have dolman sleeves such as the one sketched. Its fitted waistline is another sign of the times. Swagger models created of taffeta velveteen, moire or patterned woolens are expected to be of more significance as the season advances.

Redingote Costumes.

A St. Louis spring without the redingote mode would be a blow to many women. This costume has so many advantages in a climate where summer weather appears as early as May that a very light weight coat that can be worn with several frocks is an asset to the wardrobe. In fact, the redingote idea is so popular here that many coat dresses adopt its styling.

The typical redingote costume consists of printed dress and full length coat of light weight wool that usually is unlined. The one sketched varies slightly from the simple design of former years by introducing full length revers. The skirt section has a slight flare and when the belt is fastened tightly, slender waistline and hemline fullness are accentuated. The dotted pattern of the printed frock is significant as is the front fullness of the skirt.

Daytime Dress Styles.

Among daytime dress styles, the model which has its own jacket is far ahead of all the others in popularity. This is another evidence of the insistence of Dame Fashion in having her subjects costumed harmoniously. So many different versions of the jacket frock appear that it is impossible to say that anyone is typical. St. Louis is regarded as favoring printed fabrics so the frock chosen for illustration and shown at extreme left has a small printed design. The skirt with greater fullness and the jacket with fitted waistline are indicative of the trend. Very wide lapels are noteworthy on the jacket as are the bell shaped sleeves. Pique touches at the neckline also are consistent, and to be up-to-the-minute in style a woman would wear a dashing wide-brimmed sailor to complete her costume.

The jacket frock of sheer fabric is impressive and due for an enthusiastic reception. Handkerchief linen frills that show much handiwork may be substituted for pique. The jacket also may be quite short and boxy, in fact being little more than a bolero. A certain amount of fullness will be essential to the chic of the skirt whether it be introduced by means of gores, shirring or pelating.

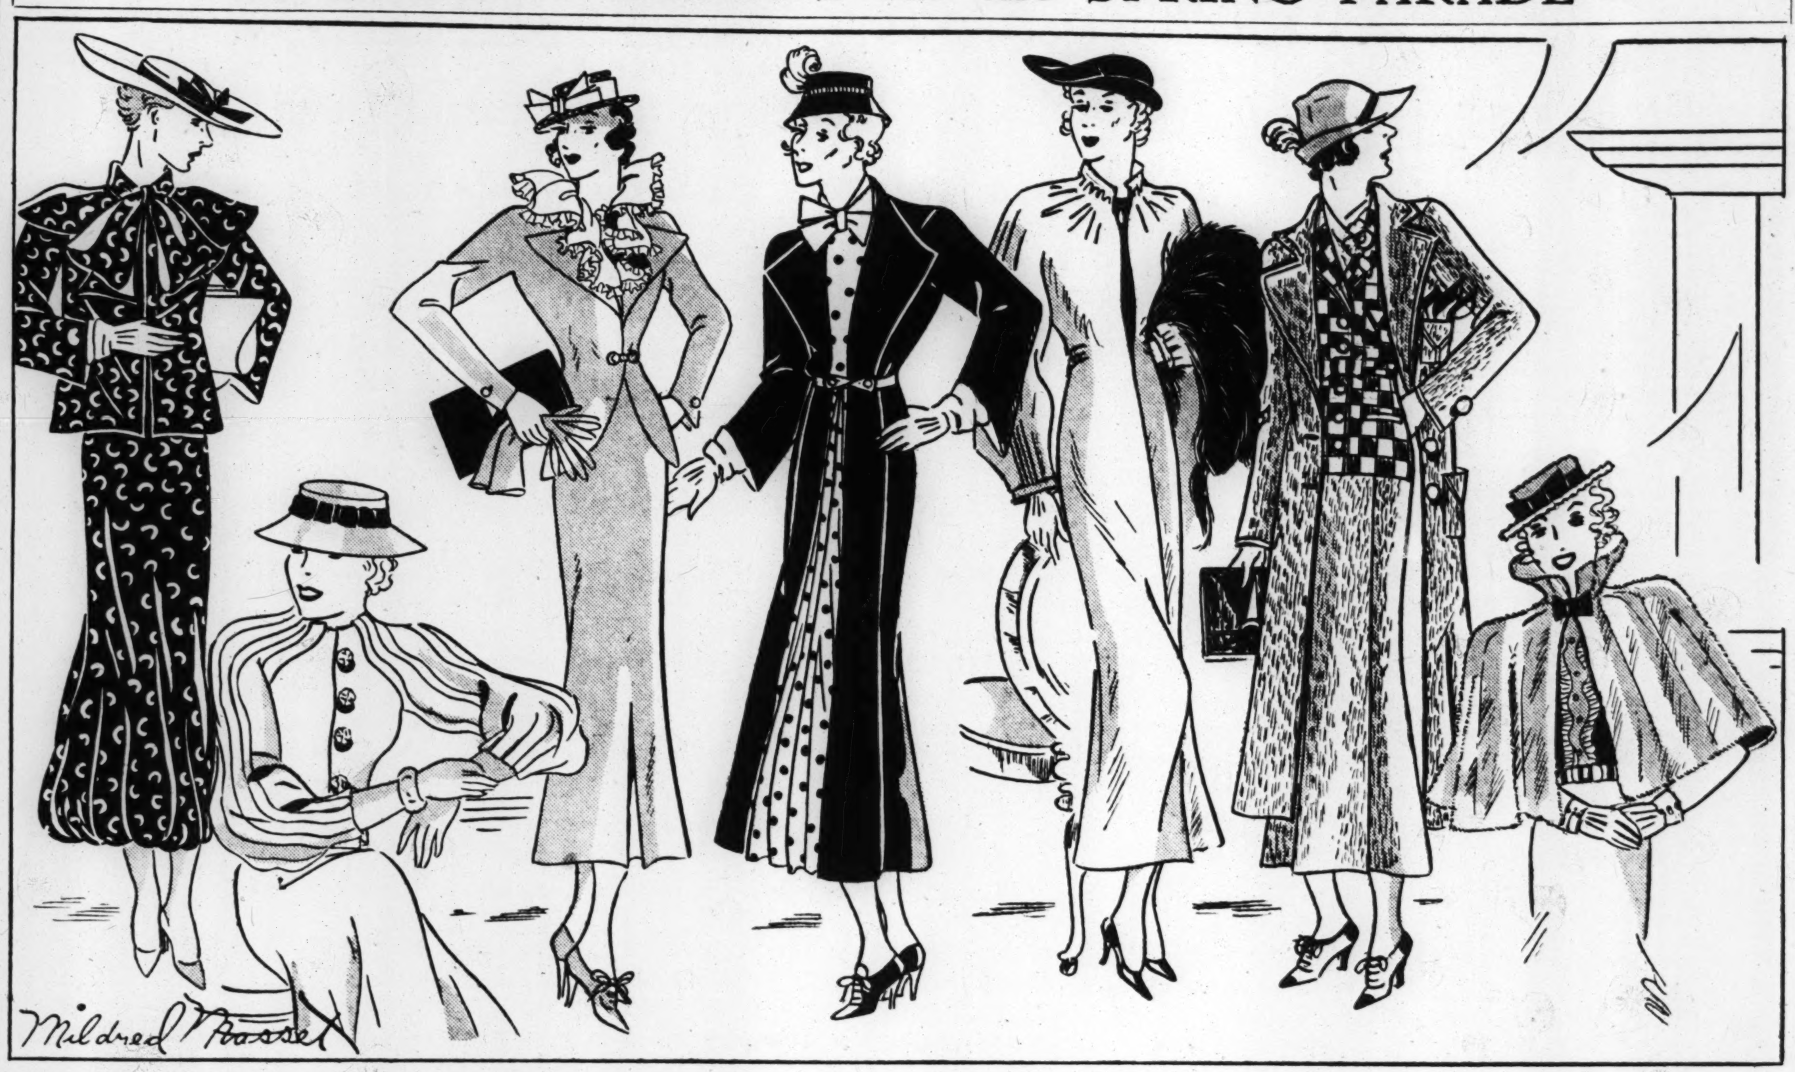
The one-piece dress of dark colored sheer shares attention with the one-piece dress of printed silk or synthetic fabric. Many adopt the shirtwaist theme but others are more dressy and introduce novelty tucking, elaborate lingerie touches, gay clips or flower decorations. A certain fullness through the shoulders is repeated by fullness at the hemline. Sleeves usually are three-quarter length and brought into notice because of their drapery or puffing. Smocking and shirring continue to be noteworthy modes of decoration.

Fullness of Skirts.

Two-piece themes may consist of an overblose type of frock or be made up of separate garments such as a blouse and skirt. Skirts, although designed for quite active sportswear, are of light weight materials and excellently styled. The majority introduce fullness below the knees, either by kick pleats or gores.

Blouses have such an important part in the springtime fashion ensemble that a woman's blouse wardrobe is likely to represent a varied collection. If she makes it complete it will include at least one shirtwaist of silk or linen, cut as much like a man's as possible even to the rounded tails. It will call for cuff links and perhaps for matching studs. Another tailored mode with certain feminine frills is the handkerchief linen blouse. Drawnwork, fagotting, lace insertion, tucks and similar evidences of needlecraft will be represented. A taffeta blouse must be included for immediate wear. If it is dark, light polka dots will enliven it but if it is plaided or striped, gayety is its first charm. For more formal occasions a blouse such as that sketched will be appropriate. It may be made of a lovely crepe in a pastel coloring or of a printed material.

DAYTIME FASHIONS for the SPRING PARADE



Sailor Styles Outstanding in Spring Hats

Pin your faith to a sailor and quit worrying about spring millinery problems. Look over the assortment of little ones and big ones, sedate ones and dashing ones, and decide which suits you best. There are sailors for every mood and every costume, so each woman can take her choice.

The vogue of sailors is an outstanding millinery trend, but the variety is so great that no two of them look alike. One feature which all have in common, however, is a modest sort of crown. The more retiring it is, the better the fashionists like it. Brims make up for the crown's inferiority, some of them going to extremes in order to attract attention.

Introduction of the sailor which has a forward-swooping brim is an indication of how completely the forward movement has captivated the millinery world. The back of a hat is forgotten while the designer is doing unexpected things to the front. Whether this line is upward and outward, or downward and outward depends upon the temperament of the creator. Both styles are decidedly smart and both have the tendency of giving the profile a square-cut look.

Two other millinery modes should be mentioned in this brief discussion. One has the drooping brim that is reminiscent of the coolie model and the other is a small but very chic chapeau. The coolie type is regarded as a hat for dresses and is expected to be of greater significance as the season advances and sun-shades are in greater demand. The small hat is an ideal suit hat for immediate wear, especially if it presents the "flower-pot" silhouette such as that shown with the redingote costume in the group of illustrations. The pill-box toque, when developed of alpaca or taffeta and dressed up with a veil, is a popular dinner type.

Straws, straw fabrics, alpaca, taffeta and light weight novelty woolens are being used. Straw interest is divided between the smooth finished types and the rough, shiny braid arranged in plaited formation.

Designers Go to Ends Of Earth for Themes

Greece, Russia, Persia and India Furnish Inspiration for Creators of Fashions for Spring Season.

REPORTS from the Paris openings indicate that famous French designers went to the four corners of the earth for their fashion inspiration. Grecian themes were the choice of several. Russian flared hemlines characterized the predominant note of another. Persian modes of drapery recurred frequently while the harem hemline and the Indian sari were sensational features of others.

While some of these innovations may not prove popular in the United States, students of costume design are watching them closely and waiting for developments which eventually may change the silhouette on Main street. Some can remember when the Hindu veil was the choice accessory of the enthusiastic motoring novice and when the hobble skirt played havoc with athletic strides.

Grecian Theme Popular.

The Grecian theme has begun to exercise its influence upon the mode, so Maggy Rouff, the designer who introduced it, must have chanced upon a lucky idea. Front fullness such as is apparent in the Grecian garb is assuming style importance. It is being introduced not only into the daytime but the evening silhouette with pronounced success. A gathered section at the front of the waistline may be held down with rows of shirring to yoke depth, then released if the designer wishes to be conservative. Flowing, wing-like sleeves are possible in the creation of an evening frock and even in a rather formal daytime costume, a certain modification of the trend can be used.

Bloused bodices, corded belts with tassel ends, smocking at the neckline and supple fabrics all are instrumental in calling attention to this influence. Likewise the use of delicate tints is advantageous so lavender and a deeper violet hue are characteristic.

Alix was another designer who endorsed the Grecian theme using sheer fabrics to introduce most effectively the draped silhouette of that country. A short cape which reminded of the Grecian chlamid was one of the most impressive styles presented by this creator. Decidedly Oriental was a costume draped around the body of the mannequin and who had a scarf-like drapery thrown over the head.

Evening Gown Skirts.

The Oriental trend as featured by Schiaparelli, according to reports, was presented to best advantage in several evening gowns that had skirts pulled up to one side, the excess width tied into a bouffant bow. Bustle-like back drapes also served to feature the same theme. Long evening wraps tightness at the knees and below them proved arresting in contrast to the usual hemline width featured by many designers. The manner in which gold brocade and other rich fabrics were employed for wraps also was suggestive of the Oriental trend.

The harem hemline proved to be a real sensation because Mainbocher endorsed it for daytime as well as for evening. A jacket frock of a printed fabric had a skirt drawn in at the bottom by means of a cleverly inserted elastic. Draped back fullness was another evidence of the popularity of bouffancy at the hips.

Tunic frocks which sometimes were reminiscent of Russia and again more like the Persian costume with gold banding appeared in several collections and indicated that it will be a long time before the long overblouse type of costume is abandoned.

Equally impressive in the inspiration of new fashions were the reversions to pre-war periods. Huge puffed sleeves, skirts that billowed, fitted bodices and much handwork were indicative that modern designers can find much to admire and copy in the styles of other days.

The "Hourglass" Sleeve.

Decidedly romantic were some of the costumes presented in the Lanvin collection. Rich fabrics were noteworthy, among the most impressive being embroidered crepes, metal lame and striped taffeta. This designer was among those to show a tunic silhouette and also to give endorsement to the "Hourglass" sleeve with its double puff.

Gathers, shirring and cordings were favorite ways of emphasizing the new skirt fullness. Molyneaux is one who is credited with developing the shirred theme in an interesting manner. Necklines also showed the shirred idea. Sleeves carried out the bouffant idea by being quite large. A hint at a lower neckline was given.

The skirt, which has a decided flare, appeared in the Worth collection, and was accentuated by the belt extremely wide and forming almost a fitted girdle. Certain old-fashioned tendencies, such as stiff fabrics, elegant evening frocks and flouncy petticoats, proved of interest.

Chanel evidently thinks it is time to revive the very full pleated skirt, for several of these were shown. This theme meant that skirt length should be shortened, so another innovation was created. Marcel Rochas also has been credited with the same thought, the shorter and fuller skirt.

Among some other highlights of the Paris openings which may influence American fashions were the following: Instep length evening frocks, starched linen jackets, bellhop coats, linoleum belts, wired shoulders, chiffon wraps, printed chintz evening frocks, cellophane trimmings suggesting colored glass and ostrich-lined evening coats.

Costume's Art Determined By Accessories

Bags and Gloves to Match Shoes—Importance of Jewelry Ensembles.

The individuality of a costume so often depends upon the choice of accessories that St. Louis retailers are striving to encourage the ensembling of accessory items.

Bags and gloves are selected in harmony with footwear, and the three determined by the type of suit or frock. Such smaller articles as boutonnaires, belts, and costume jewelry likewise contribute their part toward the complete artistry of an outfit. The day has passed when a well-dressed woman could make one pair of shoes or one handbag suffice for an entire wardrobe. She now has a complete set of accessories for morning, afternoon and evening attire.

Heels Are Lower.

Paris has decreed that lower heels shall be the vogue for tailored wear, so the shoe styles that several prominent manufacturers display for spring consider this trend. Oxfords built-up strap models and the monk's type of shoe all lend themselves to this mode. There also is some excitement over square toes, and a few stylists have been quick to adopt the fad.

Oxfords ranging from the one-eyelet to the five-eyelet style predominate in the retail shoe display. The low-cut oxford usually has a bow trimming that gives it the appearance of a pump. While openwork designs are not as prevalent as they were a year ago, the shoe men do not lack for decorative interest. Basket weaves, combinations of fabrics and kids, inlays of contrasting leather and novelty stitching are effective. The T-strap sandal is a leader among the dressy shoes.

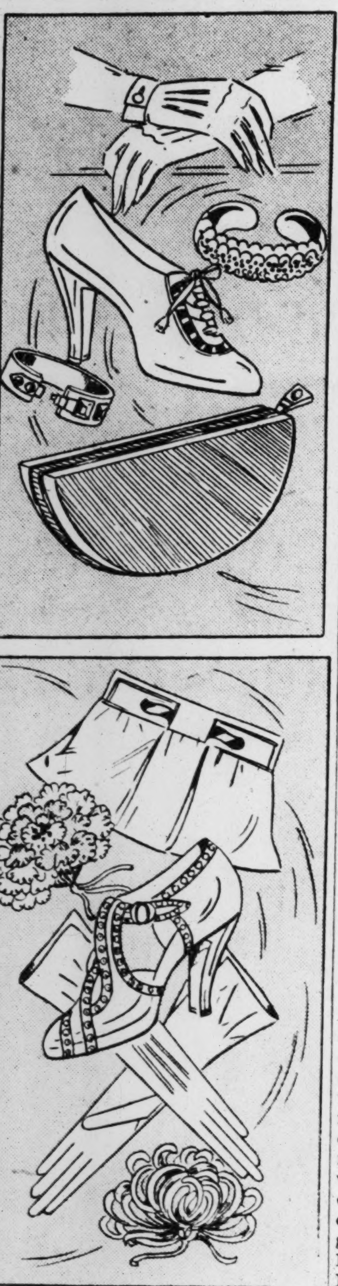
Shoes, Gloves and Bags.

Since glove calfskin is being used so extensively for handbags, there is a closer alliance between the texture of bags, footwear and gloves. The popularity of pigskin for all three items, especially to accent sports clothes, also is significant as is that of chamois suede in natural color combined with a darker and sturdier leather.

Many different styles of handbags are featured in the stores so that the selection of the handled bag, the envelope, or the pouch is a matter of individual preference. Square bags are regarded as very fashionable now but there are so many half circle and rectangular bags that this rule doesn't hold. All have exquisite and complete fittings, and the majority provide space for monograms.

Navy blue predominates in footwear and bags as it does in millinery and street apparel. But combinations of beige and brown or black and gray are of decided interest. If a woman wishes to contrast her bag with footwear and millinery she chooses bright red or green, the red patent leather pocket book being much in evidence.

Accessories



Above, high cut ties, zipper bag of novel styling, wide metal bracelets and gloves fastening on top of the wrists are evidences of tailored chic. Below, cleverly styled chamois bag, a new interpretation of the T-strap sandal and flowers are accessories of importance.

New Shades for Spring Given Unique Names

Whipped Cream, Poison Green, Grape Green, Red Raspberry and Many Others

If anyone doubts the fashion-rightness of brilliant colors for springtime, the authentic charts issued by the Textile Color Card Association of the United States will prove convincing. The delicate tints brought to popularity by the Regency fashion vogue are represented, and special attention is given also to the peasant colors which are both vivid and appealing. Significant names are given to every tint pictured so that there is no mistaking one from another.

The Regency pastels include such fascinating names as whipped cream, nosegay pink, coral sky, nijou blue, empire mauve, shell mist and boutonniere yellow. The directoire beige which is represented has a decidedly pinkish cast while the mignon blue is a reproduction of the flower it signifies.

Some Bright Hues.

One of the brightest shades among the peasant colors is a Brittany rose. Castilian orange isn't much subdued and moujik red resembles a lipstick tone more than it does one for dresses. Three shades of green are included. Basque green has a slightly yellow tint while Hungarian green adds a large dab of blue. Bulgarian green is similar to the early spring foliage tint. Tyrol blue has a purplish cast and Sicilian purple a bluish tinge.

Among the silk fabric shades that gain inspiration from every day things rather than from other countries and eras, there are such suggestive tints as poison green, fondant pink, porcelain rose and flowerpot red. No one would have difficulty in picking out any of this number, the designations are so well chosen. The same is true of concord blue which has the tone of a famous grape, of springlilac, grapegreen and chamois yellow. Imperial violet, rosewood brown, Indian rust and sunorange are as vividly descriptive.

Women are more accustomed to bright shades in silks than they are in woolens, so many may be surprised to discover that there 48 different tones on the woolen chart.

Blue the Leader.

Blue undoubtedly is the leader among spring woolen shades, but how many different blues are there? The commodore blue is one of the two dark shades; the other is concord. Talisman blue might be described as a bright navy while medieval blue has an older and weathered appearance. Tropez is another tone among the dark ones, then come delphinia, dusk, and dawn, each one definitely lighter.

Why Death Fails to Take a Holiday in St. Louis' Streets

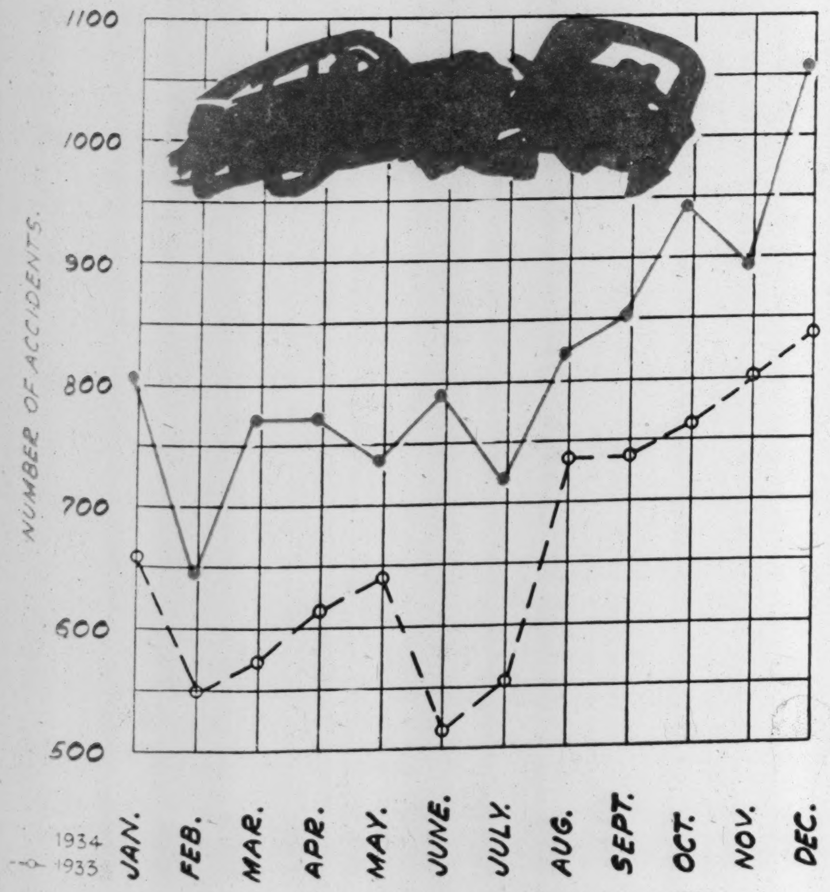
More Drinking Drivers, Efforts at 'Fixing' in the Courts Based on Political Privilege and Lack of Police, Held by City Officials to Be Contributing Factors in the Increase in Traffic Accidents and Fatalities.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THE receiving room at City Hospital is a long, shapeless hall with high walls of yellow plaster and pinkish slab marble, broken by partioned-off, glassed-in booths. A grayish wood floor, forever swept and forever littered with forbidden cigarettes, ticks to a stacatto of heel taps. Doors open on many emergency rooms and big entrances lead to endless basement corridors under the massively rising buildings above. A couple of wheelchairs hold chattering policemen. An ever-moving fleet of wheel stretchers passes. Bells ring in every key. Shouts, laughs, groans trouble the air. But gradually the room comes to acquire form and meaning as one recognizes the rise and fall in tides of blue uniforms, white uniforms, rags, fur coats. There is unending motion and change.

At the entrance the police radio buzzes loudly. "Car number two. Central District. Go to Fourth and Market. An auto accident . . . KGPC, St. Louis." Outside the door a motor roars and a gong clangs twice. A stretcher moves silently to the entrance. A tall, dark surgeon leans against the door jamb of an emergency room twisting his mustache. The babble of voices rises. Faces of the newcomers look shocked. Some stand in immobile terror. Stretchers wheel in and out. An injury, this time by way of the automobile.

Hundreds of streets outside are in communication with this room. Most accident injuries are brought here for treatment and the doors swing ready for emergencies all day and all night, as in a dressing station behind the lines of some immense battlefront. This is the rendezvous for misery in a great city and in that misery the automobile has played an important part, a part becoming increasingly more potent as shown by records and research. For a 19-page report (backed up by 55 charts and graphs) issued recently from City Hall, where it caused a stir of statements, discomfort, regret. It was Frank J. McDevitt's second annual analysis of traffic accidents, gotten up by the Department of Streets and Sewers, of which he is director. Tersely and in the engineer's manner, the report began by showing how 1934 compard with the previous year in the extent of traffic's menace to the people of St. Louis. Since then doctors and lawyers, politicians and traffic experts, personally and in groups, have said they consider McDevitt's totals appalling.



Graph showing increase in number of accidents during 1933 (broken line) and 1934 (upper line.)

THE report noted that 170 people (10 more than in 1933) died in accidents in St. Louis streets. There was a total of 9572 automobile accidents. There were 1729 more automobile accidents, 1072 more automobile injuries, 1228 more City Hospital traffic cases than the year before, a total of 4677 traffic cases taken to all hospitals last year. Drivers fled the scene of 412 accidents, 39 of them after hitting pedestrians. There were figures showing 819 apprehensions of drivers who had been drinking; 311 of drivers acutely drunk—increases of 170 and 86, respectively, over 1933 figures. There were 1333 traffic accidents and deaths involving drinking.

During 1934 city licenses were issued for 146,859 cars, an increase of 4160 over the previous year.

Coming three weeks after a Safety Council charge of lax traffic law enforcement, the McDevitt report appeared at a dramatic moment, while City Counsellor Charles Hay and Traffic Engineer Charles Gonter were urging a driver's license law in Jefferson City. Next day Mayor Dickmann called a conference of all who are directly involved in traffic regulation. He said he wanted all "fixing" of traffic cases to stop, called for a general mobilization of expert and lay opinion, asked all present to study the McDevitt report carefully.

The report held drinking responsible for a large part of the death and destruction that courses the streets, that a driver's license backed by required physical and aptitude examinations might cut the toll of death and asked for drastic changes in traffic regulation. Other changes suggested were: Tighten up on enforcement and eliminate "fixing," make fast drivers reform and slow ones move over, change reading of intoxication law to give police more discretionary power, make stop-sign dodgers give bond, allot more money for prevention and enforcement in the hope that this will be offset by lower hospital and destruction bills, unify control of traffic, now split between three departments. Above all, McDevitt declared, autoists and pedestrians must get the same persistent, determined safety attitude that factory workers have learned. "If our citizens had a full and complete knowledge of all the pain, hardship and suffering occasioned by the thousands of accidents analyzed in this report, there wouldn't be any need for an intensive safety campaign," he concluded.

There is no adequate machinery now existing to punish drunken driving surely or decisively, according to McDevitt's report. Both city courts, clogged with a variety of minor problems, treat the rum-bibbing autoists and staggering pedestrians as one of them. City Counsellor Hay has held, moreover, that existing laws make it impossible to get a physician to testify to drunkenness, and while some lawyers and judges disagree, saying doctors should be called as witnesses here as in other types of cases, present practice makes a conviction for drunkenness very difficult to get. Physicians are themselves doubtful of the accuracy possible in medical testimony, citing, for example, the fact that accident shock often sobers a driver before he can be examined. But Police Judge George D Vest holds that another type of evidence—from saloon keepers, drinking companions, etc.—might be used to get convictions if a special city counsellor were engaged to gather it in and specialize in prosecuting these cases in the two police courts. Such an officer, according to Vest, would have eight to 12 alcoholic traffic cases in the courts daily

But it is the opinion of those engaged in traffic enforcement that such a legal problem can't be solved by enforcement only. As it is, traffic officers have to attend to nearly 200,000 special duties yearly that have nothing much to do with taming daily traffic. Often there are only two traffic platoon men enforcing laws on the 1000 miles and more of city streets. Major Albert Bond Lambert, member of the Board of Police Commissioners, who devotes a major part of his time to being the department's No. 1 traffic disciplinarian, says he gets so little public co-operation that he believes it is imperative to add $1,300,000 to the yearly police budget if the job is to be done right. But even if Major Lambert should get the 700 more policemen

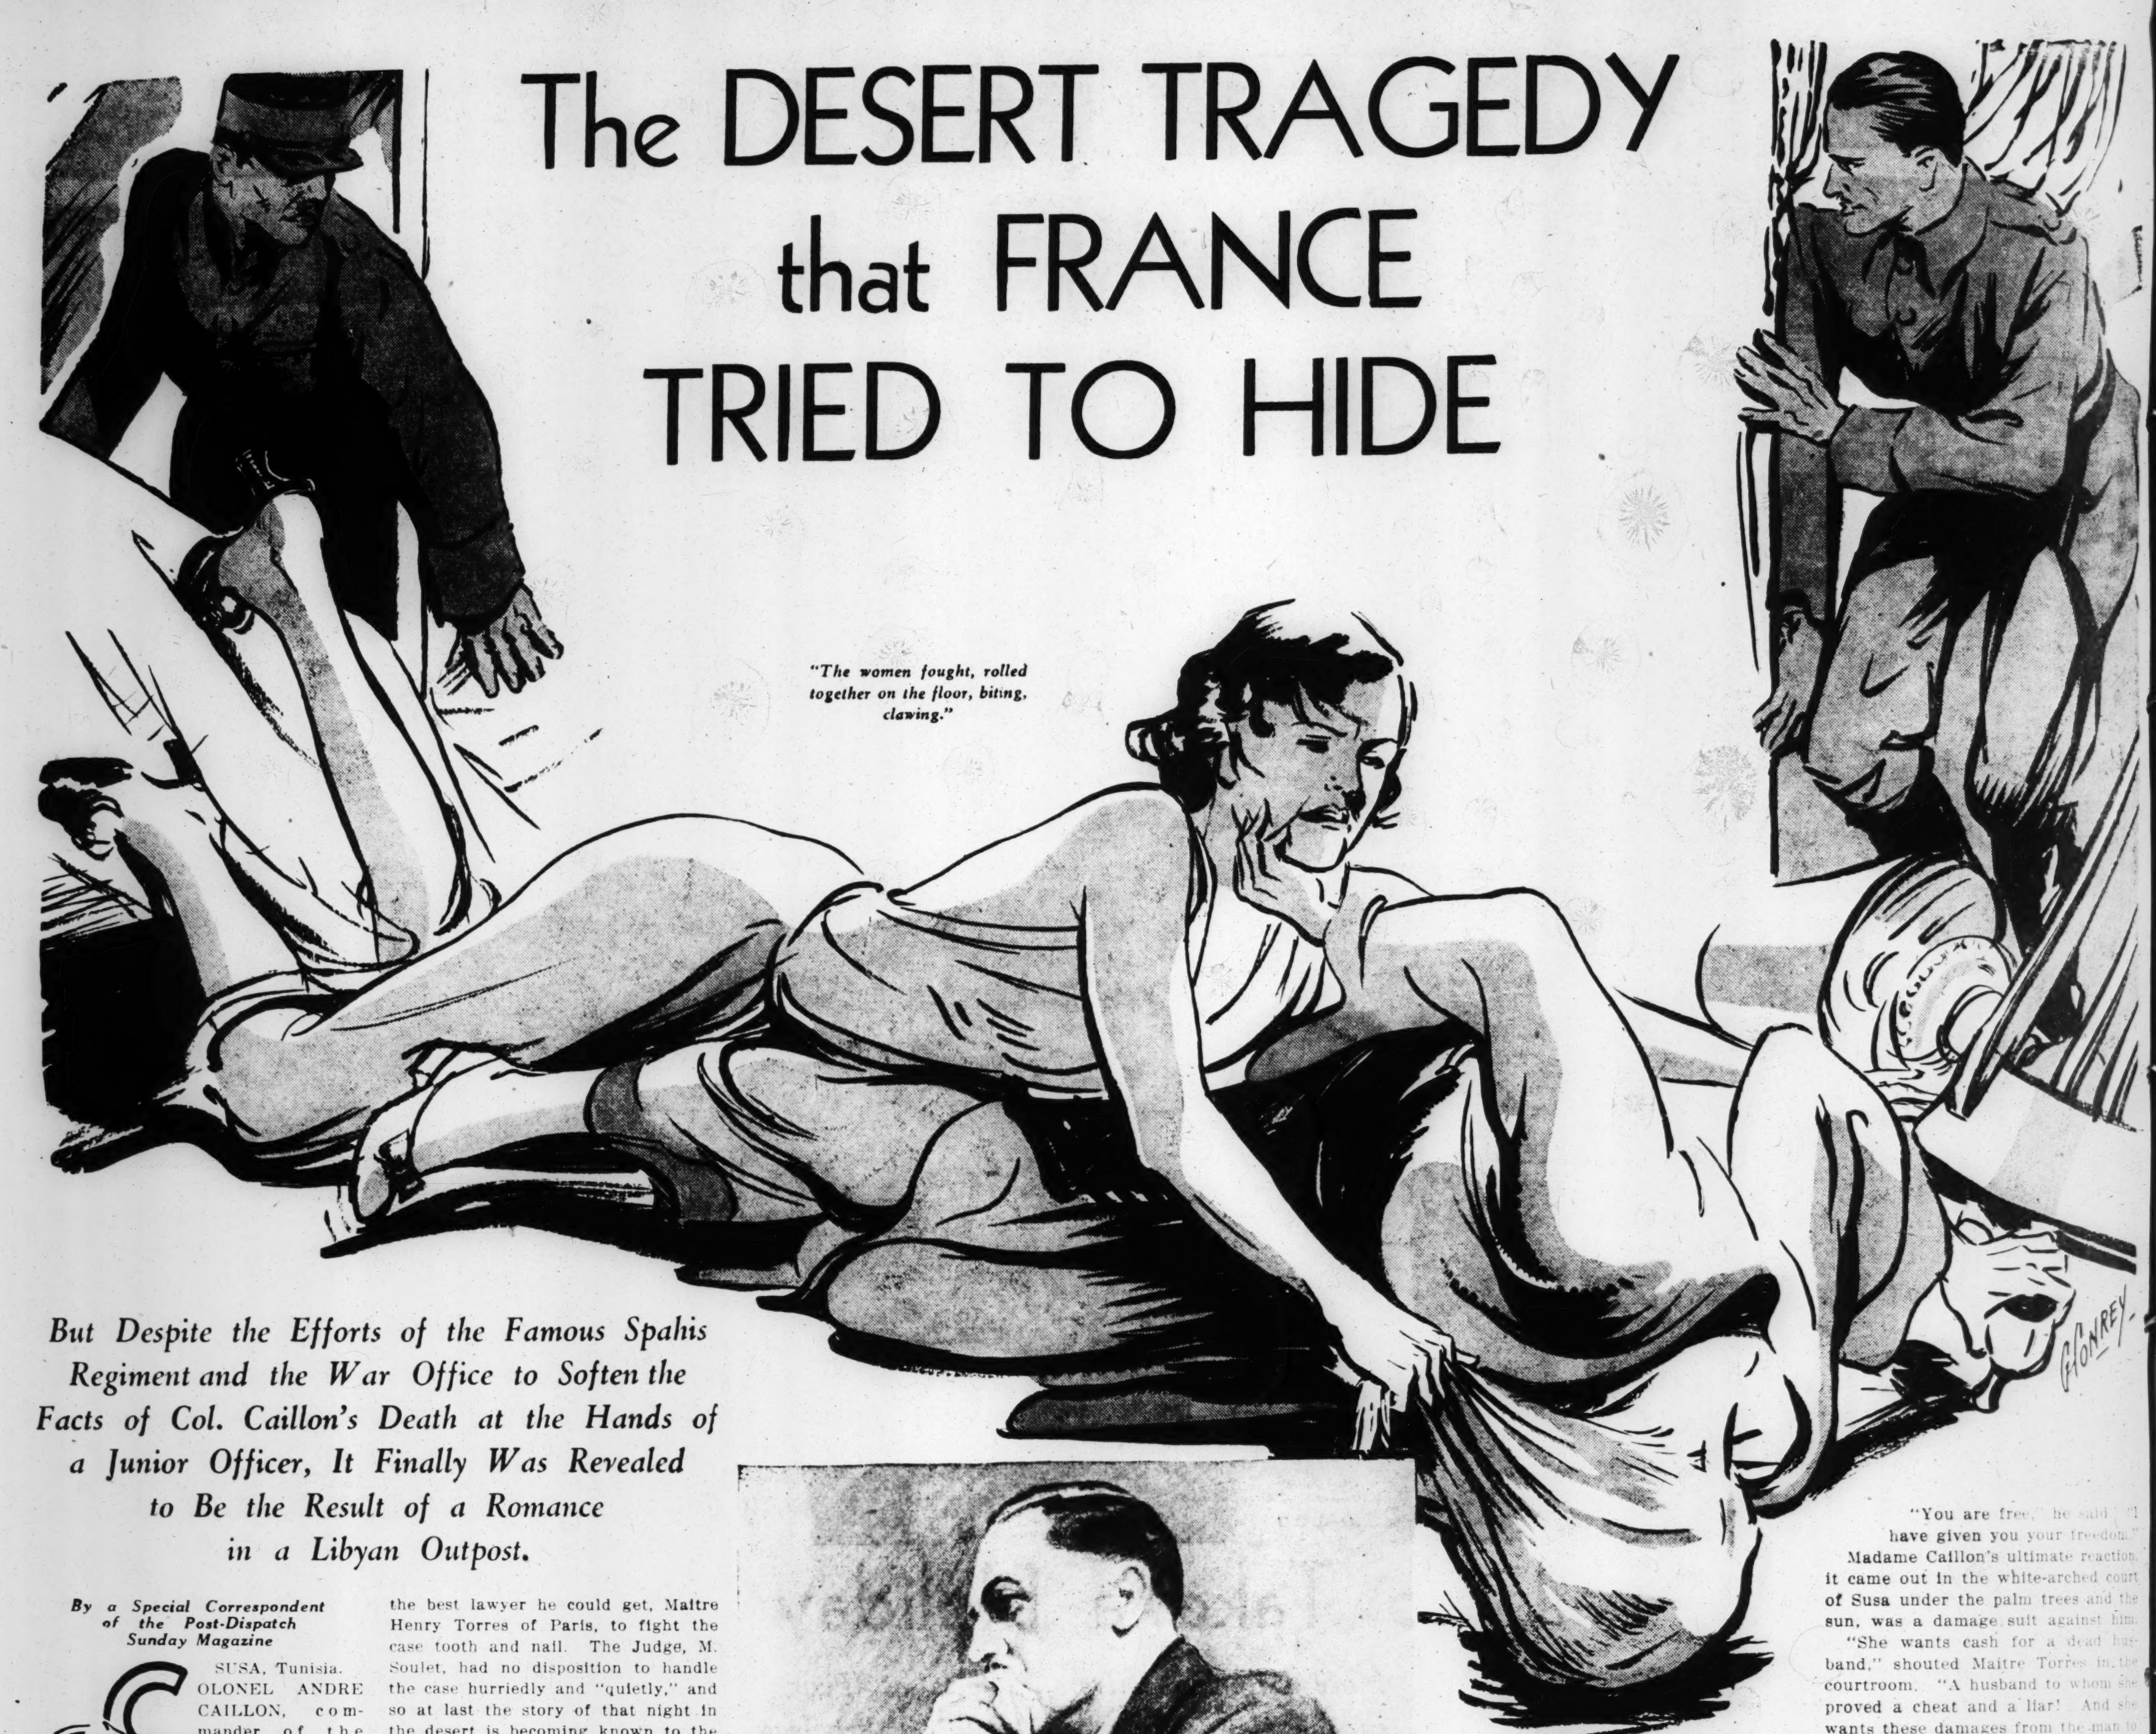
The DESERT TRAGEDY that FRANCE TRIED TO HIDE



"The women fought, rolled together on the floor, biting, clawing."

But Despite the Efforts of the Famous Spahis Regiment and the War Office to Soften the Facts of Col. Caillon's Death at the Hands of a Junior Officer, It Finally Was Revealed to Be the Result of a Romance in a Libyan Outpost.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SUSA, Tunisia. COLONEL ANDRE CAILLON, commander of the Fourth Regiment of Spahis, was shot to death by an officer of his staff, Lieutenant Pierre Cabanes, on February 22, 1933, in a three-room shack at M' Chi-Quig, a French outpost on the Libyan frontier.

The fact seems simple enough. But it was lost until recently under a confusion of grotesque and contradictory rumors. It did not come to light for two years, and the disclosure when it finally happened seemed entirely due to misguided attempts — including those of the French War Department —to keep it secret. There were women in the case.

First accounts in France were that Colonel Caillon was killed in a duel, an affair of honor. His opponent was named as "Lieutenant Rene de Guessen." The cause was said to be the Colonel's love for his "fiancee, a beautiful young Irish woman."

Actually, the Colonel was married, and one of the two squalling, clawing women who precipitated the shooting was his wife. The other was the wife of a third officer of his staff—not Cabanes, but yet another. Their lives, it appears, had become hopelessly tangled.

Lieutenant Cabanes was arrested and returned to the barracks at Sfax, on the sea coast. On the following night, he found it remarkably easy to escape. It has been reported that the guard was withdrawn so that he might retire to a quiet and fitting spot on the desert and save the regiment a scandal by shooting himself. If so, Lieutenant Cabanes—willing though he was to seek a quiet and distant place—had no intention of carrying out the rest of the bargain. There was nothing to do but rearrest him.

The military dropped its proceedings against him and turned him over to civil authorities here. That would spare his fellow officers the pain, and publicity, of court martial, and if the Lieutenant would only plead guilty in the civil court, it would soon and quietly be over with.

But the Lieutenant would not plead guilty. The Lieutenant would hire the best lawyer he could get, Maitre Henry Torres of Paris, to fight the case tooth and nail. The Judge, M. Soulet, had no disposition to handle the case hurriedly and "quietly," and so at last the story of that night in the desert is becoming known to the outside world.

It is not a pretty story. To better understand the curious, conflicting interplay of loyalties and infidelities, it must be remembered that it all occurred in a little group of men and women far away from their own kind, where European ways are likely to seem irrelevant.

Without this setting the warring elements in the case would be irreconcilable, and the principals' story incredible. In the palm-shaded Moorish villa where the Susa Criminal Court relentlessly dissected them under the African sun, Lieutenant Cabanes wept as he told his story, protesting his affection for the man he killed.

Lieut. Pierre Cabanes on the witness stand.

Col. Andre Caillon.

In the code of that crack cavalry regiment — linked so often with the Foreign Legion—he would have died for Colonel Caillon without thinking twice. But Colonel Caillon had a wife, and Mme. Caillon had time on her hands.

Colonel Caillon was a distinguished soldier. He had earned honors and the respect of his staff. But the Colonel, reaching 54, found Madame Caillon singularly unrefreshing and, not utterly without precedent in the isolated tropical stations, he turned to his junior officers' wives.

Thus came into the case the name of Madame Perrin, whose husband was chief medical officer of the Fourth Spahis. The regiment then formed the garrison at Sfax. Just when Madame Caillon found herself with time on her hands, Lieutenant Cabanes, blue-eyed and handsome, tawny from the sun, returned from a campaign in which he had distinguished himself by the most nonchalant and breath-taking sort of courage. If the result was not inevitable, obviously it seemed so to Madame Caillon.

In this situation, Colonel Caillon planned a hunting expedition to the frontier with Madame Perrin and seven of his officers. Madame Caillon went along.

On the fringe of the desert they took a three-room hut at M' Chi-Quing. Conventionally, the Colonel and his wife took one room together. The junior officers had another. Madame Perrin had a third.

Observers of shifting social orders have noted, in society of the utmost freedom, a persistent and frequently troublesome lag, a strain arising when human being has left tribal inhibitions sufficiently far behind for personal indulgence, but not far enough—as Judge Soulet remarked in court—for utter serenity in contemplating the indulgence of husband or wife or sweetheart. That strain, it seems, was beginning to tell on Colonel Caillon or his wife, or both, and it led to a difficult scene on the way to M' Chi-Quing.

"An abominable scandal," Lieutenant Cabanes called it. He said the Colonel insulted his wife before the entire party, that he shouted, "I loathe you. One of these days I'll put a bullet through you."

Lieutenant Cabanes related that he attempted to remonstrate. Colonel Caillon seized him by the throat and, the Lieutenant felt, would have choked him to death then and there if fellow-officers had not interfered.

Peace did not come when they reached M' Chi-Quing and settled down in quarters for the night. Madame Caillon—that troublesome lag again—launched into a tirade against Colonel Caillon.

He flung her out of the room—and into the adjoining room, occupied by Madame Perrin.

She ran to the side of Madame Perrin's bed, cursed, spat upon her.

Madame Perrin leapt up, and the two women fought, rolled together on the floor, biting, clawing, squalling like wildcats.

Colonel Caillon entered by one door, Lieutenant Cabanes by the other. Such scenes have been known to awaken in the men responsible a certain sheepish amusement, to illuminate the whole affair to them in a sudden and human and wholly undramatic light, but no such light occurred to them. Instead, they hurled themselves headlong into a repetition of the same pitiable scene enacted by the two women. They did not claw. Their weapons were only words, but they were words hard to forget.

When the bitter torrent stopped, Lieutenant Cabanes went to his quarters, blood in his eye. A native orderly watched his shadowy form bend over his bunk, saw the beam of his electric pocket lamp searching over his effects until it picked out a revolver, watched the young officer stride, half-running, from the room.

The Caillons had not moved from Madame Perrin's bedside. And Cabanes, without a word, sent a bullet through his Colonel's heart.

As Colonel Caillon fell, Madame Perrin hurled herself upon the killer, crying, "This is no place for you—there is still a bullet in the pistol meant for you." Lieutenant Cabanes said he had no will to kill himself, and she fled from the room. The Lieutenant was left alone with Madame Caillon and the body, which, seconds before, had been his honored leader—and the husband of his mistress.

"You are free," he said. "I have given you your freedom."

Madame Caillon's ultimate reaction, it came out in the white-arched court of Susa under the palm trees and the sun, was a damage suit against him.

"She wants cash for a dead husband," shouted Maitre Torres in the courtroom. "A husband to whom she proved a cheat and a liar! And she wants these damages from the man to whom she swore loyalty, and to whom she made a fervid promise that she would be here to serve him as a witness."

But, roared the attorney, that promise had gone the way of others. She was not here. She was unable, she had pleaded, too ill to come.

"So also," he snarled, "have the majority of the feminine witnesses of this deplorable and tragic scandal. There seems to be a lightning epidemic of illness among them. They can flee to Paris, but they can't escape from the badge of shame and depravity that they have pinned upon their breasts."

For the jury, Judge Soulet pictured the out-of-the-world setting of this drama, where, he said the four chief actors "moved in an atmosphere of blood and passion."

"AH, WHAT a creature is this Madame Caillon," he exclaimed. She wants her husband to remain true to her, while she goes romping romantically with a handsome young officer!"

Cabanes, said the Court, had interfered "somewhat lightly, by reason of a sympathy for Madame Caillon which he had never striven to hide." And then Judge Soulet turned to the nature of the deceased man himself.

"Colonel Caillon," he said, "was a pleasure-seeker, a lady-killer, a philandering rouge, a roue and a rake, everything that was lecherous, a man unstable and self-willed, but, withal, an officer of great valor."

"This drama," said the Public Prosecutor, "has been enacted in a Moslem country, where French women and French officers should give an example of good behavior. Instead, we have officers of the French Army conducting themselves like libertines, and French women of supposedly good social standing, acting like the lowest creatures of Montparnasse." He asked, not for the maximum for Lieutenant Cabanes, but for sufficient penalty to place French justice above suspicion.

The six-man jury voted "Guilty with extenuating circumstances," and the sentence was five years in a North African prison.

The University of Iowa Institutes a Course Ranging From Budgets to Babies in an Effort to Avoid Initial Marital Mistakes and Make Romance Evolve Into Lasting Companionship.

UNIVERSITY

By KEITH KERMAN
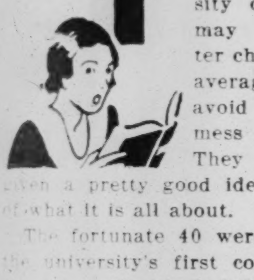
Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff



IOWA CITY, Iowa.

THERE are 40 young men and women at the State University of Iowa who may have a better chance than the average person to avoid making a mess of marriage. They have been given a pretty good idea in advance of what it is all about.

The fortunate 40 were students in the university's first course in marriage, recently concluded; a course designed to rid matrimony of some of its misleading mystery, to give a realistic, sane view of it, taking account both of its hazards and its felicities—to give facts about and develop an attitude toward marriage which make it less of a lottery than it is in common practice.

Inclusion of instruction on this subject in a university's preparation of a student for life is not original at the University of Iowa. Several universities have such courses; Professor E. R. Groves has been conducting one at the University of South Carolina for some years. But at Iowa the method is unique in that instruction is given by specialists in various departments of the university. From the law school comes a professor to lecture on the legal aspects of matrimony, medical lecturers tell of sex functions and hygiene, a home economics teacher discusses the financial problems of housekeeping, and so on. Iowa students get their information on marriage from experts.

It was with some trepidation on the part of university authorities that the course was offered here at the beginning of the present school year. To be comprehensive, the study must include adequate consideration of the sex relation in marriage, and sex is still a rather delicate subject in substantial, very respectable Iowa—or almost any place else in America for that matter, and particularly in co-educational universities with undergraduate student bodies. There was uncertainty as to the reaction both outside the campus and within the class.

Now that the course is over for this year, the fears concerning it seem to be somewhat allayed. The group of students was told the "facts of life," and the heavens didn't fall. No one in the class swooned with embarrassment. According to persons who were present, that part of the course dealing with sex proceeded as decorously as a lecture on logarithms. About the only criticism made of the marriage course by those who took it—and they included some pretty strait-laced students—was that there wasn't enough of it; several suggested that it be extended over the full year instead of being confined to one semester, so that more time could be devoted to certain of its subjects.

Concerning the value of the study, impressions written by students at the end of the term included the following:

"I believe that I have a much clearer picture of marital relationships, and I now have the desire to enter into a wholesome and happy married life, which I can honestly say I did not have before enrolling in this course."

"I have found out that my ideals are not too far fetched, I have found books to read that I can always refer to, and I am looking forward now to building toward my ideals with a most faithful, understanding companion through life."

Several things helped make the experiment work out in the way hoped for. In the first place, the course was given in the School of Religion, whose administrative director, Dr. M. Willard Lampe, is, incidentally, a brother of the Reverend W. B. Lampe, pastor of the West Presbyterian Church, St. Louis. This setting naturally implied a "moral" approach to the study. Another factor was the discretion used in limiting the membership of the class. Only juniors and seniors were admitted, and selected ones at that—persons who were considered to be sufficiently mature in mind and character to receive the instruction properly. Furthermore, the lecturers were chosen with personal reputation as well as professional standing in mind.

Religion and Social Problems is the name under which the work was given this year, but students and faculty alike speak of the first semester's study as "the marriage course," since matrimony occupied the attention throughout that period. This semester other problems, notably industrial relations, are being considered, and the personnel of the class is different. It is planned that next year the study of marriage will be conducted under that specific name, and run through both semesters.

In direct charge of the marriage course was Dr. Moses Jung, Jewish Professor in the School of Religion. Born in England, the son of a chief rabbi in London, he came to the United States in 1922, after studying at London and Cambridge universities and doing war and post-war relief work among students in Europe. He continued his studies at the University of Pennsylvania, taught religion at the University of Illinois, came to the School of Religion faculty six years ago.

DR. JUNG gave the lectures on the history of marriage, which laid the foundation for consideration of present-day marriage problems, as well as exercising general supervision over the study and determining grades. All student papers came to him.

The lecturers brought in from other departments and their topics: Dr. H. W. Lovell, psychiatrist, the psychology of sex; Prof. Frances Zuill, head of the department of home economics, the family income and budgeting; Dr. A. V. Hardy and Dr. Grace Hardy of the hygiene department, the psycho-physical approach to marriage and hygienic problems; Dr. E. V. Plass, head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the university hospitals, physiological aspects of the marriage relation; Prof. Paul L. Sayer of the law school, legal aspects of marriage; Dr. Robert L. King of the zoology department, eugenics; Dr. Christian Ruckmick of the psychology department, psychological approach to marriage; Dr. George D. Stoddard, director of the Child Welfare Research Station of the university, the care of children; the Rev. Richard McEvoy, Episcopal clergyman, Christianity and modern marriage.

It was arranged to have a Catholic priest and a Catholic physician lecture to the class, but circumstances prevented them from keeping the engagements.

However, the recent Catholic encyclical on family life was studied. The students were informed of the attitude of various religious groups toward such things as birth control and divorce.

In addition to the lectures, there were round-table discussions, private conferences with the lecturer for such students as wished them, and outside reading of recommended books and articles. Prof. Groves' book, "Marriage," was used as a textbook.

The 40 students enrolled for the course included prominent figures in campus life. Among them were Ruth Aurner, a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority and president of Mortar Board, a woman's organization, election to which is based on scholarship and character; Betty Reed, member of Delta Gamma Sorority and society editor of the Daily Iowan; Frederick Radloff, member of Delta Upsilon Fraternity and star tackle for the last three years on the Iowa football team.

The class was composed of men and women in about equal numbers. Nearly half of them were engaged to be married. And while the data presented to the students were such as to make them realize that matrimony was a complicated business, in which success was not always easy, the effect obviously was not to inspire such fear as to encourage celibacy. Before the course was over three of the students got married. Ella May Ebert and Claude Bergman, both members of the class, took vows together. Radloff, the football man, wed LaVerna Maher of Iowa City, a recent high school graduate. Both marriages took place during the Christmas holidays.

RADLOFF, whose home is in Marshalltown, is 23 years old and his bride is 19. They are keeping house very happily in a small apartment. The husband will receive his B. A. in June, and expects to work for a medical degree after that. He doesn't say that the marriage course is responsible for his embarking on matrimony, but admits that he wasn't planning to marry when he enrolled in the class, and concedes that the serious thinking on the subject required by the study may have influenced him.

Twice a week—on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11 a. m.—the class met, listened to a lecture and discussed the subject presented that day. Questions could be asked anonymously. That is, questions could be written and sent up to the lecturer, and he would answer them for the general benefit without the class knowing who had asked them. This device for avoiding embarrassment made for frank and free instruction.

Although "advanced" theories, such as trial marriage, were discussed along with the more generally accepted doctrines, the students seemed to favor the conventional attitude. For example, one girl wrote concerning Bertrand Russell's idea that marriage shouldn't bar a person from other sexual relationships: "If he (a husband) isn't capable of loving one woman, and one alone, he shouldn't be entitled to have any woman. Love and life are too sacred to be regarded as playthings. . . . Love is not an end; it is an instrument and a means toward a number of ends which are necessary to man, both biologically and psychologically."

Another wrote: "For harmonious and satisfactory marital relations, monogamy, most marriage students agree, is the only form, since it is the only means whereby personalities may achieve complete expression, which builds the unifying force between one man and one woman."

Dr. Jung gave this succinct statement of the purpose of the course: "The goal was to present scientifically reliable data on marriage and at the same time to underline its ethical and esthetic implications."

The notebook of a student should give some idea of what the members of the class heard, read and thought while engaged in their scientific study of this ancient but widely misunderstood institution. From such a notebook, which was based on lectures, discussions and conferences and outside reading, these entries were taken (by permission of its owner):

Co-operation gives strong affection, which keeps marriage intact. Sex not major factor.

No one theory (of origin of human marriage) definitely established.

Influence of auto—good and evil.

Mother-child relationship influences and gives pattern later love-life.

Recreational activities important.

Sex adjustment problems—knowledge, consideration and understanding reactions of other.

Teach child fair play—give and take. Must preserve ability to laugh at ourselves.

Unless there are children, there isn't enough for women to do to support self by housework alone.

No more than 20 per cent married men (earn) $2000 per year—3 per cent $5000 and above. Three to five years for average college man to get $1200 per year.

Set standard of living to lower level. Don't expect to start out where parents leave off.

Save 10 per cent of salary, no matter how little it is.

Marriage fundamentally companionship.

Stages of courtship: first, appraisal and reason; second, emotional, postponement of biological element for sake of social ideals. Eliminate reserves. Continue courtship to keep emotional glow.

Continence advisable until time for ideal marriage.

Marriage, historically, a legal relation with religious sanction.

Marriage a contract creating a status, with rights and duties apart from expressed contract. Marriage presupposes continuance until death. Dissolution short of death is special relief.

FEAR responses natural in growing children. All right if assume natural course. Everyone has areas of fear, disconnected with intellect and length of experience.

Habits begin early which can't be changed.

False upbringing — shame and fear, too much inhibition where there should be consummation.

Maintenance of self-respect — most important problem.

To this rather random selection might be added, as significant, the observation of another student—a woman: "I believe that many times women demand too much of marriage."

No specific recipes for marital happiness were given—no hard and fast rules for choosing or holding a mate. But the students were given opportunity to hear what marriage is like—opportunity to be told of marriage, the actuality, not the mirage—and to realize that it is too important to be entered without careful consideration. They were given reason to believe that there should be romance in marriage, but that romance alone would fail as a basis for this relationship; that it needed to be supported by intelligence and knowledge.

The 40 students who took the University of Iowa's first marriage course apparently absorbed a good deal of the information offered. No one flunked the course.

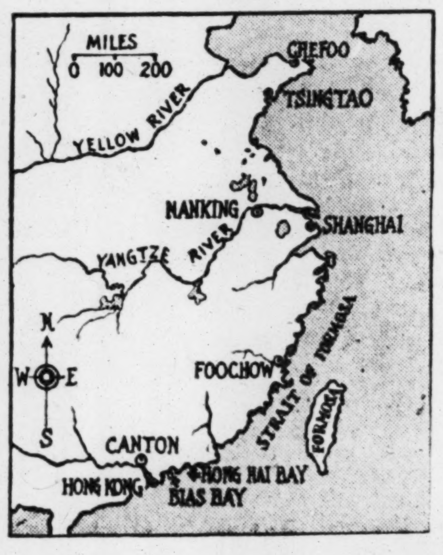
When the Chinese Pirates Captured a 'Cargo' of Missionaries' Children—

Consternation Filled the Foreign Settlements, the British Air Force Went to the Rescue—and the Youngsters Reveled in the Adventure.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine



HONGKONG, China.

A GATHERING larger and livelier than usual watched the Tungchow, one of the finest coastal steamers of the China Navigation Co., set out from Shanghai on its regular two-day trip to Chefoo on Tuesday, Jan. 29. It was just at the close of the holidays in one of the most cosmopolitan ports in the Orient, and many passengers were returning to the North after prolonged visits with friends and relatives.

Nothing was heard of the steamer for three days. The Chefoo cable hummed; the ship was 20 hours overdue. The Mayor of Tsingtao, on the south side of the Shantung peninsula—Chefoo is on around the peninsula, 500 miles north of Shanghai—ordered out the Third Chinese Squadron to scour the coast. But when the steamer was found late that night—Friday, Feb. 1—it was 600 miles south of Shanghai, and it was putting in to Hongkong.

"No news since the end of the Great War," as an English writer commented, "has been greeted with such a general feeling of relief by the foreign community in China." This episode alone brought about a new movement by the Chinese and British authorities to clear the China seas of pirates. And it seems likely, in view of all that happened in those three days, that one band of the thousands of pirates lurking in Bias Bay has a new and chastened respect, not only for the Royal British Navy, but for the ordinary school-boy and school-girl of the Occident.

It was a gay and noisy throng that swarmed to the rail, waving and shouting farewells, that last Tuesday in January as the Tungchow steamed away. Most excited of them all were 42 boys and 28 girls, under 15 years old. They had come down for the holidays in the International Settlement with their parents, and they were returning to the China Inland Mission School at Chefoo.

A group of Chinese pirates after capture.

They were a varied lot, American, British and Scandinavian. One group gathered round Ian and Jimmie Roxburgh, who took on a special glamor in the eyes of their playmates on board the Tungchow, for their father was no less a personage than the chief engineer. Of comparable eminence was Ronald Weller, who, at 15, was the oldest of the group. The three Hayman children were beseiged with questions about their father, an Australian missionary in the hands of bandits in Kweichow Province since October. Another girl, whose parents were Presbyterian missionaries in a little town, had found her home occupied by marauders.

But they heard all these adventures without great surprise, for this was China, and they were the children of missionaries and a superior lot—as the voyage was to demonstrate. Tales of banditry did not hold them long from chatter about Christmas. The possibility of a brush with pirates was not absent from their minds, though they regarded it, childlike, rather with interest than with alarm.

They were hundreds of miles north of the pirates' lair, and their course lay in the opposite direction. But even the eight-year-olds knew the barred gates separating the third-class passengers from them were "piracy grills." The older were able to explain, with veteran authority, that the method of pirates was to register as third-class passengers, lie quiet until the ship got to sea, and then rush the officers and guards. Some of the youngsters speculated that they could climb over those gates, whether the pirates could or not, but the older scoffed; climbing over wouldn't be so easy in the face of those tough-looking Russian guards.

But, as they were soon to see, there was a way to get around that. As the Tungchow steamed out of the harbor, out of the Yangtse and into the lengthening swell of the Yellow Sea, a chronometer tinkled. It was time to change the guard. Something had happened to the relief and, as the men on watch eased down and stirred from their posts, the same thing happened to them.

That something was pirates. Little yellow men—square, lithe fisher-folk from the South, built like Japanese—swarmed over the grills "like monkeys," firing wildly, shooting down a guard before he knew what was up. His partner drew his revolver and was leveling it at the chief of the pirates when two others seized his arms from the rear, and, just as J. N. Duncan, schoolmaster in charge of the children, came on deck, prodded by a revolver, the chief coolly emptied his pistol into the helpless Russian's body.

CHILDREN had run into their cabins, crying to the teachers in charge, "They're shooting on deck." Now they waited, still and frightened, but remarkably self-controlled, wondering what was in store for them.

"It was an awful fight," said one little girl. "We all thought we were going to be killed, but we kept mousey quiet, and they locked us up instead."

They were herded together in the main saloon, while teachers hurried on deck. It was on the way that Duncan was taken in charge by a pirate. He got on deck in time to see the second guard crumple, and to watch the pirates toss the Russian's riddled body overboard.

A 10-year-old boy, John Harris, had dashed to the engine-room to give the alarm before going to his cabin, whence he was herded in with the other children. Second Engineer K. McDonald seized his revolver and went on deck, where he was shot down.

McDonald — he did survive — was carried into the salon. With the children's eyes on him, he smiled, chatted casually, folded his arms to hide the bleeding wound in his chest. In a minute or two the teachers and some of the other officers were brought below to join them, each prodded along at the muzzle of a revolver.

The steady rhythm of the propellers changed, the regular surge of the swells broke and altered, there was a moment's roll, and then the regular surge, the steady drive of the screws resumed. The vessel had swung round. Bias Bay! The thought was in every mind, for that irregular notch in the coast line just above Hongkong, threaded by sinuous channels known only to the natives, was the notorious hiding-place of the Chinese pirates.

For three days they lived literally under the muzzles of the pirates' weapons. When they sat down at the table, raiders stood behind them with revolvers drawn and leveled. It was trying to the teachers, several of whom were women, but it was an adventure to the children.

Ronald Weller became more than ever their leader, by virtue of his 15 years. One or two of the younger children whimpered, but he quieted them, and by noon of the second day, all seemed to be taking it as a matter of course—and on surprisingly easy terms with their captors.

They were, said Miss Henderson of the Mission School, "the calmest people on the ship." Children of the preparatory school flocked round the pirate chief, and gaped at his unfamiliar Cantonese. Older children, masters of the vernacular, chatted with the pirates as easily as with the Chinese boys around their homes, listened gravely to what they had to say for themselves, and as gravely took them to task.

IF anything, they came off a little better than the pirates. They had to listen to political grievances, but they gave the captors a great deal to consider. They felt piracy was a singularly un-Christian occupation and, without compunction though with Oriental courtesy—or Christian graciousness—they said so.

Materially, also, the pirates lost while the children gained. The band had paid high for a tip that the Tungchow carried $12,500 in silver, and the tip was false. But for the children, the raid resulted in an unnaturally large diet of sweets.

The captors broke open the ship's store to provide dainties for them. Ian and Jimmie—children of Chief Engineer Roxburgh—became favorites of the chief and had the run of the ship. They raided the galley, found a crate of oranges and dragged them below for their schoolmates.

It is not quite true, except figuratively, that the children got away with the pirates' shirts. But they did get the chief's sweater. Donald Hay, 13, found it, and, when he proudly held it up, the lot of them divided it in a scramble for souvenirs.

The children's pocket money was spared on the third day—Friday, Feb. 1—when the captives were lined up after lunch and robbed of clothing, jewelry and cash. The Tungchow was nosing south along the coast, 500 miles or more south of the spot where the pirates had taken it over and, the captive officers said, right off Bias Bay.

Now began what seemed to the children one of the most exciting phases of the adventure—the pirates' attempt to capture a junk to haul their loot ashore. Several hove in sight, shabby, clumsy affairs to look at, but one after another, as the Tungchow took after them, they would up sail and scud away with surprising alacrity.

Not only their will to depart, but the speed they did it with, was surprising. The pirates' customary hail was a rifle shot. One venerable tub, apparently prepared for such mischance, replied in kind, with interest.

Captors and captives watched a knot of men swarming about something in the sterm of the little junk. In a moment they saw it was an anachronistic muzzle-loading cannon. There was a puff of smoke—the junk kicked up its heels like a belabored donkey—a thunderous report, and bolts, nails and pieces of iron rained down over the heads of the men on the Tungchow.

The chief decided to let that one go. An hour later he found another, more to his liking—a large fellow this, and amenable, for its crew consisted of one man, two women and three children. A shouted command, backed up by rifle shots in the style the captives were rapidly becoming accustomed to, brought it quickly alongside while the Tungchow lost way, its propellers idling in the wash.

It meant the departure of the pirates, but no relief for the captives. Disappointed in their search for silver, did these ruthless little men plan to seize children for ransom? While they wondered, one chanced to glance up, perhaps in prayer, and stood transfixed. A few black dots, that had looked like distant gulls, were airplanes! In a moment they were swooping overhead with a roar deafening and sharp and menacing, and on the wings the captives saw the reassuring insignia of the British air force.

For two days and a half, while the Tungchow strayed far, there had been no thought ashore but that it was safely on its way to Chefoo, and the children would soon be back at their books. The report that it was overdue spread instant consternation. It was known to carry no coin or silk or bullion. Its cargo was too bulky to attract looters. What then was their object—kidnaping?

Seventy families beseiged the authorities, native and foreign, civil and military. Chinese warships were ordered out. The British cruiser Suffolk, the sloop Sandwich, and the aircraft-carrier Hermes set out from Hongkong. The planes of the Hermes took to the air, circled over the sea to the north, like a militant, searching flock of gulls.

WHEN they sighted the Tungchow, firing on it was out of the question, but they saw the junk already tied alongside, and swooped low to hasten the pirates' departure for the shore.

It was a hint the raiders were not slow to take. The chief was, if anything, too hasty. Already aboard the captured little hooker, he cut adrift, hoisted sail and headed for land, leaving a number of his followers still on board the steamer.

They threatened to massacre the children unless the Captain, J. G. Smart, arranged for their immunity from punishment. Capt. Smart talked fast, urged that their only chance was a prompt get-away.

Lowering a life-boat they forced the chief officer, the radio operator and five Chinese passengers to get in with them and rowed mightily for the shore, where they released their hostages and scurried inland.

Airplanes flashed the news and stood by. A little while later a destroyer picked up the Tungchow and together they headed for Hongkong. When they dropped anchor here at 2 o'clock the next morning only Ronald Weller was awake. The other children were sleeping as peacefully as in their beds at home. Newspaper men learned from others of Weller's cool hand with his fellows, learned that, coming upon an officer shivering on deck in pajamas—all that the pirates had left him—the boy had handed over his own overcoat to the officer. Ronald made light of everything.

"When my pals hear I've actually been in the hands of pirates from Bias Bay," he grinned—"they'll be green with envy! I wouldn't have missed it for anything.

"But I wish those dashed pirates hadn't stolen the coat I lent the officer."

'The Lady in Gray and Black' Still Unlucky in Love

Why Beautiful Milo Abercrombie's Third Marriage Has Also Gone on the Rocks.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SAN FRANCISCO.

WHEN Ernest Linnenkamp painted his portrait, "The Lady in Gray and Black," his artist's eye may have caught a premonition of tragedy and impending disaster lurking somewhere in the lovely face of his sitter. At that time Milo Abercrombie was acknowledged to be one of the sensational beauties of the world; Linnenkamp himself called her one of America's 15 most beautiful women, and Harrison Fisher gave a concurring professional opinion and praised her lavishly. And now the lady in gray and black has justified the unspoken prophecy; her "wheel is come full circle" and she stands before the world that squandered admiration on her, a tragic, beaten woman, almost forgotten in a secret place of retirement, "somewhere in the West." For the third time Milo Abercrombie is suing for divorce and throwing her private life open to the public. Wealth and position, beauty and children, haven't been enough to prevent her misery and frustration. And no one knows exactly why this should be—beyond the fact that she has found them all passing and unsubstantial.

She has been married three times: first to a German Baron and military attache, second to an American naval Lieutenant, finally to the French nobleman whose passion she is about to have read into the records of a Denver courtroom. Her name now is Milo Abercrombie von Brincken Swenson de Flores, or, for the time being, la Marquise de Flores. She is not yet 40 years old.

About 20 years ago she would have found it hard to believe that any of the following story could have come to pass. Born in Houston, Texas, and educated in an Indiana convent, Milo Abercrombie occupied perhaps the most advantageous position of any young woman in this gay and thriving city. Her family trace their lineage back to Scottish nobility and their American branch has been prominent for many generations. They have produced men prominent in education, government, law and jurisprudence. Milo's father, Gustav Milo Abercrombie, was a successful man; his wife a former beauty. When the girl came home and made her debut at 18 she created a vivid sensation not only among her family's friends, but among the general public as well. When she took the role of the Madonna in an amateur play a magazine devoted its cover to her portrait in costume and newspapers played up the picture. Shortly afterwards she fell in love.

Milo Abercrombie's engagement to young Baron Wilhelm von Brincken, a Lieutenant in the Imperial German Army and military attache to the German Consul-General here, was first page news in all the local papers. The young officer, his handsome and aristocratic features embellished with a couple of honorable saber cuts, was a distinguished match. Their wedding was probably the outstanding social event on the calendar that year. But it was a fated year—1915, the second year of the war—and a fated marriage.

THE honeymoon was interrupted by Brincken's arrest on charges of espionage and breach of neutrality. He was accused of being an important intermediary in German secret service attempts to blow up the Grand Trunk Railway tunnel under the Detroit River, to destroy important Canadian railway tunnels and British ships engaged in transporting munitions from ports in British Columbia to Russia. Many were involved with the Baron, but none was considered more guilty. The United States Government, which assembled 83 witnesses and spent over $50,000 on the case, charged that the honeymoon was a blind for meetings between the Baron and his secret aides. The wedding pictures were circulated up and down the Pacific coast during the time Brincken was being sought.

Milo von Brincken was with her husband during every day of the trial and took an active part in his defense. But when he was convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for the duration of the war and his wife had gone to live with her parents in their Nob Hill apartment, she decided to divorce him. He resisted the suit from his McNeil Island cell, but it was finally granted to the Baroness on the ground that her husband was a convicted felon. She had also testified that he was "unbearably domineering, unreasonably irritable and averse to children."

Within three years the Baroness became engaged to a United States naval officer, Lieutenant Lyman K. Swenson. At last, she announced, she had found what true love was. The marriage occurred in the summer of 1920, two years after her first husband was released from prison. Within three years the Swensons had two children, in addition to the two by Mrs. Swenson's first marriage. And at the end of three years there was another divorce suit.

It was a bitter fight, lasting almost five years and involving sensational recriminations. The beautiful young wife used about every method the law allows to get the custody of her two children. She charged that her husband had mistreated their five-year-old daughter, Cecilia, when she took the child to visit him aboard his ship. Even after the divorce decree had been granted, Mrs. Swenson appeared in court one day with two armed bodyguards and asked that a clause allowing Lieutenant Swenson to see his children when he was in port, be abrogated. The charges she made were strong. She obtained sole custody of the children.

BUT the naval authorities decided to take the Lieutenant's part in the affair, presumably feeling that he had been rendered incapable of defending himself owing to the demands of his naval duties. An investigation was made at the Government's suggestion. When this report—which indicated Mrs. Swenson's charges were unfounded—was presented to the District Court which had granted the mother complete custody of her children, the Judge prepared an order summoning Mrs. Swenson into court within four hours.

Instead of putting in an appearance, Mrs. Swenson decamped with her children and their nurse, leaving the court's jurisdiction and taking up residence in Portland, Oregon. So the Judge ordered the children removed from "the hysterical atmosphere" of their mother's home and gave the husband custody. Milo's mother, who had married a lawyer, George McGowan, after her first husband's death, gave out a report on the occurrences surrounding her daughter's flight, saying that McGowan had vainly insisted on Milo's obeying court orders.

"It was wonderful to see Milo in that moment," she said. "She rose from the table and proudly lifted her beautiful head. 'You have been a good husband to my mother,' she told Mr. McGowan, 'and you have been a good stepfather to me. But I can never obey that order. I will not let Lyman Swenson have these darling children.' With that," her mother continued, "she went out into the night. She had only a few dollars. And she disappeared with the children."

A truce was finally arrived at and Mrs. Swenson returned to San Francisco and an alimony of $150 a month. Within a few months, however, the beautiful Milo was back in court, sobbing of destitution and desertion. "I've been sacrificed," she cried dramatically, "on the altar of motherhood." As a matter of actual fact, Milo Abercrombie was the recipient of public alms; her attorney asked the Associated Charities to try to collect back alimony from her divorced husband The Navy Department replied to a petition from the charity organization that the appeal wasn't "worthy of official notice." Milo and her four children lived with her mother until Mrs. McGowan's death. A few weeks afterwards McGowan himself died of a heart attack and the young woman

The Court That Deals Out Punishment With Two Fists

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

VINCENTOWN, New Jersey.

RECORDER WILLIAM GRADY of this village is dispensing a new type of justice. Instead of saying it with a jail term or imposing a fine, "Judge" Grady, who is to the little borough of 500 inhabitants in Burlington County what a Magistrate or Police Judge is to big cities and a Justice of the Peace is to smaller towns, believes in corporal punishment in the manner of an old-fashioned Top sergeant. In short, he uses his fists.

What's more, Recorder Grady not only dispenses fistic justice himself to the law breakers who are brought before him, but he also gladly instructs them in his art and rewards them generously once they have shown that they are apt pupils of his teachings.

On February 5 one of Recorder Grady's "pupils" appeared before him. The gentleman in question had profited by Recorder Grady's free instructions in the art of fist-swinging and as a result found himself hauled to the office of the Recorder by the police. But Recorder Grady, instead of reprimanding the man, congratulated him.

It all came about because the gentleman in question, one Clifford Pew of Mount Holly, New Jersey, discovered that his wife was receiving and accepting attentions from Auguste Franke, a 22-year-old orderly in the Cooper Hospital in Camden, New Jersey. Pew charged that his wife and Franke were holding clandestine meetings in Vincentown, at the home of Mrs. Frank Alloway, the mother of Mrs. Pew.

Because Clifford Pew resented his wife's friendship with young Franke, he gave her what can only be described as a sound thrashing. For this misdemeanor, Pew was brought before "Judge" Grady. And Grady, who may have picked up a thing or two from the Soviet courts when he visited Russia a few years ago, instead of sentencing Pew to a few days in the "cooler," suggested that he should stop beating his wife and "take a few good pokes at Franke."

Pew, apparently much impressed with the advice, went to the Alloway home. There, as he had expected, he found Auguste Franke. As a matter of fact, Franke opened the door for him. Franke's greeting was more unusual than friendly, for he proceeded to belt Pew over the head with a fence picket. This was the crowning degradation, and Pew, remembering Recorder Grady's words, let loose with a stiff right and good left. The fight went on until, to use Pew's vivid description, he "had punched the guy silly."

Franke and Pew were both arrested. They were taken from the Alloway home in Vincentown to the office of Recorder Grady, which is in one of the ells in his large Colonial farmhouse. When Pew came before Grady, he displayed a broad and happy grin, while Franke tearfully exhibited a large area of black and blue.

Recorder Grady listened to both men and then gave Franke a six months' suspended sentence and fined him $25. The sentence of six months will go into effect if Franke tries to see Mrs. Pew again. To Clifford Pew, Recorder Grady gave congratulations.

Thus Recorder Grady is teaching the people of Vincentown fistic justice. Only a few days before the Pew case, Recorder Grady, who happens to be 5 feet 9, weighs 175 pounds, has jet black eyebrows and picturesque white hair, was the talk of the town when he himself "up and socked" a man brought before him.

Recorder William Grady of Vincentown, N. J.

That time the culprit was John Senski, a Polish woodchopper, who was accused of beating his wife and throwing his 7-year-old son against a wall. Mrs. Senski had sworn out an affidavit declaring that her husband beat her and her son.

IT was, according to Recorder Grady, "a family squabble in the backwoods." He issued a warrant and State troopers brought Senski into the office. With him from the woods came his wife, their 7-year-old son, John Senski Jr., and their year-old baby.

At the time that the State troopers, John Skok and Thomas Forkin, brought in the Senskis, Grady, who is the District Clerk of the Board of Education among his other duties, was holding a meeting on school matters in his office. The State troopers remained for part of the trial, but they left as soon as they saw they would not be needed as a jail escort for the accused.

Recorder Grady read the complaint to Senski and asked if he were guilty or not. Senski told his version of the story and Mrs. Senski told hers. Senski then pleaded guilty of assault and battery on his wife and son. For this offense the Court may impose a fine of $1000 or a sentence of two years in jail or both.

But Grady did not use either. He decided that jail was much too warm and comfortable a place to be accepted as punishment by a man brought in from the snow-covered woods. He also felt that the little Senski family would not be able to get along without the earning power of the big Polish woodchopper.

What Grady did was to step from behind the desk in his office and, in the presence of four Vincentown school teachers, there for the meeting, dispense his own particular brand of justice. Since Mrs. Senski had accused her six-foot, 190-pound mate of hitting her 10 times, Recorder Grady delivered 10 good wallops to the culprit, "on the face, with my open hand, just as hard as I could."

The wife-beater tottered to the floor of the rustic courtroom. In Recorder Grady's words, "He fell down, all right, but I didn't knock him down."

The tenth of the blows which Recorder Grady delivered missed its mark, however, for Grady suddenly found himself attacked from the rear by both Mrs. Senski and John Jr.

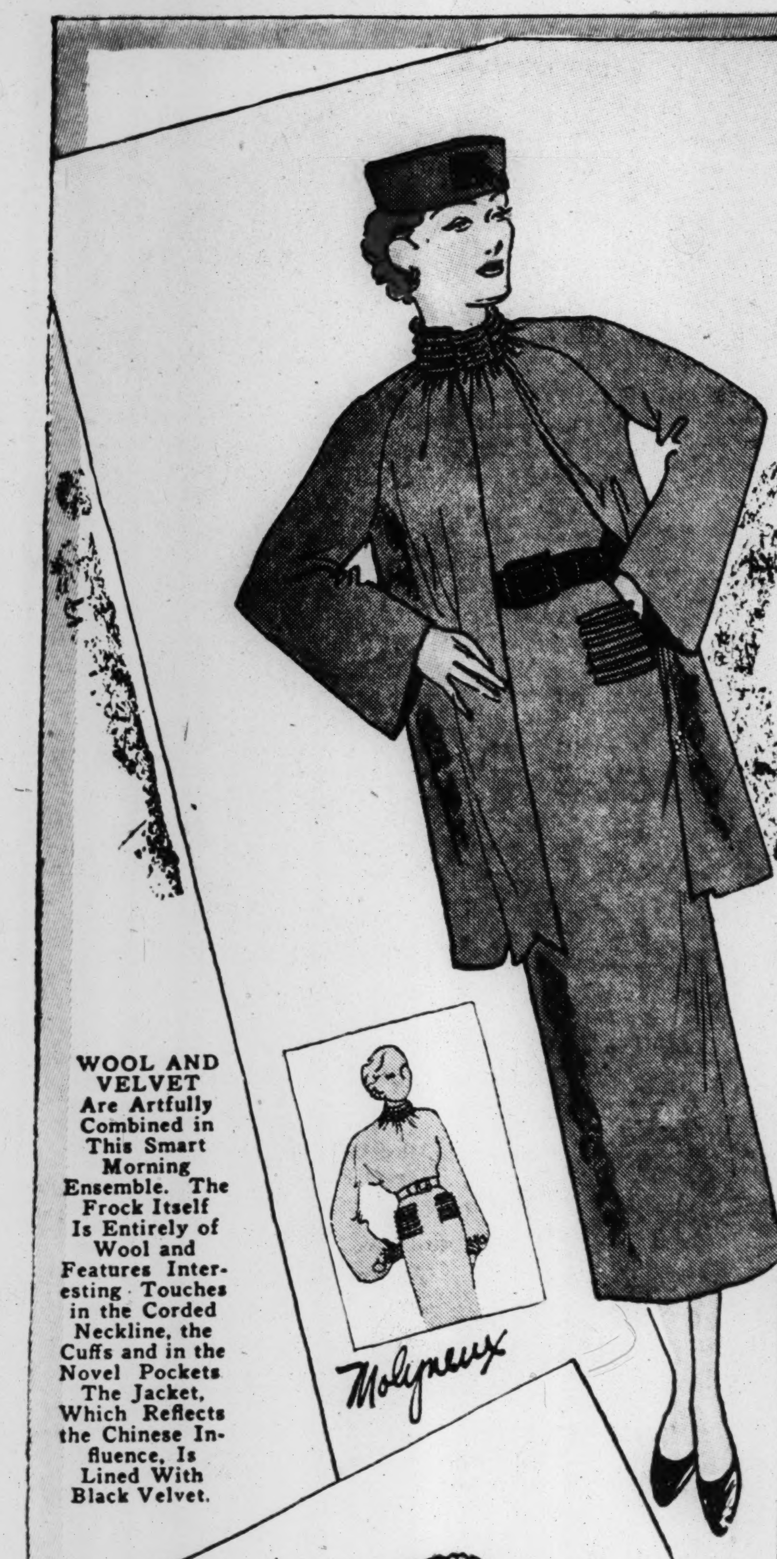
But Grady, hiding a grin, contrived to send them all home in a very chastened mood.

'GLASS' GOWN and COLORED LACE

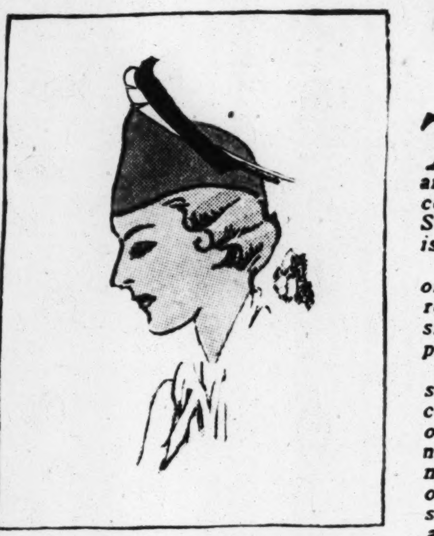
THE Spring season is young enough to be full of exciting surprises, and fashion fads and fancies with which we shall become familiar within the next few months are still novelties. One of the most spectacular feats of the couturieres, about which there has been much curiosity, is Schiaparelli's famous glass evening gown. Viewed at last, it is indeed a triumph of the dressmaker's art.

The one illustrated on this page today is in a lovely shade of candy pink and, created of the new material which greatly resembles cellophane, it presents the smooth and gleaming surface of a well polished mirror.

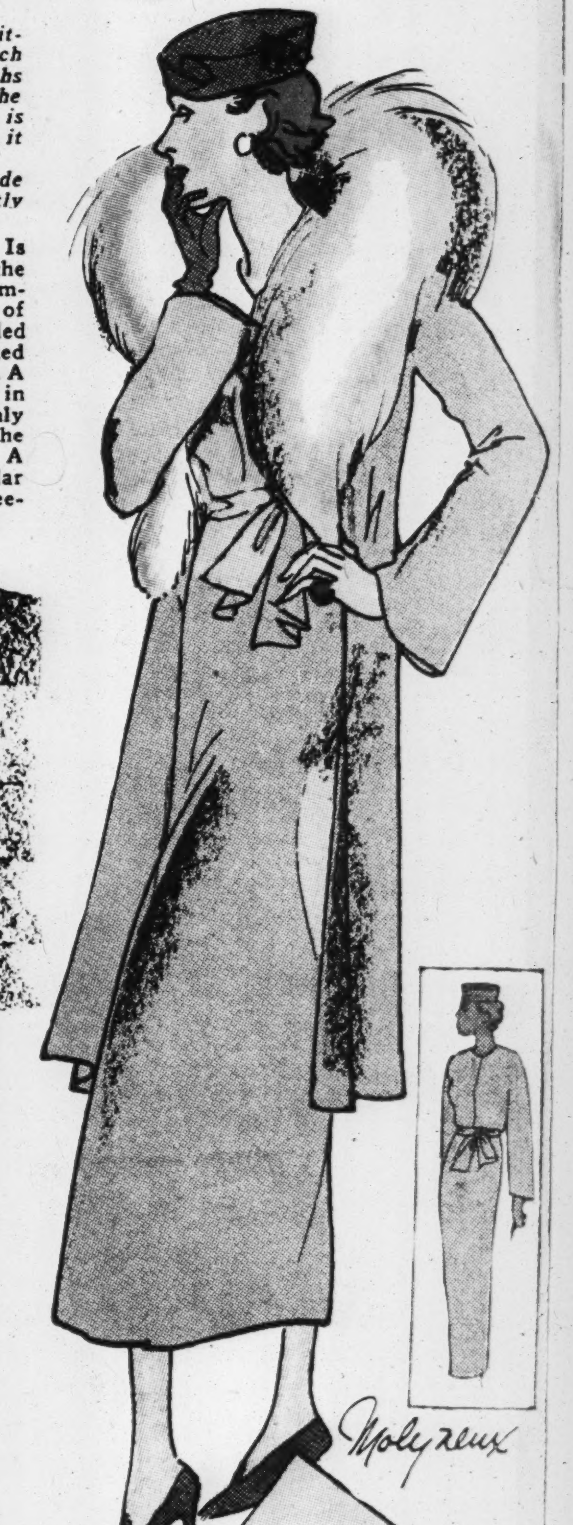
Another novelty to which the new season has given birth is the use of colored lace on street ensembles. Two of today's illustrations feature the new note. On Mainbocher's street frock of navy corded wool, the flattering touch of the lace jabot and handkerchief are self-evident. The black woolen jersey also features the new touch, with its peach-dyed frills at the wrist. Removal of the jacket of this suit reveals that the same colored lace is used as a jabot on the frock itself.



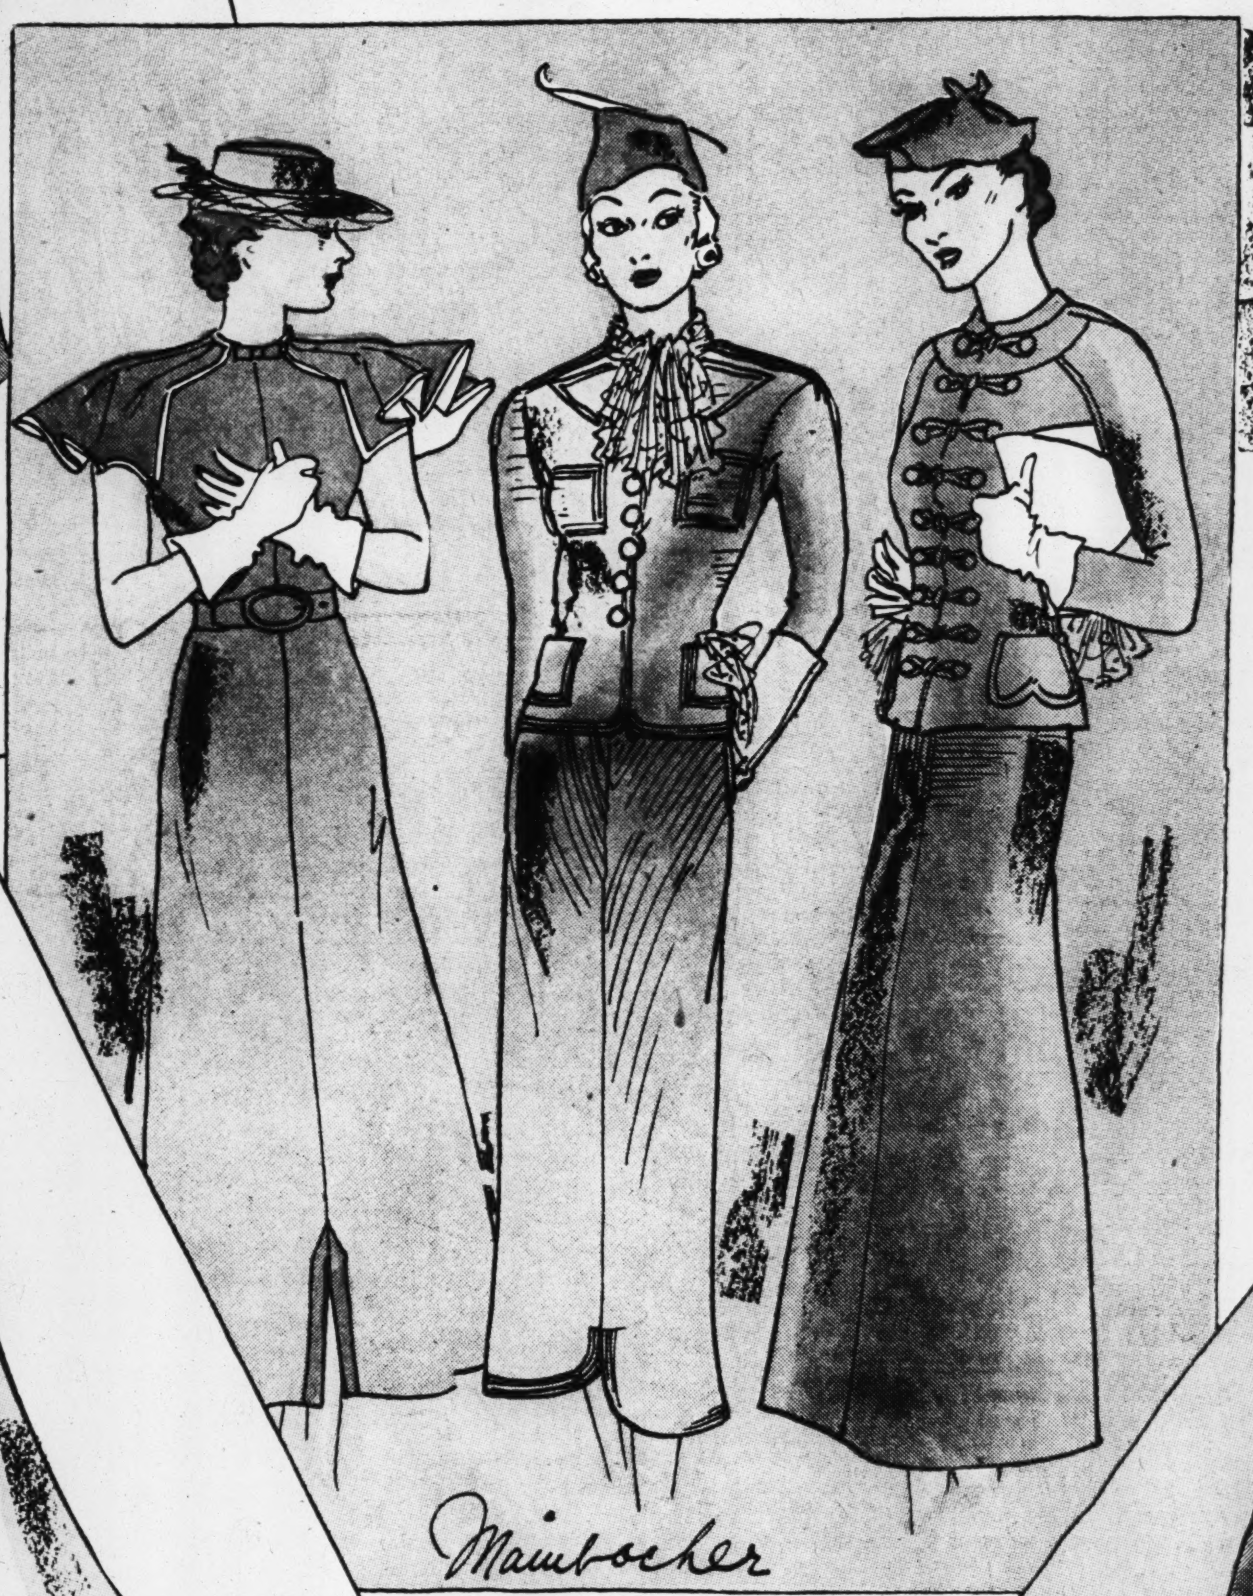
WOOL AND VELVET Are Artfully Combined in This Smart Morning Ensemble. The Frock Itself Is Entirely of Wool and Features Interesting Touches in the Corded Neckline, the Cuffs and in the Novel Pockets The Jacket, Which Reflects the Chinese Influence, Is Lined With Black Velvet.



BLACK AND WHITE Quills on a Navy Blue Felt Combine to Make the Hat Shown Above One of the Season's Smartest.



SIMPLICITY Is the Keynote of the Afternoon Ensemble, at Right, of Beige Crinkled Crepe, Trimmed With Beige Fox. A Self-Belt, Tied in a Bow, Is the Only Trimming on the Frock Itself. A Luxurious Collar Trims the Three-Quarter Coat.



SMART FROCKS FOR SPRING Feature Novel Notes. At Left, a Simple Navy Woolen Sleeveless Street Frock, Depending Solely on the White Pique Lining of Its Shoulder Frills and Piping for Trimming. The Center Model Is Not a Suit but a Dress of Navy Corded Wool, Trimmed at the Borders and Pockets with Double Rows of Self-Piping, with a Navy-Dyed Lace Jabot and Handkerchief to Match. The Military Influence Is Seen in the Suit at Right Which Is of Woolen Jersey. Relieved by Frills of Peach-Dyed Lace at the Wrists.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER
DR. CASTILLO NAJERA

The ONE-WOMAN SHOW—and HOW SHE DOES IT

LOOKING into a "frame" of costume photographs of Cornelia Otis Skinner, monologuist and daughter of the famous actor whose name fits into her own, one finds it hard to trace the likeness through the various characters she portrays. One sees Nell Gwyn, Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves—or any of her three dozen-odd other parts—and tries vainly to find more than a passing resemblance in the group of comely faces behind the gold-rimmed glass. One feature only, an expressive and undefinably unique mouth, is readily recognizable through all the photographed makeups.

On the stage, where all her roles are of her own making, Miss Skinner gives very much the same illusion of divided personality. Since the time of her first six "dreary Park avenue" roles in ordinary plays, about eight years ago, she has written every word she has spoken on the stage, and usually she has also designed her own settings. She admits that there is something of a mental hazard for her in anyone else's lines, that she writes her own sketches and dramatic sequences because she has a bad time making other people's words sound convincing and natural. "An inhibition, probably," she confesses, but she insists that she must "hear" the lines in her head before speaking them.

Obviously, then, the creation of the skits and historical vignettes is as important a part of her work as acting them up and down the country. This involves considerable historical research; the longer pieces—"The Wives of Henry VIII," "The Loves of Charles II," the newly introduced "Mansion on the Hudson"— took about a year each to finish. Yet as a student at Baldwin School and afterwards at college in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania, Miss Skinner loathed and despised history. Even now she isn't quite orthodox in her methods. In her latest long piece, which involves the history of an old house from 1880 to 1934, she simply delved into all the historical material she could lay her hands on—books, magazines, miscellaneous newspapers—until she had steeped herself in the events, the ideology and the language of her periods. Much of this work was done on trains and in hotels, some of it at home (7 Gracie Square, New York City) and nearly all of it with the services of Manhattan's oldest private subscription library—the New York Society Library.

TO GET so much done in the midst of a hectically active life requires unusual energy and high degree of mental poise. One cannot be in a room with Miss Skinner for 10 minutes without realizing that she is well endowed with both to say nothing of such other qualities as originality, intense curiosity about things and people, and enormous social charm. Besides keeping up with the latest books on a large variety of subjects, devouring Dickens and Balzac while on trains, bringing up her red-haired, 6-year-old son, Otis Skinner Blodget, traveling, riding horseback, leading an active (though not an excessively social) life when she is at home, Miss Skinner manages to write a number of magazine articles of humorous type, in addition to her dramatic writing. Privately she is the wife of a New York broker, Alden S. Blodget.

Miss Skinner resents bitterly the implication which critics have sometimes made that she is merely a Junior Leaguer and Social Registerite filling in spare time with her acting. She points out that she was born and bred into the theater and that her social affiliations are little more than a concession to her husband. As a matter of fact she dislikes lavish functions, enjoys quiet and unbroken conversation.

Partly because she herself is a mother, perhaps, Miss Skinner is keenly interested in children and recalls her own lively girlhood with zest. She says she is thinking of doing a new dramatic skit showing schoolgirls putting on a play in their French class. She sketches the characters — the primly correct schoolmistress, the inevitable little girl with a long black beard—and adds: "I certainly ought to know something about it, too. Didn't I myself once play Lady Macbeth to Ann Harding's Macduff!"

It must have been an amusing childhood, what with the Vermont summer camp, where she learned to despise bats and "anything that flutters like a moth;" the time when it was discovered by her fond and genial father that she carried on her intense correspondence with him so that she could sell his autograph to classmates for pin money. . . . Her childhood was a thing of adventurous ups and down. The Skinners rode in the finest limousines when they were flush—and walked when they were broke. Once, when walking had worn out all her shoes and she was badly in need of a hat, she went to town to shop with her last $25. And came home with an enormous paper weight for her father, a paper weight that was so irresistibly fine that she had squandered almost every cent of the money on it, and come back in the same tired shoes, the same drooping hat.

MISS SKINNER wasn't long in discovering that her vocation was to have something to do with the stage. When she was through at Bryn Mawr and at the Sorbonne in Paris, she got a "bit" part in her father's play, "Blood and Sand." She was in six other plays subsequently, but without prominence or glory. And when she was only 24 she wrote a play, "Captain Fury," and saw it produced, her father in the leading role.

Then her friends, being impressed with her talent for mimicry, suggested that she take up the art of the diseuse. At the time there were only two successful actresses in this profession, but the talents of Ruth Draper and Angna Enters should have been enough to discourage another from entering it. They didn't. And Cornelia Otis Skinner was able to find a new method and style which contributed a significant type of performance to the monologuist's art. Her historical dramatic sequences are new, and with them she hopes to elevate the range and possibilities of the medium, so that "monologue should approach more and more to the theater until it is recognized as a legitimate offspring—and not a left branch of the concert stage."

She had hoped that Francis Hackett, author of "Henry the Eighth" and an authority on the sixteenth century, would help her with her first sequence, but he was abroad and she had to work out the facts and the method by herself. The result was "The Wives of Henry VIII." Unable at first to get a hearing for it in London, where she had wanted to make her solo debut, she accepted an invitation from her friends, the Sackville-Wests, to give the first public performance at their famous old country house, Knole, Sevenoaks, in surroundings reminiscent of Tudor England. It went very well, to her surprise. ("I really don't believe in uncanny things"), and it continued to go well when she brought it back to New York. It is still going, and was highly successful when Miss Skinner gave two performances during her recent engagement in St. Louis.

Miss Skinner has her tours spaced in such a way that she can spend as much time as possible with her family, but she feels a strong pull towards the stage always, and, unlike many actresses, experiences not the slightest tremor in "going on," calmly giving interviews while she finishes making up for her first sketch. When she goes away she packs an armful of books which she mails home to herself after she has finished them. Her friends twit her over the elaborate travel arrangements she makes now and remind her of her early American tours, when she wandered about alone. She is now well staffed, with maid, electrician, property man and manager, but one suspects this is done for simplicity rather than for effect. In spite of her urbanity and an atmosphere of New York that clings to everything in her manner, at 34 she still retains some of the directness and all of the simplicity of a little girl, continues to hate bats and birds, things that flutter and a small white parrot which her friend William Beebe brought her from the West Indies. She loves trains, New York, late suppers for six or eight people and rides sidesaddle because she is terrified of falling off a horse; her husband, a fine horseman, has almost broken her of this fear. He is reconciled to her career.

Mexico's Poet-Soldier-Scientist Becomes Ambassador to Washington

MEXICO, D. F.

A POET, an authority on yellow fever, master of several languages, confidential adviser to a President of Mexico, expert chess player, skillful surgeon—these are a few of the qualities which go to make up the personality of Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, ambassador from Mexico to the United States.

And, withal, Dr. Castillo Najera is known as one of the most "human" of human beings; one who likes to smoke a little, drink a little, and yet without indulging to excess.

With these characteristics also goes that of great kindness, for which the new envoy to Washington is famous.

Anyone who discusses this diplomat immediately associates his name with "culture." Conventional society in Mexico has always respected him for his education, his excellent mind, his sincerity and his encyclopedic knowledge. Dr. Castillo Najera, however, has not always been too respectful towards the ways and manners of conventional society. He has disliked the snob and the "social climber," and the atmosphere of formal social gatherings. He has been a severe critic of his friends when he considered their conduct unbecoming, and is said to have lost several friends through this quality of sincere frankness. And yet, this has not been an obstacle in his diplomatic career, for he is today considered one of the most capable and competent men in the Mexican diplomatic service.

One of the most socially minded men to appear in Mexican public life, Dr. Castillo Najera has preferred the company of other active intelligences like his own. A participant in the Mexican Revolution which overthrew the dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz, and started Mexico on the road to a new social epoch, the Doctor frequently has expressed the opinion that the Mexican Revolution will have to go much further before it can benefit the broad masses of the Mexican nation. While in Mexico he was often heard in animated discussion with persons of advanced ideas.

Dr. Castillo Najera has a definite penchant for literature, especially poetry. In 1916 he published his first volume of poetry, reflecting his experiences on the battlefield with the insurgents of the Mexican Revolution.

His active entrance into politics dates from 1913, when as President of the Board of Health of Saltillo, Coahuila, he joined the movement headed by Governor Venustiano Carranza against the counter-revolutionary dictatorship of General Victoriano Huerta. He was soon promoted to a colonelcy, and by 1915 had reached the rank of Brigadier-General. In 1917 he was named sub-director of the military hospital in Mexico City, and in 1920 he requested and was granted unlimited leave of absence from the army.

Throughout his varied activity, participating in practically every movement for social progress in Mexico, Dr. Najera continued his attachment to literature. While Minister to Belgium, he published in 1931 a compilation and criticism called "A Century of Belgian Poetry," which has since become a standard work on the subject.

Another description of Dr. Castillo Najera often heard in the circles where he moves is that he is "a man of character." Where in another personality this trait might lead to sternness or forbidding Puritanism, in this physician-poet it only serves to emphasize his sincerity. He speaks slowly, distinctly, and is sure of what he is saying, before he expresses an opinion.

These characteristics, and the fact that with them was good, solid political sense, brought Dr. Castillo Najera closer and closer to General Alvaro Obregon, when the latter was President of Mexico, and ultimately Dr. Castillo Najera became confidential adviser—on matters of state—to the President. Obregon was extremely fond of Dr. Castillo Najera and was unstinted in demonstrating his affection, especially after the doctor had successfully brought about recovery of one of Obregon's children.

Dr. Castillo Najera, 50 years old, is married and has four children. In the United States he would be considered a "fireside husband," not being addicted to outdoor pastimes.

Professionally, Dr. Castillo Najera has the reputation among other doctors of being one of the most skilled surgeons of his country. But, besides his private practice, the new Ambassador to Washington has devoted a great part of his time to active leadership of movements on behalf of public health in Mexico, and during his term as head of the Federal Public Health Department introduced many important measures.

He was responsible for organization of the first national convention which met to fight the spread of venereal diseases. In 1927 he organized the anti-narcotic educational movement, and during the same year became a member of the National Reclamation Commission.

Among diplomatic posts he has held are the following: Minister to Belgium, Minister to China, representative of the Mexican Government in the Twelfth International Congress of Medical Hydrology and Climatology, Minister to Holland, president of the Mexican delegation in the "Conference on Care of the Wounded and Sick of the Armies in the Field" at Geneva, Mexican delegate to the World Disarmament Conference, 1932; Minister to France and Minister to the League of Nations.

HE HAS, besides, been head of military hospitals and civil sanitation services in various parts of the country, professor of pathology in various schools, president of the special commission for study of the anti-tuberculosis campaign, member of the National Claims Commission.

Dr. Castillo Najera has been decorated with the gold medal of the Spanish Red Cross, the medal and plaque of the Academy of Sciences and Arts of Cadiz and the Cross of Military Merit.

Among his honorary distinctions are: Member of National Academy of Medicine, charter member of the Mexican Biological Society; vice-president of the Mexican Humanitarian Association; member of the American Public Health Association; charter member of the Franco-Mexican Medical Association; member of the Central Epidemic Prevention Board of Peking; member of the Academy of Science of Lima; member of the College of Military Surgeons of North America.

Death Fails to Take a Holiday in St. Louis' Streets

he says are needed, enforcement would be unsuccessful if the accepted attitude towards "fixing" remains unchanged, it is maintained.

While the extent of the practice of settling cases out of courts on a privilege basis is said to have declined in recent weeks, the problem potentially is as big as ever, because it has been commonly accepted as a means of doing political favors, both in the old and present administrations.

"Fixing" can take place at a number of points in the present system. The custom has been for Judges to hear special pleas for exemption and leniency either before or after court sessions in their chambers. This has frequently involved intercession by a third person (a political worker, office holder or influential friend), though special leniency has always been the prerogative of the Police Court Judge, and justice is frequently tempered when applied to the shorn lamb of the depression. Police Court Judges are regularly and daily approached by third persons who want trials quashed or fines remitted.

Fines in traffic convictions are sometimes stayed on probation or good behavior. Of $611,213 assessed by Police Judges last year, $59,629 was paid and $107,878 was commuted to workhouse sentences. Of the $443,706 this leaves to account for, $300,217.50 was not paid because defendants managed to have fines stayed or partially remitted. The number of fines stayed or reduced after trial is about 16,000. Traffic fine receipts were $144,212 in prosperous 1926; $124,519 in depression year 1931.

Many are the plans suggested to aid the traffic problem. Director McDevitt advocates elevated highways and a driver's license subject to confiscation. Mayor Dickmann announces he wants every traffic case tried on its merits. Police Judge Vest thinks a material improvement in the "fixing" state of mind can't occur until prominent citizens stop trying to avoid appearing in police court when arrested. Dr. William P. Donovan, Assistant Hospital Commissioner, says drivers' physical examinations should be periodic, increasing in frequency with age. A. W. Koehler of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, citing that states requiring examination have had 25 per cent reduction in fatalities, while those having drivers' license but not requiring examination have had increases of 7 per cent, advocates strict examinations. Professor Israel Treiman of Washington University Law School believes a complete revision of the lower court system would aid the enforcement problem. Major Lambert feels that until the average cruisng speed of St. Louis drivers is voluntarily reduced from its present estimated rate of 58.7 feet a second (40 miles an hour), the traffic problem will continiue despite any accomplishments in other lines.

'The Lady in Gray and Black'

was left "practically alone in her responsibilities.

Then generous relatives in the South decided to do something for her. She was given enough money to move East with her children, and she settled quietly in Washington. It was there that she met the Marquis Pedro J. C. C. de Flores; just five years ago they were married in Reno. The wedding was a surprise even to their closest friends, but according to all indications it seemed destined to be more successful than any of Milo's previous ventures. They divided their time between New York and Washington. For a time they were extremely happy.

And then, a few weeks ago, the Marquis filed suit for divorce, alleging, among other things, that when they were married he had not known of his wife's previous experiences in marriage. To refute this, the Marquise has ordered her attorney, Marcus Lorne Samuels of San Francisco, to include in his defense some of the love letters in which she says her present husband mentioned the names of the two others and of the four children.

"My Milo, my only love," the writer addresses her in one letter the Marquis is said to have written. "By God, please believe in my love. I love you with all my soul; with all my heart. . . . Nothing in life can destroy my love for you. . . . Darling, you must have confidence in my love, as you are the only one in my heart. . . . My darling, remember you are the soul of my soul, the life of my life, and without you all would be darkness for me. . . . God protect you and your children, my Milo. I will not forget you, my dove, for one moment. I am always near you in my soul.

"Julio, for always."

So now Milo Abercrombie's name is back in the divorce courts again—"the lady in gray and black" has come from being a celebrated beauty, the cynosure of all eyes, through three unsuccessful marriages and impoverishment, to an unidentified retreat "somewhere in the West."

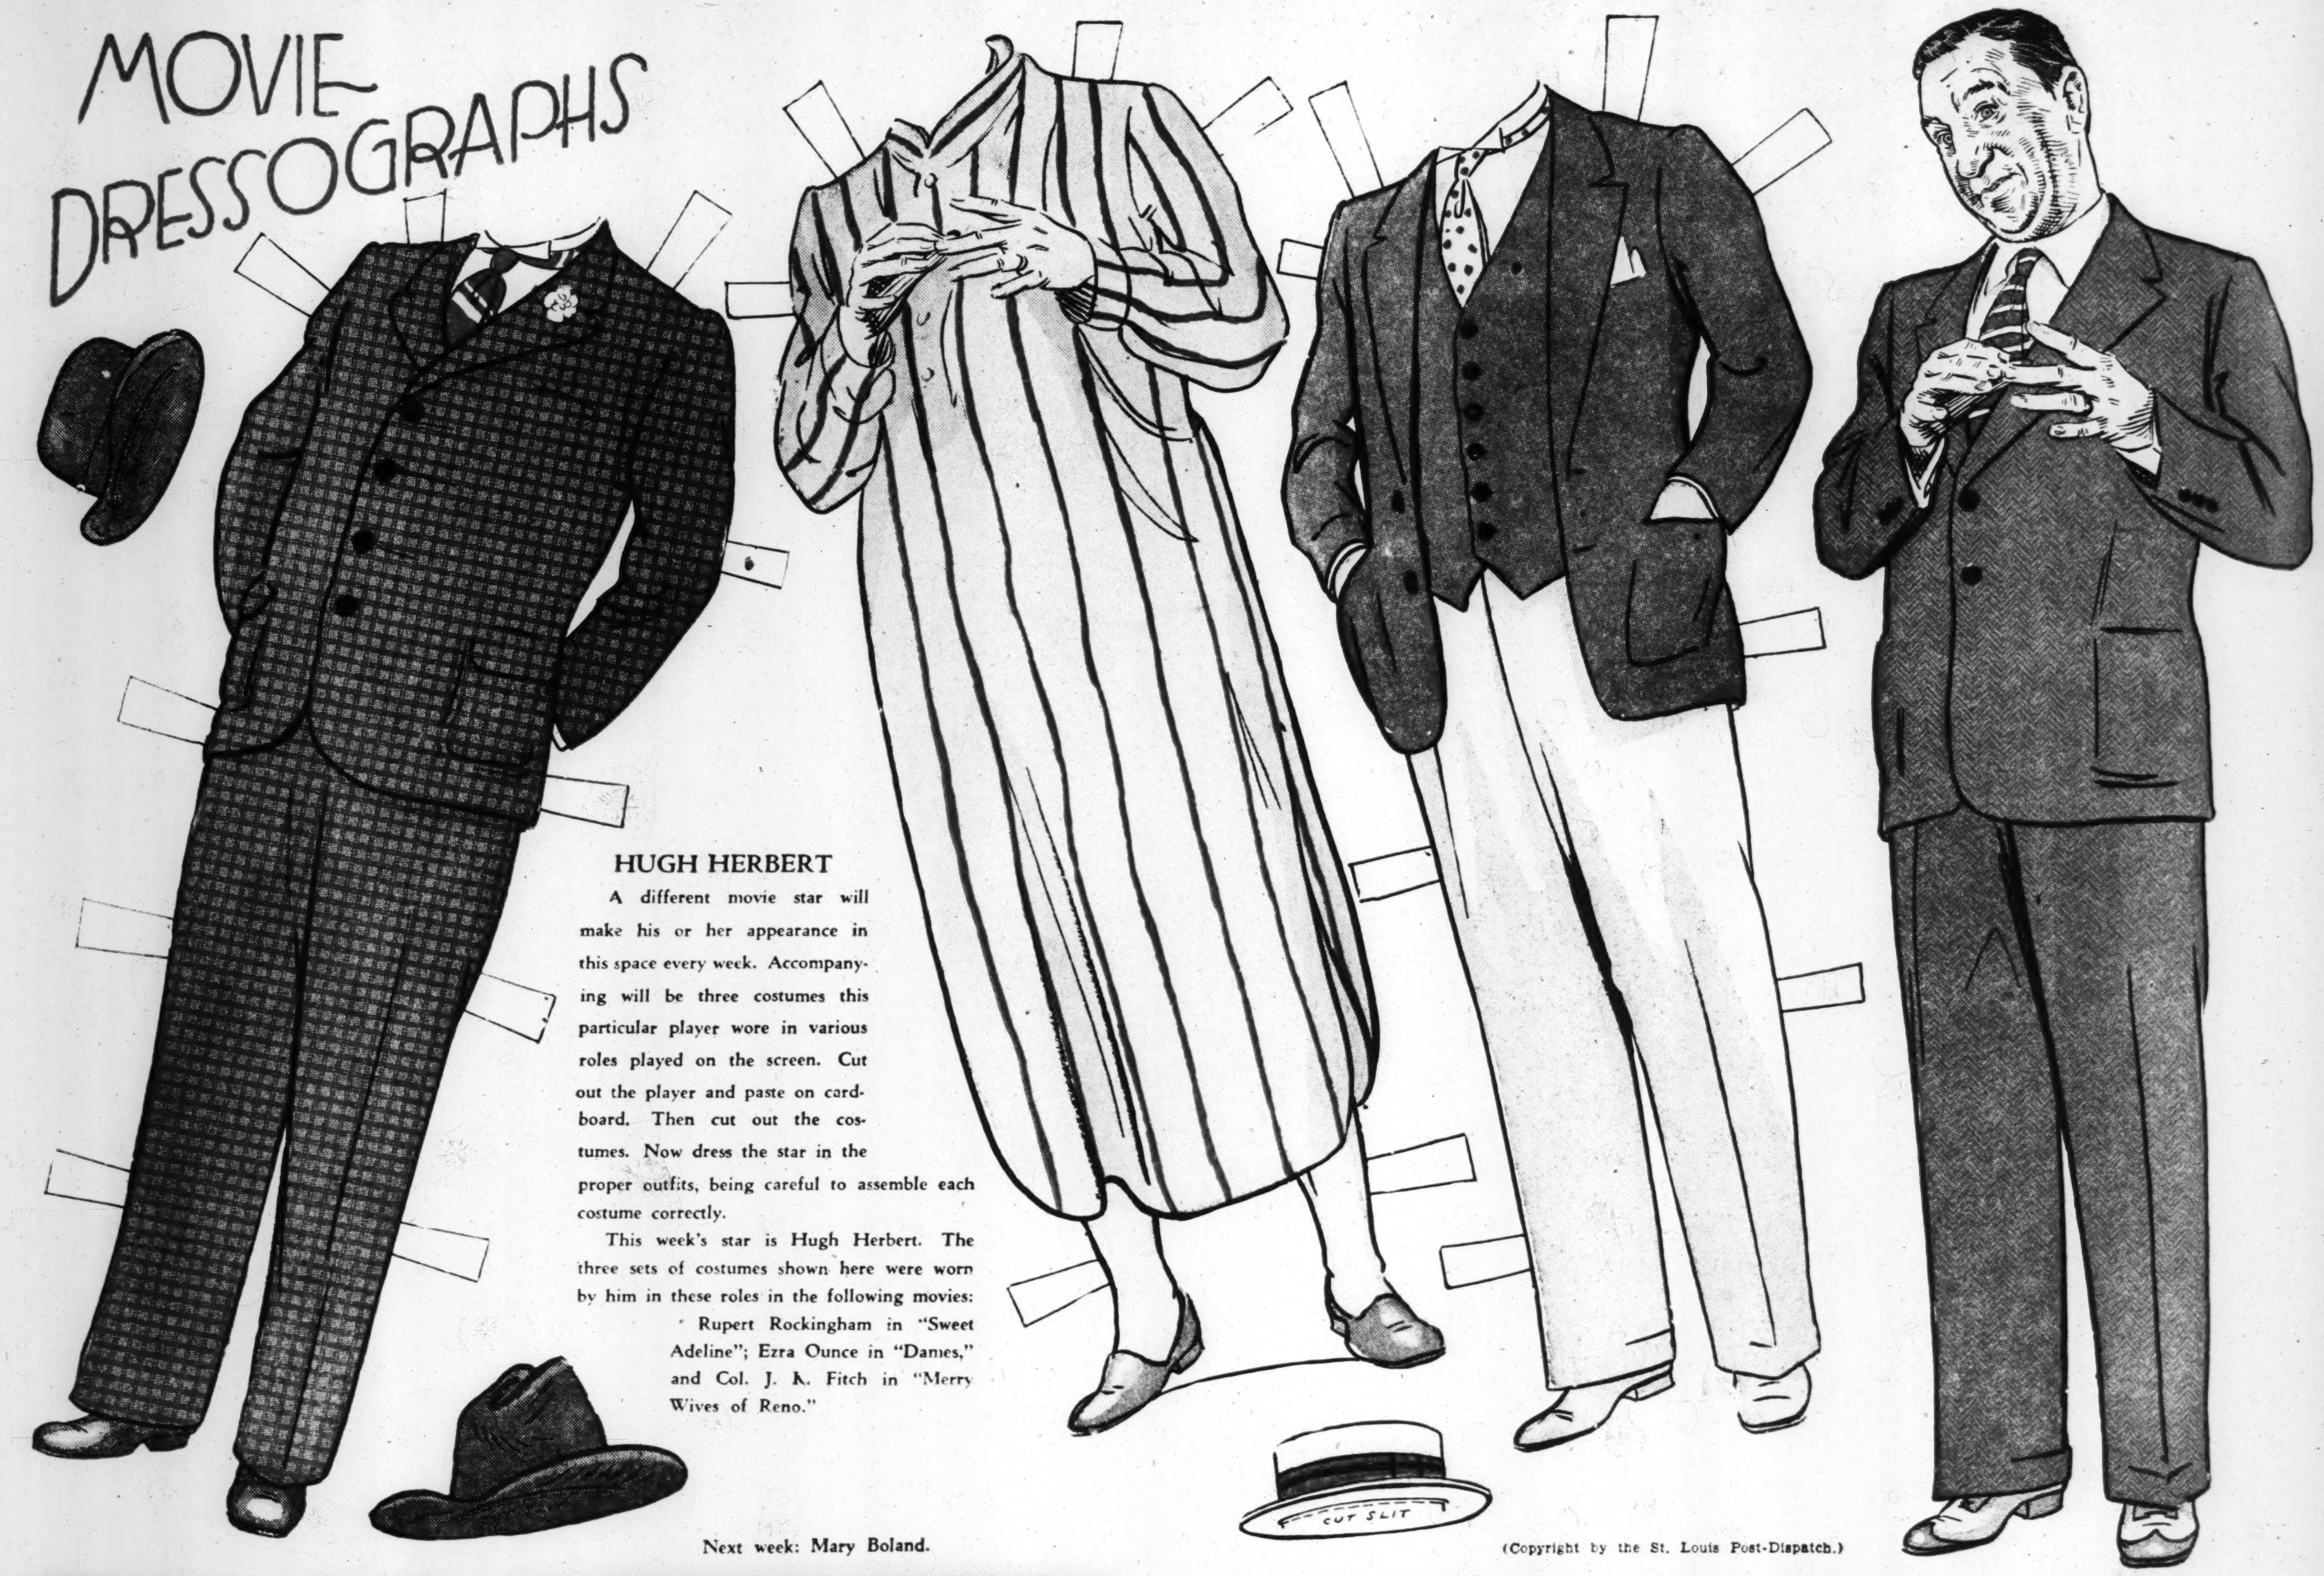
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS



HUGH HERBERT

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is Hugh Herbert. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by him in these roles in the following movies:

Rupert Rockingham in "Sweet Adeline"; Ezra Ounce in "Dames," and Col. J. K. Fitch in "Merry Wives of Reno."

Next week: Mary Boland.

HOME AGAIN

THE CHARACTERS

BUDDY AND BOB BUNNY—Two little rabbits who were guests of King Winter in the Land of Snow.

BILL BUNNY — The little Bunnys' father.

BETTY BUNNY—Their mother.

King Winter initiated Buddy and Bob Into the Royal Order of the Denizens of the Far North. Then, in order to make the little Bunnys white, like the other members of the order, he turned them into snow. This made the Bunnys as light as snowflakes. And, when they saw that they could dance in the breeze like the Snowflakes, they lost no time in dancing down to their home in dear old Hickory Hollow. And we see them dancing with a group of Snowflakes as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BUDDY BUNNY—Hurrah! We're home again.

BOB BUNNY — Isn't it great! I wonder if Mother and Dad are up? (Just then the wind dies down and the Bunnys and the Snowflakes fall to earth. Buddy and Bob scramble to their feet and dash for the door and start to enter, but their mother shoves them out and closes the door. As they stand outside they hear their mother talking to their dad.)

BETTY BUNNY—The snow is packed so solidly against this door that it pushed it open and some of it fell in. I'm frightened, Bill.

BILL BUNNY—Frightened?

BETTY BUNNY—Yes. When I pushed that snow out I heard Buddy and Bob calling me.

BILL BUNNY—There, there, now. The snow has got on your nerves. I'll go and shovel it away. (So Bill takes his shovel and goes out and is soon hard at work shoveling snow.)

BILL BUNNY—(Talking to himself.) Poor Betty, she's never been the same since Buddy and Bob disappeared. (Suddenly he stops shoveling.) I'd swear I heard Buddy and Bob yell. (And Bill was right, for in that last shovel of snow were Buddy and Bob. The boys watch their dad stop shoveling and go into the house, and start to cry.)

BUDDY BUNNY—What good is there in being home when mother and dad don't know us?

ST. LOUIS STREET SCENE—A homely drama of everyday life as viewed from a third story window at Eighth and Chestnut streets. In the first picture an automobile has swooped around the corner and struck a vegetable and fruit cart, upsetting its contents. The driver of the automobile has alighted and may be seen at the extreme right of the picture, gazing with mixed feelings at the damage he has caused. But by the time the gathering crowd thickens—in the second picture—and a policeman has arrived the driver has disappeared. In the third picture the crowd, still larger and growing all the time, watches the luckless vegetable man put his wares back in order. These snapshots were made by Edna Day of St. Louis, an amateur contributor.

An orchid garden in the drowned forest of the Rio Pequeni. Such trees as this proved fertile sources of parasitical plant life which would have been hard to reach save for the rising waters.

This group of pictures was made by members of the joint scientific tour sent out by Washington University and Missouri Botanical Garden under Dr. Carroll Dodge, who is connected with both institutions. Recent completion of a 170-foot power and flood-control dam at Alahuela near the Panama Canal enabled the party to make unique studies of plant life at tree-top level in hitherto almost inaccessible jungles, now submerged. Besides some wild animals, the expedition brought back about 1800 plant species (some not yet classified) including orchids and bromeliads for Shaw's Garden. Dr. Julian Steyermark and Paul Allen, both of Missouri Botanical Garden, accompanied Dr. Dodge; Allen has remained with the manager of the Garden's tropical station in Balboa.

SAPPO, I'VE HIRED SOME MEN TO MAKE YOUR NOSE GROW IN A CIRCLE. THE END OF IT WILL SOON BE HERE
AND, SAPPO, I'VE INVENTED A "CELL-DIMINISHER". IT WILL MAKE YOUR NOSE SHORT AGAIN
REALLY?!! HOO-RAY!
YEAH, REALLY
OKAY, MEN, RIGHT THROUGH THIS WINDOW
I CAN'T BELIEVE THAT THIS IS THE END OF MY NOSE
I'LL HOLD A MATCH TO IT AND IF I FEEL A PAIN I'LL KNOW THAT IT IS JUST AS I THOUGHT— IT'S NOT MY NOSE— I DIDN'T FEEL IT BURN
YOU WILL FEEL IT BURN PRETTY QUICK
OUCH! !
YOU SEE, YOUR NOSE IS SO LONG IT TOOK THREE MINUTES FOR THE PAIN TO GET TO YOU!
3-10
NOW I'LL PUT SOME CELL-DIMINISHER SALVE ON IT AND SEE IF IT WORKS SUCCESS!

THERE ISN'T A THING HERE I DARE EAT! I'VE GOT TO BE VERY CAREFUL OF MY DIET, MISS JANE!
IT JUST SEEMS THAT EVERYTHING I COOK IS UNSATISFACTORY TO MR. PENNYPACKER, MISS OLIVIA
HE'S A GOOD PAYING BOARDER AND YOU DON'T WANT TO LOSE HIM -- LISTEN, I'VE AN IDEA —
AND YOU'LL HELP US, MRS DE WITT ?
GLADLY! AS SOON AS I GIVE BURBANK HIS BOTTLE AND TUCK HIM IN HIS CRIB
THERE WON'T BE ANY REASON FOR THE OLD GENTLEMAN TO COMPLAIN ABOUT THIS MEAL
I'M NOT THE KIND TO BRAG, BUT MY HUSBAND USED TO RAVE ABOUT MY COOKING—AND HE WAS SO FINICKY, TOO!
THE CAKE'S DONE AND IF I DO SAY SO, IT'S PERFECT
IT'S AWFULLY SWEET OF YOU GIRLS GOING TO SO MUCH TROUBLE TO HELP ME
MR. PENNYPACKER, DINNER IS SERVED

NO, I DIDN'T. NO - UH-UH - I SHOULD SAY NOT - NO.
OH, I WOULDN'T TELL YOU I DIDN'T IF I DID THAT'S NOT LIKE ME. NO-UH-UH.
WELL, IF YOU SAY YOU SENT THE LETTER, OF COURSE ----- WELL - THEN, YOU SENT THE LETTER.
— ONLY I DIDN'T GET THE LETTER!
CERTAINLY NOT! I'M NOT CALLING YOU A STORY TELLER.
WELL, HOW CAN YOU THINK I SAID SUCH A THING? I JUST SAID I DIDN'T GET THE LETTER.
ALL RIGHT, YOU SENT IT. I TAKE YOUR WORD FOR IT, AN' YOU MAILED IT DAY BEFORE YESTERDAY. JUST THE SAME I NEVER GOT IT. BESIDES, I KNOW I'M NOT GOIN' TO GET A LETTER AFTER 48 HOURS. BUT THEN, IF YOU SAY YOU SENT IT, YOU SENT IT!
ONLY I DIDN'T GET IT.
OH, DON'T TAKE IT THAT WAY - YOU MIGHT HAVE SENT IT FOR ALL I KNOW. WHAT? HEAVENS NO - YOU GOT ME WRONG. WHY CERTAINLY YOU SENT IT.
BUT WHAT KIND OF A GUY WOULD I BE TO SAY I GOT IT WHEN I DIDN'T. THERE! THERE! DON'T TAKE IT LIKE THAT — YOU SENT IT ALL RIGHT —

GEORGE THIS IS THE FOURTH NIGHT YOU'VE SAT UP UNTIL ALL HOURS FUSSING WITH THAT INCOME TAX. WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO BED?
IN A FEW MINUTES.
NOW LET'S SEE WHAT OTHER ITEM WILL HELP ME SHAVE A FEW CORNERS?
AH! HERE'S ONE. BAD DEBTS.
OH OH! IS THAT THE BELL?
I WONDER WHO'S AT THE DOOR THIS TIME OF NIGHT?
OH HOW DO YOU DO, SIR? WHAT..? MY WORD! UNCLE SAM HIMSELF!
YES, MR BUNGLE. I STEPPED UP HERE TO ASK IF YOU COULD DO A LITTLE BETTER THIS YEAR THAN LAST ON YOUR TAXES?
TAXES? WELL UNCLE, THINGS HAVE NOT BEEN SO HOT WITH ME. LAST YEAR I HAD LOTS OF EXPENSE AND...
EXPENSE? OH DON'T GET ME STARTED ON THAT SUBJECT. I'LL NEED EVERY NICKEL OF TAXES I CAN GET. EVERY LAST COPPER.
AHEM! SPEAKING OF TAXES, HOW DO YOU FEEL? I MEAN DON'T YOU THINK THEY'RE PLENTY HIGH?
HIGH? WELL JUMPING BEESWAX DO YOU KNOW WHAT FELLOWS IN OTHER COUNTRIES PAY? DO YOU?
OH I HAVEN'T GONE INTO THE MATTER DEEPLY, UNCLE, BUT...
YOU DON'T KNOW, DO YOU? BUT YOU'RE READY TO JUMP ALL OVER ME, EH? OH IT'S THINGS LIKE THIS THAT JUST MAKES ME SICK AND TIRED, BUNGLE.
NOW UNCLE, DON'T GET EXCITED. WHEN I SAID EXPENSES I MEANT...
YOU DIDN'T HOLLER ABOUT EXPENSE WHEN I WAS CATCHING THOSE PUBLIC ENEMIES THAT MADE YOU AFRAID TO GO OUT AFTER DARK, DID YOU?
OH I'LL ADMIT THAT WAS A GOOD JOB, UNCLE, BUT...
DON'T TELL ME ABOUT EXPENSE. WHY, I BUILT ONE NEW JAIL LAST WEEK THAT COST ME.... LET ME GET THOSE FIGURES OUT OF MY POCKET. HERE'S A SNAPSHOT OF THE JAIL. LOOK.
A JAIL? YES, IT IS NICE.
ALL DOUBLE-BARRED... A BIG STEEL DOOR ON THE FRONT OF IT. THIS STRONG HIGH WALL RUNNING AROUND IT. THERE'S A HONEY OF A JAIL. LOOK.
YES IT'S FINE... AH... I DON'T LIKE TO RUSH YOU, UNCLE, BUT I'M BUSY... AND THE DOOR IS OVER THIS WAY.
I'VE GOT SOME PHOTOS OF ANOTHER JAIL I INTEND TO PUT UP IN THIS TOWN. YES, HERE IT IS. LOOK! THAT'S BETTER THAN THE OTHER ONE. STRONGER.
AND HERE'S ANOTHER ONE. ARE YOU INTERESTED IN JAILS? WELL LET ME SHOW YOU SOME SNAPSHOTS OF A JAIL THAT IS A JAIL. I'LL JUST TAKE A MOMENT.
AHEM! SORRY.... SOME OTHER TIME. THINK I HEAR MY WIFE CALLING ME. GOOD BYE, UNCLE.

GEORGE, WAKE UP! GEORGE BUNGLE I'VE BEEN CALLING YOU FOR THE LONGEST TIME. GEORGE!
WHAT'S THAT YOU SAID, UNCLE..?
OH I HEAR YOU, JO. I'M AWAKE NOW.
AGAIN I ASK YOU, WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO BED?
RIGHT NOW. I'M DONE WITH THE INCOME TAX. THAT IS, I MEAN I WON'T HAVE TO DO AS MUCH FIGURING ON IT AS I THOUGHT I WOULD.

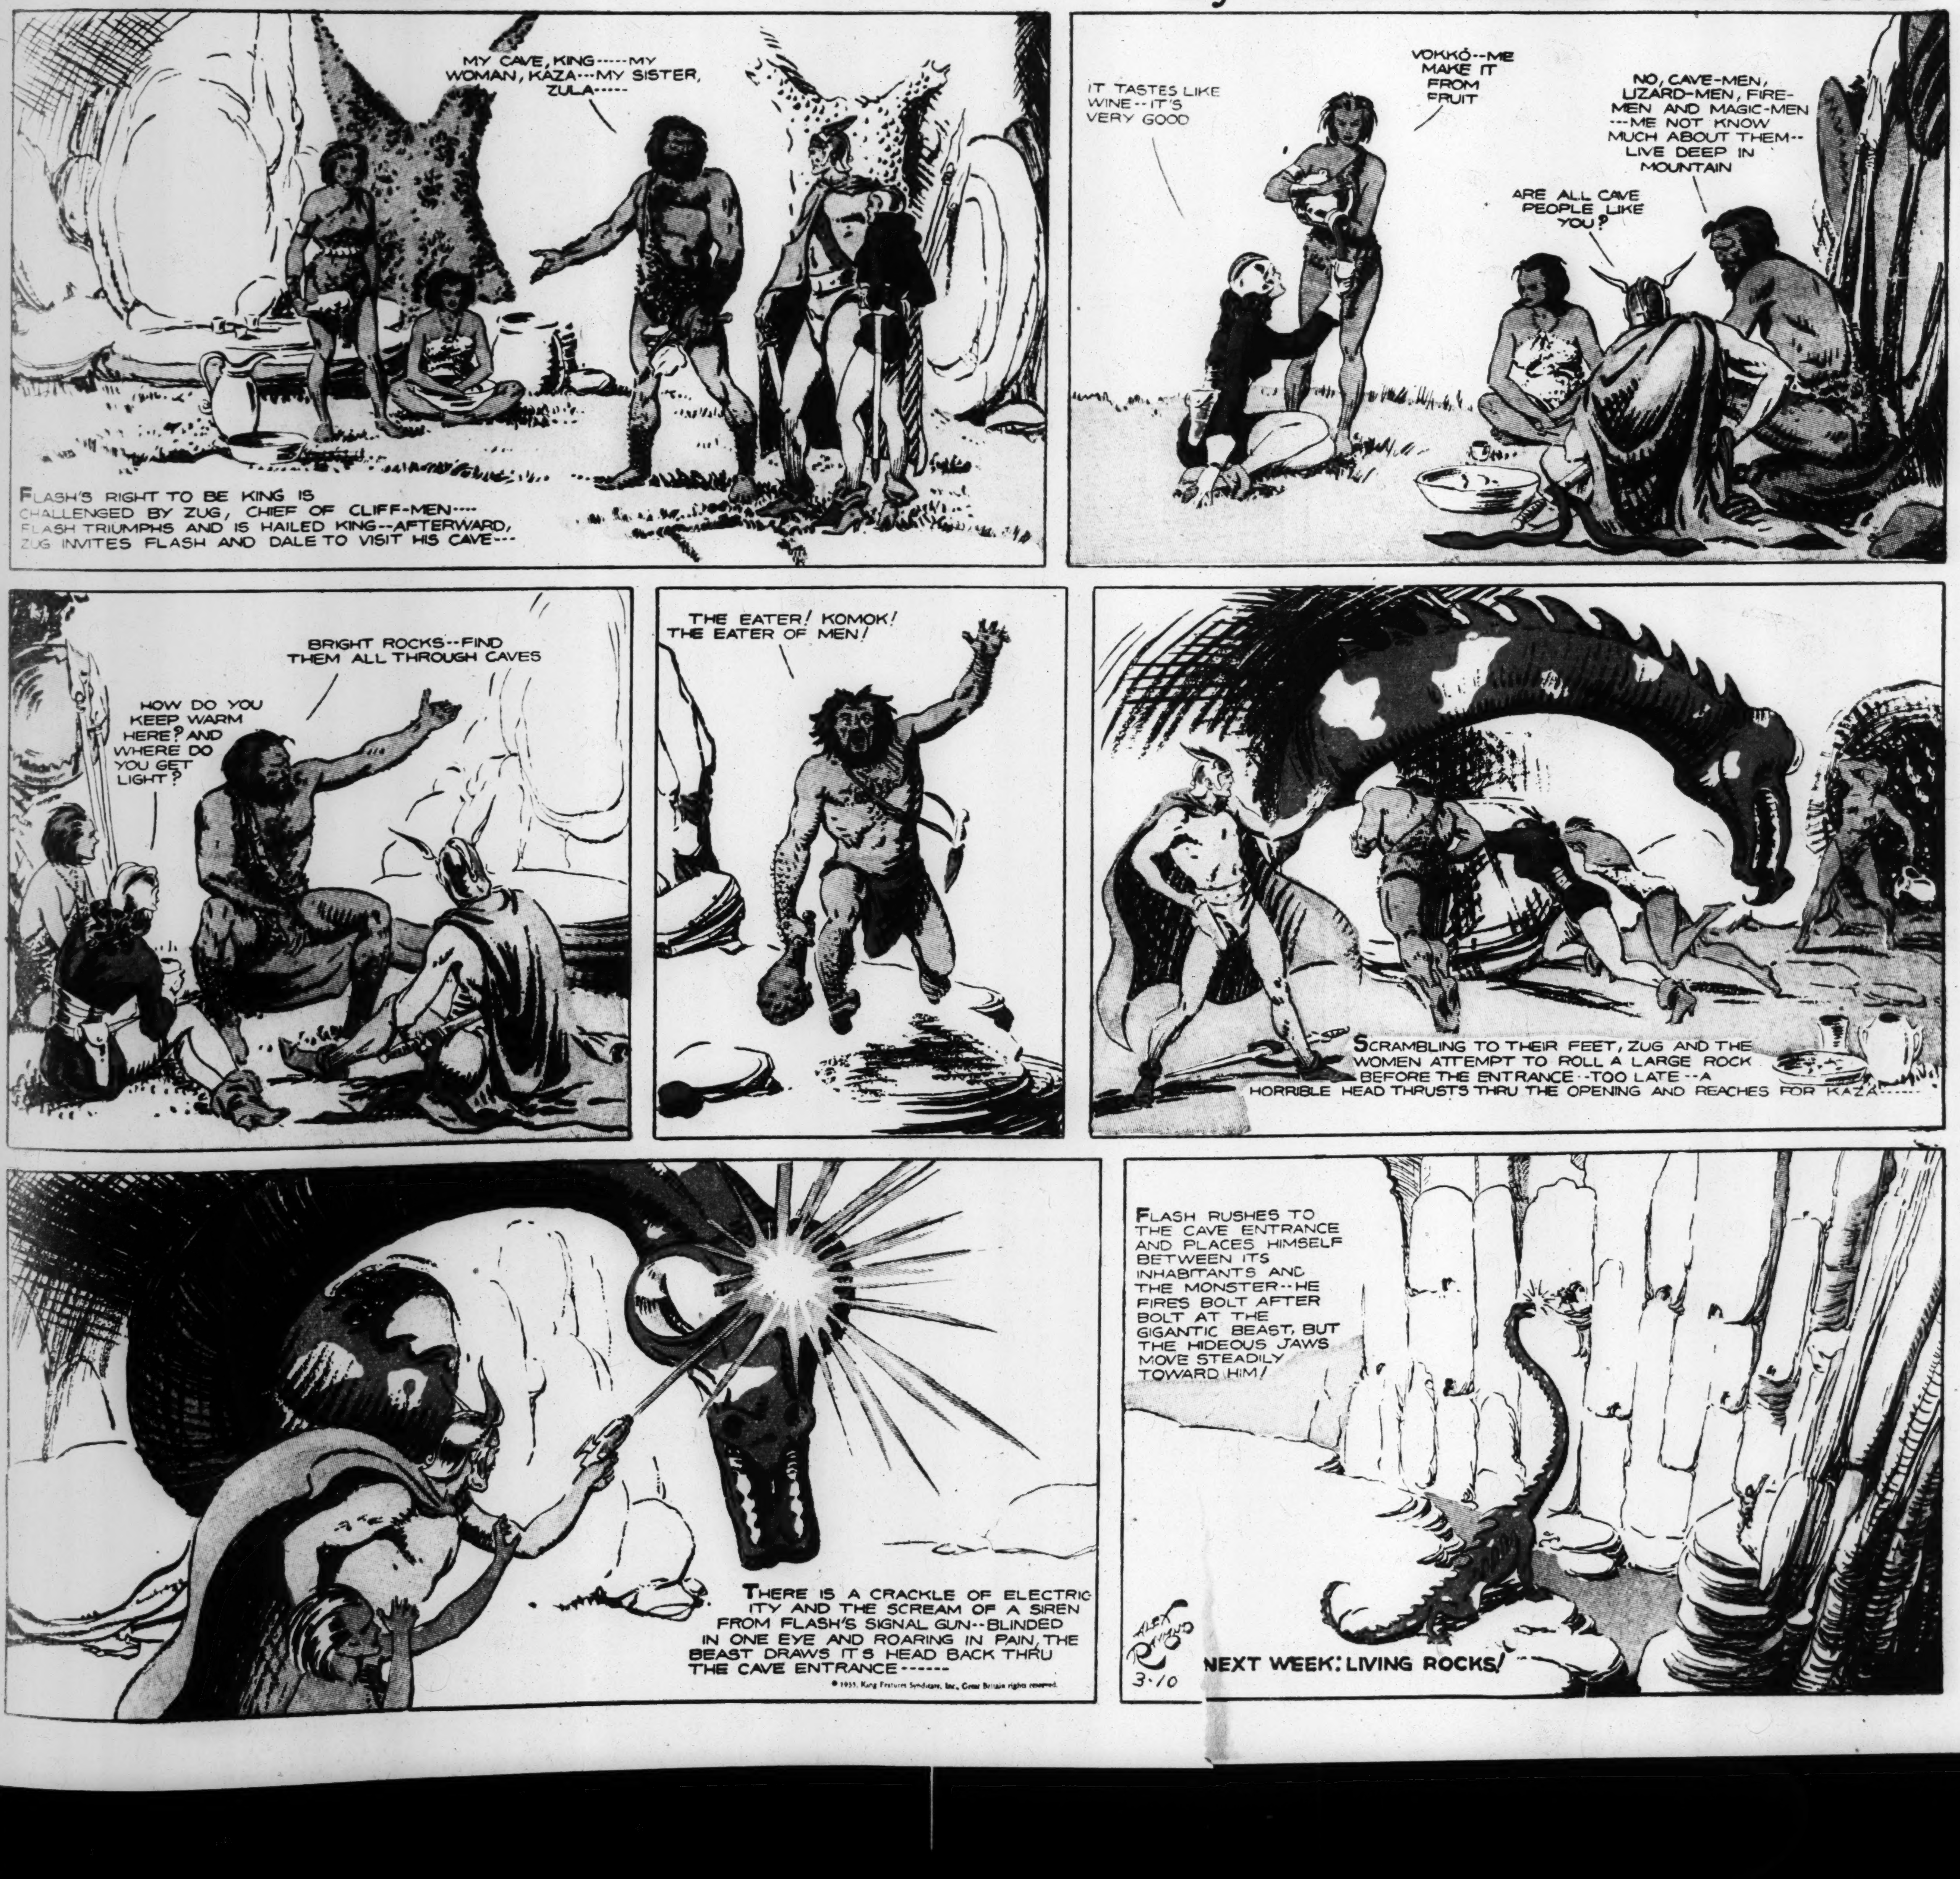
FLASH GORDON By ALEXANDER RAYMOND



MY CAVE, KING-----MY WOMAN, KAZA---MY SISTER, ZULA----- FLASH'S RIGHT TO BE KING IS CHALLENGED BY ZUG, CHIEF OF CLIFF-MEN---- FLASH TRIUMPHS AND IS HAILED KING--AFTERWARD, ZUG INVITES FLASH AND DALE TO VISIT HIS CAVE---
IT TASTES LIKE WINE--IT'S VERY GOOD
VOKKÓ--ME MAKE IT FROM FRUIT
ARE ALL CAVE PEOPLE LIKE YOU?
NO, CAVE-MEN, LIZARD-MEN, FIRE-MEN AND MAGIC-MEN ---ME NOT KNOW MUCH ABOUT THEM-- LIVE DEEP IN MOUNTAIN
HOW DO YOU KEEP WARM HERE? AND WHERE DO YOU GET LIGHT?
BRIGHT ROCKS--FIND THEM ALL THROUGH CAVES
THE EATER! KOMOK! THE EATER OF MEN!
SCRAMBLING TO THEIR FEET, ZUG AND THE WOMEN ATTEMPT TO ROLL A LARGE ROCK BEFORE THE ENTRANCE--TOO LATE--A HORRIBLE HEAD THRUSTS THRU THE OPENING AND REACHES FOR KAZA------
THERE IS A CRACKLE OF ELECTRICITY AND THE SCREAM OF A SIREN FROM FLASH'S SIGNAL GUN--BLINDED IN ONE EYE AND ROARING IN PAIN, THE BEAST DRAWS IT'S HEAD BACK THRU THE CAVE ENTRANCE------

ELLA CINDERS
By BILL CONSELMAN and CHARLIE PLUMB
I HAVE KIND OF A SORE THROAT, ELLA! I OUGHTA HAVE A DOCTOR!
I'LL CALL THAT DUMB LOCAL SWITCHBOARD OPERATOR AND HAVE HER SEND ONE OUT HERE!
HELLO, THIS IS ELLA CINDERS --- NO -- ELLA --- "E" AS IN EMPTY, "L" AS IN LAZY --- NO, NOT HAZY --- LAZY! NO! LAZY --- LAZY! NO, I'M NOT CALLING YOU THAT!
I SIMPLY SAID THAT THE SECOND LETTER IN MY NAME IS "L" --- LIKE IN LAZY! THE FIRST LETTER IS "E" --- THE SECOND IS "L" -- THE THIRD IS "L" AND THE FOURTH IS "A"!
NO! "A" AS IN AUGUST -- AUGUST --- YOU KNOW, THE MONTH! YES, I KNOW THIS IS MARCH, BUT I'M TALKING ABOUT ANOTHER MONTH ---- AUGUST! AUGUST --- THE SUMMER MONTH!
I SAID SUMMER --- IT'S A SEASON! YOU KNOW WHAT A SEASON IS, DON'T YOU? WELL, THIS IS A SEASON I'M TALKING ABOUT NOW! SEASON --- LIKE PEPPER AND SALT AND CINNAMON, ONLY THIS IS DIFFERENT!
NO! NOT CLOVES! LISTEN, I'M NOT GIVING YOU A GROCERY LIST! I SAID GROCERY LIST! DON'T YOU KNOW WHAT YOU EAT? I DON'T CARE IF YOU ARE ON A DIET!! — NOW WHERE WAS I?
MY FIRST NAME IS ELLA --- IT'S THE FIRST PART OF ELEPHANT! ELEPHANT, IS WHAT I SAID! YOU KNOW, THE ANIMAL WITH THE LONG TRUNK! NO, I DON'T WANT TO BE CONNECTED WITH THE TRANSFER COMPANY!
I WANT SOMEONE TO COME OUT HERE TO FIX A SORE THROAT! I LIVE OUT ON MILL ROAD ---- MILL --- DON'T YOU KNOW WHAT A MILL IS? HAVEN'T YOU EVER HEARD OF A MILL?
THEY WROTE A SONG ABOUT IT ONCE CALLED "THE OLD MILL STREAM". — OH, FOR GOODNESS SAKE, I'LL HUM IT FOR YOU ---- DA --- DA -- DA -- DA -- DA -- DUM --- DI - DUM ---- DE ----
WELL --- AT LAST! I THINK I FINALLY GOT IT THROUGH HER HEAD WHAT I WANTED!
SOMEONE'S AT THE DOOR, ELLA! GO SEE WHO IT IS!
I BROUGHT THAT PHONOGRAPH RECORD YOU JUST ORDERED!

Chris Crusty
GEE, I'M EXCITED! I HAVE A NOVEL AT THE PUBLISHERS!
DID YOU WRITE IT, CHRIS?
YEP! ALL BY MYSELF! IF THEY ACCEPT IT, I'LL BE RICH!
I'M TO SEE MR. SLICER AT THREE ---- AND HE'LL GIVE ME A VERDICT! WANNA GO WITH ME?
OKEY DOKE!
HAVE YOU DECIDED TO TAKE MY NOVEL?
NO, I HAVEN'T! BUT I THINK I KNOW WHERE YOU MIGHT SELL IT!
WHERE?
YOU MIGHT SELL IT TO THE CHIEF OF POLICE TO WEAR OVER HIS HEART!
WHY?
WELL, IF A BULLET STRUCK THAT BOOK IT WOULD NEVER GO PAST THE FIRST CHAPTER!

Dreaded Age Signs first Appear Under Your Skin!

Lines and Wrinkles begin Below Surface as early as 20 — Dermatologists say

LINES, WRINKLES . . . signs of wasting of the under skin—loss of tone—impaired nutrition—lack of invigorating oils.

COARSENESS is made worse by clogged pores, neglect, improper cleansing.

BLACKHEADS come from pores clogged by thick secretions from overactive skin glands.

BLEMISHES. Many factors lead to blemishes—among them, loss of tone, inactive circulation, improper cleansing.

DRYNESS is often attributable to poorly functioning under skin, inadequate oil supply.

SAGGING TISSUES, due to loss of nerve tone, impaired circulation, fatty degeneration of the muscles. All occur in under skin.

IF YOU COULD LOOK UNDER YOUR SKIN! . . . The skin you see is the epidermis, or outermost layer. Underneath it is the true skin, or corium. Here are myriads of tiny blood vessels, cells, nerves, elastic fibers, fat and muscle tissues, oil and sweat glands, hair follicles! On these depends the beauty of your outer skin. When these grow sluggish, the under skin loses vigor! Then, look out for blackheads, coarseness, blemishes, lines—eventually wrinkles!

Coarseness Blackheads Blemishes

all develop when Under-Skin fails to function

You can fight them all -with this Single Cream! Have skin lovely, flawless as favorite Society Beauties

MRS. ALEXANDER COCHRANE FORBES

Grandniece of MRS. JAMES ROOSEVELT

"No blemishes. No lines. A fine texture"—Dermatologist's Report. Mrs. Forbes says, "Pond's Cold Cream keeps my skin free from blackheads, coarse pores."

MRS. PAUL REVERE III

"Not a hint of sallowness. Skin remarkably supple—firm"—Dermatologist's Report. Mrs. Paul Revere says, "Pond's Cold Cream smooths away little lines. I use it night—and day. It keeps my skin soft."

DO YOU KNOW what is the time of a woman's greatest beauty? As men see it?

The glorious teens!

Here's what a great skin authority says:—"From 16 to 20, a woman's skin literally blooms. It is satiny, clear, glowing. Not a line, not a pore. From 20 on, the fight to keep a youthful appearance begins."

A fight it is. And what woman over twenty doesn't struggle with blackheads, blemishes, coarse pores—Doesn't dread those first tiny lines that will surely grow into ugly wrinkles?

If you want to know the secret beginnings of all these skin faults that suddenly start in after your 20th birthday, you would have to see into your under skin!

What happens under the surface

There's where the firm young tissue first begins to age. Where circulation slows. Where tiny oil glands begin to lose tone. When these things happen, your under skin actually starves! As a result, the outer skin grows harsh—sallow—lined. A prey to all sorts of disfiguring skin faults.

To avoid these trying faults that rob you of your woman's charm, you must give immediate help to your under skin.

This is what Pond's Cold Cream does. Does it so efficiently that thousands of women owe the flawless youthful beauty of their skin to Pond's alone.

In Pond's Cold Cream are the purest of specially processed oils that sink deep into the skin. This rich, penetrating cream sustains the failing nutrition underneath—aids the natural functioning of the oil glands.

It revitalizes your skin. The steady use of Pond's Cold Cream actually stimulates the skin circulation. Stirs up the deep skin to vigorous action.

Use this youth-sustaining, germ-free cream. See how quickly its use brings back freshness, color, a satiny texture. Even wipes out lines. Clears away blackheads, blemishes.

Flushes away deep-skin grime

Pond's Cold Cream is a wonderful cleanser. Use it at night before retiring. It sinks deep and flushes away all skin impurities, grime, rubbed-in rouge, powder. Your skin feels wonderfully freshened, renewed. A second application patted in vigorously stimulates the circulation. You actually look years younger! In the morning and in the daytime before you make up, repeat this. Your powder goes on so smoothly—stays that way for hours.

Send this very day for a generous tube and other Pond's beauty aids the coupon offers you. Then see if you do not win back that youthful charm every woman should have!

● Pond's Cold Cream—Germ-free, deep-penetrating. Cleanses deeply, corrects faults, makes the skin silken, ready to hold powder. Pond's Liquefying Cream—contains the same rich, effective ingredients. It melts instantly.

Send for Generous Supply—Send this coupon this very day with 10¢ for a liberal supply of this youth-sustaining cream with samples of 3 other beauty aids.
